BONUS BEATEN BY SENATE VOTE OF 62 TO 18; LEADER URGES MARCHERS TO REMAIN HERE

HOOVER FURLOUGH PLEA IS ISSUED TO BREAK DEADLOCK

Conferees to Put Problem Up to House Again.

VOTE ON PLANS IS DUE MONDAY

President Renews His Stand for Five-Day-Week Principle.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

The Government's furlough-pay cut stepchild will be laid at the door of the House of Representatives today by a conference committee divided within itself as to wisdom of conflicting plans for reducing Federal personnel costs.

A final appeal from the White House for adoption of the furlough plan, citing five-day week advantages and increased savings claimed, came too late to exert any influence on economy conferees. They had just voted to report back the economy bill, with the furlough-pay cut title in disagreement. The formal report will be filed in the House today.

Under lay-over rules of the House, the issue can not come to a vote before Monday at earliest. Then Representative John McDuffie (Democrat), Alabama, will move that the House recede from its stand and accept the Senate economy committee proposal of 10 per cent pay cuts on salaries over $1,000.

Furloughs Alternative.

If this is voted down, and the House Government employe bloc insists it will be, Representative McDuffie will move the Senate's alternative proposal of compulsory furloughs on the five-day week principle. Should the motion carry, there will be no need of further House and Senate conferences. On the other hand, should the pay-cut motion pass, the whole matter will have to be resubmitted to the Senate.

In other words, Federal employes are left just where they were when both alternatives were presented to the House weeks ago by the House economy committee. At that time the House rejected the furlough plan. It rejected the committee's proposal of 11 per cent cuts with $1,000 exemption. In its stead it wrote in a $2,500 exemption, that would net the Government but $9,000,000.

At a White House conference with newspaper men yesterday, President Hoover said the furlough plan will produce more in the way of savings "than any other plan that is likely to pass Congress."

Says Pay Standard Kept.

"It avoids discharges and enables some increases in the number of people employed by the Government through the necessity of some substitutions," the President said.

"In the large sense it maintains the standards of pay in the Government. It must be borne in mind that Government pay has never been

Senators Warn District To Muffle City Noises

The shrieking of fire sirens, clanging of police patrol bells, and the sound accompaniment to every ambulance flight across town, have strained the taut nerves of Senate District committeemen.

Yesterday in a resolution they told the District Commissioners to stop at once all such noise "except as a warning of danger."

Senator Carter Glass (Democrat), Virginia, author of the resolution, declared "unrestrained use of horns, bells, sirens and other signal devices on vehicles operated in the District, constitutes a constant source of annoyance and inconvenience to travelers in and residents of the District."

The resolution held such "improper noise" endangers public safety and often results in accidents. Fire and Police Department vehicles and ambulances were specifically named in the message to the Commissioners.

SHORT-SELLING OWN STOCK LAID TO FOX

Senators Hear Theater Man Shared in $2,000,000 Bear Profits.

(Associated Press.)

A charge that William Fox participated in a short selling pool in the stock of one of his own corporations—Fox Theaters—along with John J. Raskob and other well-known figures was made in the Senate stock market investigation yesterday by William A. Gray, committee counsel.

Named as the other individuals who shared in profits of nearly $2,000,000 from the operations of the pool in 1929 were William F. Kenney, Walter P. Chrysler, Joseph E. Higgins, Bradford Ellsworth, Nicholas F. Brady and Mrs. Elizabeth Meehan.

A second charge made by Gray was that Fox claimed as deductions from his New York State income tax losses which actually were made up by his companies.

Mr. Gray said about "six" such instances had been found by his investigators. He added he had been unable to get information as to Federal income tax returns.

A move was made later in the com-

Bryan, Jr., Given Fine For Speeding to Parley

Los Angeles, June 17 (A.P.).—Through counsel, William Jennings Bryan, jr., son of the late Commoner, today pleaded guilty to speeding. The sentence was $7 fine or two days in jail.

Upon the plea of counsel that Bryan was en route to the Democratic national convention, which opens June 27, the court suspended the sentence until his return. And the return was fixed for June 30, which, allowing for train schedules, leaves it up to the Democrats to put on a whirlwind convention of about one day if Bryan is to get back to traffic court on time.

STOP-GAP DEBT HOLIDAY AGREED ON AT LAUSANNE

Delegates' Action Means Virtual Continuance of Hoover Moratorium.

LARGE SUMS TO U. S. HELD NOT AFFECTED

France Declines Proposal to Cancel; Von Papen Hints New Concessions.

Lausanne, Switzerland, June 17 (A. P.).—The long-awaited Lausanne conference got under way today with restrained expressions of differences among the major powers, but before the first session ended an agreement was obtained for a stop-gap continuance, in effect, of the Hoover moratorium.

In no way involving the United States, this agreement suspended reparations payments from June 30, the end of the Hoover moratorium, for the duration of the Lausanne conference.

This will have the probable effect of prolonging the conference well into July, and reflected an apparent decision on the part of the statesmen here to continue their deliberations until something in the nature of a "permanent settlement" is reached.

Amortization Looms.

The move was initiated by Great Britain and was accepted by France, Italy, Belgium and Japan. The decision, which in no way prejudices any ultimate agreements, would affect total payments of about $18,000,000 from Germany and her war-time allies, provided it continued to the middle of July.

(Washington dispatches revealed that no large payments to the United States would be affected by today's Lausanne decision because none are due until December. It was reiterated that the United States would keep hands off until Europe reached a decision.)

Then came the differences of opinion in the speeches of the various delegates. Franz von Papen, the new German chancellor, commended the temporary agreement. He omitted

U. S. Finance Fund To Get New Capital

Issue of $250,000,000 in Notes Is Decided Upon by Heads.

(Associated Press.)

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation decided yesterday to issue $250,000,000 of six months notes that brought to $1,000,000,000 the funds that have been made available for its use in making loans to aid economic recovery.

The corporation was authorized by Congress to issue securities totaling $1,500,000,000. The Treasury initially subscribed capital of $500,000,000, later bought $250,000,000 of the corporation's debentures and will purchase the notes authorized yesterday as the funds are needed.

The new notes will mature October 27, and will bear interest of 3½ per cent annually.

Specific Wet Plank Predicted by Shouse

Democratic Chief, in Chicago to Prepare for Convention, Says Party Stand Will Be Concise and Courageous.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD (Staff Correspondent of The Post).

Chicago, Ill., June 17.—Just as the last of the Republicans were clearing out today and Chicago, bored with politics, was switching its interest back to gangland killings and the like, the advance man for the Democrats arrived in town and started the prohibition controversy all over again.

Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, here to set the stage for his party's national convention ten days hence, predicted that the Democrats would adopt a prohibition plank that would be concise and courageous, and not like the Republican plank, a "misleading straddle."

Shouse, whose utterances and actions have aroused the hostility of Franklin D. Roosevelt, leading candidate for the Democratic nomination, was careful to say today that he was not trying to speak for or to commit the party.

However, he said that there was a "likelihood" of the Democratic plank being more liberal than the Republican plank in two respects:

First—In that it will frankly denounce the evils that have grown out of the eighteenth amendment as it stands.

Second—In that it will advocate submission of a substitute for the eighteenth amendment that not only will give the States an opportunity to go wet, but will give them that opportunity without at the same time providing that the Federal Government shall continue to exercise its police power within the State.

The plank adopted by the Republican convention in its furious session of Wednesday night contains no criticism of prohibition. On the contrary, it dwells on the "gains" achieved by the eighteenth amendment.

But its chief fault, its "inherent evil," according to Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, and Nicholas Murray Butler, who led the fight

GERMAN DEBT HINTS STIR U. S. BANKERS

Possibility of Moratorium on Private Obligations Arouses Anxiety.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN

Fate of $2,000,000,000 of American loans in Germany overshadowed all other developments in Lausanne yesterday when it became known here that Germany contemplates declaring a moratorium on all private debts.

Chancellor von Papen, the delegate of Germany who is assuming the debt reparations negotiations where Herr Bruening left them off, indicated that Germany may be forced to take this drastic step to protect her economic life.

For some time past authoritative circles in the State Department here have predicted such an eventuality and the recurrence of the definite possibility yesterday caused considerable excitement in American financial circles. Long distance telephone calls were put through to the State Department from several Wall street houses with heavy commitments in Germany.

In the absence of a definite fait accompli, the action of the State Department could not be ascertained. Officials of the department are studying the situation and in the event that Germany does take the threatened step, every possible effort will be made to protect at least the interest charges on the loans, even if amortization charges are waived for some time.

American investors are not the only ones who will suffer by such a tem-

Mechanic Admits Part in Kidnaping

Kansas City Man Says He Drove Car in Donnelly Abduction Case.

Kansas City, June 17 (A.P.).—Walter W. Werner, 31, automobile mechanic, was arrested late today by police who said he confessed having an active part in the kidnaping of Mrs. Nell Donnelly, wealthy garment manufacturer, here last December.

Werner was quoted by officers as saying that after Mrs. Donnelly and her Negro chauffeur were overpowered in front of the Donnelly residence, he drove the automobile to the Wyandotte County, Kans., cottage where Mrs. Donnelly was kept a prisoner for more than 30 hours.

She was released without payment of demanded ransom of $75,000. Werner told police he was induced to join the plot by Martin Deputy, also known as Martin Depew, who was sentenced yesterday to life imprisonment after pleading guilty in the case.

ROOSEVELT-CURRY BARTER INTIMATED

Report Says Governor Will Shelve Wagner, Who Was to Nominate Him.

New York, June 17 (A.P.).—The Times says Gov. Roosevelt deferred to the wishes of John F. Curry, Tammany chieftain, in the matter of who is to nominate the governor for President, when they met for a discussion of general politics at Saratoga Thursday.

Mr. Roosevelt advanced the name of United States Senator Robert F. Wagner as the one to nominate him, the Times says, but agreed to the selection of some one else at Mr. Curry's request.

This coincided with today's announcement from Gov. Roosevelt's headquarters that the selection, scheduled to be made public today, had been postponed until tomorrow.

Mr. Curry was accompanied by John H. McCooey, veteran Brooklyn leader, when he met the governor.

Senator Wagner incurred the displeasure of Tammany some time ago, the Times says, on the charge that he had "run out" on the organization when the legislative investigation of the city government was started.

The incident at Saratoga was viewed by the Times as strengthening a belief that Tammany is planning to shelve Senator Wagner when he comes up for renomination this fall, if that can be done without jeopardizing the rest of the ticket.

Among the others who came under discussion for the nominating speech was Claude T. Bowers, keynoter of the 1928 convention and now an editorial

World Trade Study Approved in House

International Parley Is Urged in Resolution Sent to Hoover.

(Associated Press.)

The House yesterday adopted, 235 to 24, and sent to President Hoover the Somers resolution approving an international economic conference. The resolution said:

"The House * * * does hereby approve and encourage the efforts which have been made to hold an international economic conference to be participated in by as many countries as may be willing to send representatives for the purpose of considering methods for the improvement of general economic and monetary conditions."

Representative McFadden (Republican), Pennsylvania, attempted unsuccessfully to block approval, saying it would lead to cancellation of war debts.

DAVILA GAINS CHILE'S REINS AGAIN BY COUP

Head of Air Service, Who Had Taken Control, Is Captured.

UPRISING SUCCEEDS WITHOUT BLOODSHED

"Purely Socialist State" Is Aim of Junta; Radicals Are Opposed.

Santiago, Chile, June 17 (A.P.).—A military coup today again put Carlos Davila at the head of a Socialist junta "devoid of extremists."

This was the latest of kaleidoscopic changes which have occurred since President Juan Esteban Montero was overthrown by Davila and Col. Marmaduke Grove, head of the Chilean air service, two weeks ago.

Col. Grove, in turn, ousted Davila for his moderate Socialist powers, but last night, before he got a chance to divert the government into his own channels, he was captured in a bloodless coup by army leaders supporting Davila.

The military said they did not approve of "Communists," and marched on the presidential palace, where, after some delay, they apprehended Grove.

Has Military Backing.

Davila confirmed their stand a few hours after they had overthrown the Grovistas and appeared to have the solid backing of the country's military forces.

"The government will continue along the lines originally projected (two weeks ago) for the Socialist Republic of Chile," he said. "Armed forces will support the fulfillment of our plans.

"A constitutional assembly will be called soon to write a constitution. Until then the government will confine its acts as early as possible within the present constitution."

The junta continued the state of siege under which the country has been functioning, and guards were stationed at strategic points, although the city was quiet after last night's

First Term Given In Kreuger Frauds

Director Gets Nine Months in Jail and Fine of $162,000.

Stockholm, June 17 (U.P.).—The first sentence in connection with the collapse of the world-wide financial organization built up by the late Ivar Kreuger was, pronounced tonight when Director Bron Bregberg was committed to nine months' hard labor.

Bregberg also was ordered to pay 810,000 Swiss francs (about $162,000) compensation to the Finans Gesellschaft Fur Gel Industrie.

Bregberg was one of half a dozen associates of Kreuger arrested on charges of fraud after the suicide of the Swedish match king in Paris. Two others, Holfn and Wendler, were released today on bail.

'AMERICA' SUNG BY VETERANS AT NEWS OF DEFEAT

Unusual Police Precautions Are Taken as B. E. F. Swarms to Capitol Hill, but Throng Is Orderly.

DRAWBRIDGE RAISED TO HALT ADVANCE OF "ARMY" INTO CITY

Own Commissary Feeds Men on Hill and They Leave Quietly as Hopes Are Dashed; Promise Polls Reprisals.

The hopes of 6,000 ragged veterans massed on the threshold of the Capitol were shattered by the Senate last night when their $2,400,000,000 bonus bill went down to defeat, 62 to 18.

Their answer to the Senate was the call to attention by a bugler clad in faded olive drab. Led by their commander in chief, they bared their heads and lifted their voices to the strains of "America."

Even as the voices of the veterans filtered through the corridors of the Capitol, the voices of the senators were sounding the death knell of the bill as their voices tolled out the votes, 44 to 26, to table a motion to reconsider the vote. This dealt the last blow to the bonus cause, for this Congress at least.

Thomas' Move Balked.

This action, undertaken by Senators Reed, of Pennsylvania, and Moses, of New Hampshire, both Republicans and administration stalwarts, forestalled the plan of Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma, to keep the bill alive by changing his vote from "aye" to "no," so that he could move reconsideration when Congress convenes in December.

While this devastating blow was being dealt, Commander in Chief Walter W. Waters was urging his men to bring about the defeat of those who opposed the bill and pleading with the men to "take it on the chin like real Americans and stay here until the bonus is paid."

His plea to the men to remain in Washington was made before the Senate killed the bill. What action he will now take is unknown, although he has repeatedly asserted his intention of keeping the men here "until they get their back pay," as he calls the bonus. There are others in the ranks who see the futility of remaining here until the next Congress and an exodus, averaging 150 departures a day, has already begun.

Held Temporary Setback.

"The bill is beaten," Waters said, as he broke the news to the men. "We have received a temporary setback." Loud boos greeted the announcement.

But their voices rose in a mad cheer when he said:

"But we are here to stay, and I have told them in there (the Capitol) that we will stick it out. We are going to get more men as fast as we can and stay here until we change the minds of these men. Take it on the chin like Americans and fight it out. We're disappointed but we're not discouraged.

"The result doesn't alter our plan to stay here until we get results, and to get more, and more and more men to join us. Some of them are on the way now and others will come."

"Write to our sympathizers and urge them to defeat the senators who voted against us. We are ten times better Americans than those who voted against us."

Boos for Hoover Suppressed.

Someone proposed three cheers for Waters, and the men responded lustily. Then came three loud cheers for Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford.

10 DEAD, 17 MISSING IN DRY-DOCK BLASTS

At Least 63 Others Injured by Explosions and Fire in Montreal Yard.

Montreal, June 17 (A.P.).—Ten men were killed and seventeen others are believed to have met a similar fate in a series of explosions and raging fire that wrecked the great Vickers drydock and the interior of the oil-tanker Cymbeline, on which a hundred men were working, today.

At least 63 others were injured and property damage of several million dollars is estimated to have been caused. The blasts, following each other with death-dealing suddenness for an hour, sent blazing oil 100 feet into the air, threw men's bodies into the harbor and sent many, their faces torn and bleeding, staggering for safety.

Many with broken arms and others with broken legs dragged themselves from the danger zone as firemen, their chief among the fallen, ignored the ever-present danger of further explosions and poured tons of water into the vessel or tried frantically to res-

Southern California's Bonus Army in Tucson

Tucson, Ariz., June 17 (A.P.).—Undaunted by the possibility of adverse action by the United States Senate on the $2,400,000,000 bonus bill, Commander Royal W. Robertson and 3,000 followers, making up the Southern California bonus army, lumbered into Tucson today determined to attain their objective—Washington.

They announced they would encamp in the National Capital until the "back pay" of 1917 and 1918 is provided.

The air force of the bonus army, consisting of three men and two planes, preceded the huge motor caravan into Tucson.

Girl, Chant and Honey Fail To Change Goat Into Man

Animal's Still There When Maid Whisks Off White Sheet and Investigators Leave "The Brocken," Germany's Magic Mountain, Satisfied.

Wernigerode, Saxony, Germany, June 17 (A.P.).—A group of eminent German and British investigators into psychic phenomena ascended tonight to the top of "the Brocken," Germany's magic mountain, and, in accordance with ancient rite, attempted to change a billygoat into a young man. Somehow or other it didn't come off.

The failure of the experiment can not be laid to any error in method, for the investigators observed every requirement set forth in the "High German Black Book," in which are listed the processes by which the very best medieval witches accomplished whatever they happened to be up to.

As demanded by the formula, the experimenters had the assistance of Miss Gloria Gordon, of England, "a maiden pure of heart." They anointed the billygoat with blood and honey and the scrapings of church bells, they used the proper pine fire, they described a circle of the prescribed size, and they uttered every one of the Latin incantations stipulated for such goings-on.

Now, bear in mind that witches have frequented "the Brocken" ever since man can remember. The smallest boy hereabouts can tell you that.

Bear in mind also that even the great Goethe, in his "Faust," recognized that this was a place where no ordinary things happened. He wrote:

Federal Reserve Triumphs In World's Worst Crisis

Dramatic Account is Given of How Millions and Billions Were Mobilized and Diffused During Calendar Year 1931; Gold Outflow Weathered.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

An epochal chapter in the world history of banking and finance was written yesterday when the Federal Reserve Board, in its annual report for the calendar year 1931, revealed for the first time the detailed story of the gigantic operations at home and abroad which enabled the national banking system of the United States to weather with flying colors the most distressing era of world-wide economic dislocation in modern times.

Hidden in the rigid and dispassionate language of dollars and decimal points is the thrilling and dramatic account of how millions and billions were so quickly mobilized and so competently managed during six months of recurrent crises that never did the combined reserves of the member banks fall below the sum of $2,000,000,000—and never was there a day when the system as a whole commanded less than $75,000,000 more in reserve funds than the minimum required by law.

Despite the fact that in the last quarter of the year the inexorable forces of deflation called for operations on a scale never before experienced in the seventeen years' history of the Federal Reserve System, and almost on a scale never before conceived in banking theory, the Nation never defaulted for so much as a day on a demand for gold, never permitted any impairment of the gold reserve behind her own currency, and

FELICITATIONS POUR INTO HOOVER OFFICE

President Has Long Talk at White House With Curtis; Pictures Are Taken.

(Associated Press.)

Congratulations by the hundreds, in both oral and telegraphic form, yesterday poured in upon the White House while President Hoover himself reflected an air of apparent satisfaction at his renomination as he set about making campaign plans.

The President greeted his running mate, Vice President Curtis, with a hearty handshake as he entered the Executive Mansion during the morning. He listened to first-hand convention reports from two of his Cabinet officers just returned from the Chicago front and gave commendation of the party action in return.

"He seemed to feel," said Secretary Wilbur, "that we had done a prompt and effective job."

Among the telegrams read personally by the Chief Executive yesterday were some from dry leaders opposing the prohibition plank adopted by the convention and asking him to repudiate it. Most of the messages, however, his aids said, were of a congratulatory nature.

Key Speeches Planned.

Talk of the convention and of plans for the long campaign ahead occupied most of the President's Cabinet meeting. Secretaries Mills and Wilbur, the only two Cabinet officers to return early from Chicago, reported upon the administration's activities there.

It appeared almost certain yesterday that Mr. Hoover would remain close to the White House during much of the campaign. It is planned to have his acceptance speech delivered from the south portico of the Executive Mansion, which looks over broad lawns to the Washington Monument.

Although definite plans will not be made until he confers at length with Everett Sanders, new chairman of the Republican national committee, it appeared likely that Mr. Hoover would limit his traveling to key speeches in seven or eight different cities. He will, of course, conduct part of his campaign by radio from his nearby Rapidan fishing camp.

Pose for Photographers.

As Vice President Curtis left the cabinet meeting, he said it was "too early" for him to indulge in any discussion of his campaign plans. He probably will bear the brunt of the speaking engagements.

Earlier, Mr. Curtis walked in deep conversation with the President to the south lawn of the White House where they were photographed by a score of camera men.

The White House Norwegian elkhound, "Weejie," a favorite pet of the President's, insisted upon entering the scores of pictures taken, and Mr. Hoover obliged by holding him in different poses and having him sit up unassisted.

As the regular Cabinet meeting convened there were general congratulations within the group. Secretary Mills, who came to the White House directly from the train, stepped out of Mr. Hoover's office just in time to meet three of his colleagues.

Other Visitors.

"Congratulations on the fine job, Mr. Secretary," said Secretary Lamont, who remained in the Capital.

"It was just about a ninety-nine and nine-tenths perfect job," added Dr. Wilbur, who was present.

Attorney General Mitchell, a Democratic member of the Cabinet, also extended his congratulations.

Other visitors who came to the White House included Bishop William McDowell, former president of the Methodist Board of Temperance; Representative Ruth Pratt, of New York; former Postmaster General New, and H. H. Aishton, president of the American Railway Association.

Press Conference.

Later President Hoover was congratulated upon his renomination by newspaper correspondents.

After the Chief Executive had finished talking about governmental economies at his usual Friday afternoon press conference, one of the correspondents said he and other members of the press corps wished to convey their congratulations over his Chicago victory.

"Thank you," the President replied. "I feel highly grateful over the honor paid me at Chicago. I appreciate also the attitude of the press."

Conservatives Control Wisconsin Patronage

Chicago, June 17 (A.P.).—Postmaster General Walter Brown assured a group of Wisconsin conservative leaders last night that hereafter all patronage in that State would be handled by National Committeeman George Vits, of Manitowoc.

The Wisconsin leaders who attended the meeting included William Kinsella, of Milwaukee. For some time a controversy between the conservative faction and the La Follette progressive faction has waged in Wisconsin. Mr. Kinsella pointed out to Mr. Brown that the conservative faction for the first time in 28 years controlled the Wisconsin delegation to the Republican national convention. For this reason, he said, the conservatives were entitled to distribute Wisconsin patronage.

GOAT REMAINS GOAT AS CEREMONIAL ENDS

"The witches on the Brocken sail,
The shoot is green,
The stubble's pale,
And high above them thrones Old Nick."

As prescribed by the old rite, the goat was led into the magic circle by a silver cord. After he had been anointed a white sheet was thrown over him. All the proper abracadabra was intoned. Then, in a weird monotone, Harry Price, director of the national laboratory of psychical research, London, boomed "one."

With just the proper pauses, he counted to ten.

A hundred or so spectators, huddled in overcoats to protect them from the swirling mists, looked on in breathless silence.

The maiden pure in heart whisked off the white sheet.

And there stood a billygoat, somewhat the worse for blood and honey and the scraping of church bells, shivering in the cold.

The spectators applauded heartily and the investigators said they were satisfied. They hadn't expected the hocus-pocus to work, anyway. It was all a matter of proving, by painstaking experiment, that there wasn't anything in all this witchcraft business.

Statement by President Urging U. S. Furloughs

The text of President Hoover's statement on the furlough plan for Federal workers follows:

I am in hopes that the conferees and the Congress will find it possible to accept the so-called furlough plan for dealing with Federal employes. It is in reality the five-day week applied to the Government. It will produce a larger saving in expenditures in Federal employment than any other plan which is likely to pass Congress. The objection that it permits of discrimination has been met by the proposal that the few employes receiving over $1,200 a year to whom it might not be applied shall take an 8.3 per cent reduction in pay, thus giving the equivalent reduction in Government expenses.

It avoids discharges and enables some increases in the number of people employed by the Government through the necessity of some substitutions. In the large sense it maintains the standards of pay in the Government. It must be borne in mind that Government pay has never been on such high standards as that of private enterprise.

It has a wider spread of importance than these immediate questions. It shows a willingness of the Government itself to cooperate with the country in a movement for shortening the hours of labor with view to increasing the number of people employed. It is an adoption by the Government of what has been done to a large extent in private employment.

As I have said, the furlough plan is the application of the staggering system, the five-day week or equivalent symbol for indicating the shortening of hours of labor for the purpose of giving some employment to a maximum number of people.

I am also in hopes that the emergency powers to the President proposed by the Senate economy committee for immediate reorganization of Government departments with view to immediate reduction of expenditures will be restored by the conference. It is one of the most important avenues for economy in government that has been proposed. The general principle of reorganization has been accepted by both houses but under the provisions of the bill as it was sent to conference the powers to take emergency action were greatly curtailed in one house or the other.

Under the terms of the bill as it left the Senate no reorganization of any great consequence could be made effective until next March. The economies are needed now more than a year hence. The emergency powers left in the bill by the Senate reduced the bureaus and commissions which can be immediately dealt with to those expending only $25,000,000 a year, and eliminated bureaus spending $500,000,000 to $600,000,000.

on such high standards as private enterprise. It has a wider spread of importance than these immediate the Government itself to cooperate with the country in a movement for shortening the hours of labor with a view to increasing the number of questions. It shows a willingness of people employed."

Although economy conferees did not learn of the Hoover statement until they had taken decisive action, the logic of the White House appeal is expected to reflect itself in the House vote on furloughs Monday. Furloughs originally were defeated in the House by a margin of only 17 votes.

The White House statement went beyond the furlough issue and requested fewer restrictions on executive power to reorganize bureaus. This was interpreted by some as the President's answer to the Senate resolution asking both President and Cabinet to recommend new economies to Congress.

Delay Is Stressed.

"The emergency powers left in the bill by the Senate reduce the bureaus and commissions which can be immediately dealt with to those expending only $25,000,000 a year, and eliminate bureaus spending $500,000,000 to $600,000,000," the President told newspapermen.

Despite the fact that both chambers indorsed the principle of reorganization of Government bureaus, limitations placed in the Senate bill would make it impossible to bring about substantial reorganization before next March, Mr. Hoover said.

In his exposition of the furlough plan, he countered criticism leveled on the grounds that "favoritism" might be shown by heads of departments. It had been charged that bureau "pets" could be exempted from compulsory furloughs because their services were "indispensable." This objection could be overcome, Mr. Hoover pointed out, by substituting an 8.3 per cent pay cut.

Informed of the President's suggestion following yesterday's conference, Representative McDuffie, House Democratic whip and economy chairman, said it had come "very late."

He charged Mr. Hoover with "trying to wreck" both the House and Senate economy programs through injection of the furlough issue.

Mr. McDuffie, who drafted the conference committee's economy report, declined to disclose details until the report is filed today.

"It will show that we were in complete accord on everything except furloughs and pay cuts," he said. "Of course we made a number of changes in the Senate bill, but they were all minor in comparison with the issue in disagreement."

Asked if the House or the Senate provision eliminating pay for overtime had been adopted, Mr. McDuffie said the House clause eliminating the 10 per cent differential for night work had been "modified."

Other Provisions.

Senator Sam G. Bratton (Democrat), New Mexico, another member of the joint economy group, disclosed that conferees had thrown out the House provision for an administration of public works, consolidating Government construction activities.

From Senator James P. Byrnes (Democrat), South Carolina, another conferee, it was learned that conferees retained the retired pay provision, making it impossible for officers receiving retirement pay up to $3,000, to draw pay over and above this amount in public office.

Savings from the completed bill depend entirely on the outcome of the furlough-pay cut vote. If the furlough plan is approved, from $60,000,000 to $82,000,000 in economies will be added to the bill. If 10 per cent pay cuts on salaries over $1,000 are agreed to instead, an estimated saving of $117,000,000 would be substituted.

SHOUSE FORECASTS RADICAL PLATFORM ON LIQUOR ISSUE

against it, is the clause under which the Federal Government would continue to exercise the police power to regulate the manufacture and sale of liquor within a State that chooses to be wet.

Federal Power "Vital."

Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills argued that modern transportation facilities being what they are, such retention of power by the Federal Government was necessary in order to protect the dry States from liquor shipments from wet States. He also emphasized that such retention of power would serve as a "guarantee" against the return of the saloon.

Bingham and Butler took the position that the Webb-Kenyon act, enacted in preprohibition days to protect dry States from liquor shipments from wet States, was still on the books. As for the return of the saloon, they insisted that nowhere, not even in the wettest States of the East, was there any agitation for bringing back the saloon. Therefore, they contended, Uncle Sam's interference was not needed.

The "home rule" plan of John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, which Alfred E. Smith, Roosevelt's rival, will advocate in the forthcoming convention, gives the States the right to remain dry or go wet, just as does the Republican plan. Also it provides for Federal protection for dry States.

Brown's Forecast Correct.

The chief difference between the two, as explained by Mr. Shouse today, is this: Whereas the Republican plan calls for Federal regulation "within" the State, the Raskob plan would have Federal authority end at the borders of the States.

The Republican plank, while it represents the voice of the party as a whole, does not bind or pledge officials of the party to support resubmission of the proposed new prohibition amendment.

It is just what Postmaster General Walter Brown predicted it would be—a plank to which "all may subscribe." Criticism can be poured on it, and is being poured on it. Just the same, in the campaign that is about to start, both wet and dry candidates will be found standing on it. Already Senator Bingham has espoused it, and if the dry senator, Arthur Robinson, of Indiana, should be heckled about it, he can point to the clause which says it is not binding on him.

Democrats' Advantage.

Just what the Democrats will do about this matter of a party pledge remains to be seen. In one respect, however, the Democratic plank will be similar to the Republican plank: It will not recommend repeal or modification of the eighteenth amendment; it will simply urge that the people be given a chance to vote on repeal or modification of the amendment.

However, if the Democratic plank specifically finds fault with prohibition, as Mr. Shouse predicts it will, and if, further, it provides that control of the liquor traffic within a State be given to the State and not to the Federal Government—if it is such a plank, the Democratic party will be wet and the Republican party dry, relatively speaking.

That is what the Republican candidates in the East are afraid of, and it is what Raskob and Smith are hoping for.

In one respect, the Democrats have a tremendous advantage over the Republicans on this question. Politically, the driest section in the country is the South. The Democrats, however, feel confident that the South will remain loyal regardless of how wet the prohibition plank may be.

Jouett Shouse said as much today.

G. O. P. Wet Plan Held "Only Stand"

Garfield Holds Complaint of Both Extremists Is Proof.

Cleveland, June 17 (A.P.).—James R. Garfield, who drafted and fought for the resubmission plank in the Republican platform, arrived here by plane today and asserted his party had taken the "only stand" on prohibition.

Senator Simeon D. Fess, who also flew here from the Chicago convention, said "the fact that both the most ardent drys and the most ardent wets are dissatisfied with the plank is, I think, the greatest proof that we have the sane solution."

Others in the party were Postmaster General Walter F. Brown and Mrs. Brown, Secretary of State Stimson and Lawrence Richey, secretary to the President. All but Mr. Garfield continued on to Washington.

DAWES GOES HOME AS PRIVATE CITIZEN

Likes Role "Darn Well," He Says, as He Departs for Chicago.

(Associated Press.)

Charles G. Dawes left Washington late yesterday for Chicago, a private citizen for the first time in more than eight years.

Asked by newspapermen how he liked the feeling of having no public responsibilities, he replied:

"Darn well."

He began having troubles as a private citizen before his train pulled out. Coming out of his car to pose for photographers, he returned to the wrong one and was hustled out by a Pullman porter, who didn't know who he was.

Statement for Chicago.

Leaving with Mrs. Dawes on an air-cooled train, the general remarked that he was "sorry" he hadn't worn a vest.

Dawes resigned, effective last Wednesday, as president of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. He will return to his bank in Chicago.

He has a statement in his pocket on what he is going to do, but declined to make it public here.

"If you folks are in such a hurry to get what I've got to say," the general said, "send a man down to the train when it gets into Chicago tomorrow morning. It will be given out in Chicago, where it is of major interest, and not here."

The former Vice President and one-time Ambassador to Great Britain refused to stand on the step the photographers indicated, and they had to refocus their cameras.

Successor Is Selected.

Joseph Mason, who has been the general's assistant at the Reconstruction Corporation, and Senator Glenn, of Illinois, went to the station to see him off.

Previously Dawes had said his farewells at the White House, where he had discussed the selection of his successor as president of the Government's huge loan agency.

He declined to discuss his successor, saying:

"I can't talk about that because I have talked with the President about it. I will say that I think the President has made a choice which he probably will announce soon."

never allowed the reserve discount rate to advance to a point which pinched the vital credit needs of commerce and industry.

Adding the figures of the current weekly condition statement of the Reserve System to the 1931 report, Government fiscal experts yesterday traced the improvement of the national banking position up to the middle of the present week. Whereas the excess reserves of the member banks—reserves above and beyond those required by law—aggregated approximately $75,000,000 at the end of 1931, they totaled $250,000,000 as of June 15, or enough to supply new credits to the amount of approximately $2,500,000,000 over the $2,500,000,000 now outstanding.

Despite the shipment of approximately $1,500,000,000 in gold to Europe since mid-September last year, the United States still retained a monetary gold stock of only slightly less than $4,000,000,000 as of June 15, this year, which was equal, roughly, to 75 per cent of the paper currency in circulation. At the peak of the war inflation in 1919, the gold stock was only 60.2 per cent of the paper currency circulation. The gold reserve required by law is but 40 per cent.

Operations which probably will go down in history as the most important fiscal transactions since the World War occurred last autumn, when the volume of Federal Reserve Bank credit was expanded by $1,000,000,000 within three weeks.

The sudden outward movement of gold had begun just as an unprecedented demand for hoarding money fell upon the banking system. Without the extremely flexible resources of the Federal Reserve system either of these forces might have been sufficient to cause of complete breakdown of credit. But the incident is thus dismissed in the official language of the annual report:

"During the first nine months of the year the Federal Reserve System pursued a policy of further easing credit conditions through reduction of rates and through open-market operations. In the autumn of the year when, following upon the suspension of gold payments in England, the system was subjected to heavy withdrawals of gold from abroad and of currency for hoarding in this country, it met these demands freely by discounting paper for member banks and by the purchase of acceptances in the open market."

In this connection, the report discloses that the reduction in bank credits in the United States during the last three months of 1931, was equal to the curtailment realized in the entire seventeen-month period of the 1920 depression.

At the end of 1931, total loans and investments of all banks in the country—both in and out of the reserve system—totaled $50,100,000,000, or about $8,750,000,000 less than in the autumn of 1929 and at about the same level as in the fall of 1925.

Drop in Bank Balances.

Another evidence of the magnitude of the financial stresses and strains which the country weathered triumphantly last year is found in a single sentence in the report, which reads:

"The decrease of member bank reserves balances by $346,000,000 during the year was the largest decrease in these balances that has taken place in a single year since the Federal Reserve System was established."

During the first nine months of 1931 the decrease in reserves was but $82,000,000, but during the last three months the decrease was $264,000,000.

"The decline in bank loans which had begun in the autumn of 1929 continued throughout 1930 and 1931; until the summer of 1931, however, the decline in loans was partly offset in the total volume of bank credit by a growth in the banks' holdings of investment securities. In the third quarter of 1931 banks discontinued their purchases of securities, and in the fourth quarter they began to sell investments, with a consequent increase in the rapidity of liquidation of bank credit and bank deposits.

"The decrease during the year in member bank deposits subject to reserve requirements approximated $4,875,000,000, of which $2,675,000,000 was in net demand deposits and $2,200,000,000 in time deposits. This decrease reflected chiefly a reduction in member bank loans and investments, a decrease which amounted for the year ending December 31, 1931 to $4,300,000,000.

"For nonmember banks the reduction in loans and investments during the year was $1,800,000,000, and for all banks, both member and nonmember combined, it was $6,100,000,000, or 11 per cent."

Notwithstanding the fact that between September 20, when England left gold, and the end of October the United States shipped $725,000,000 of bullion to Europe, the net loss of gold stocks by this country for the entire calendar year was but $135,000,000.

This loss for the year compares with losses of $290,000,000 in Central gold reserves in Germany; $130,000,000 in England; $160,000,000 in Argentina, and $180,000,000 in Japan.

France Expands Holdings.

Meanwhile, France expanded her gold holdings during the year by $600,000,000; and in Switzerland, Netherlands and Belgium the aggregate increase for the year was $665,000,000 more.

Four-fifths of the gold taken in the September-October raid upon American stocks went to France and the balance to Belgium, Switzerland and the Netherlands.

In addition to maintaining the American currency, the Federal Reserve system cooperated in throwing some $525,000,000 to England last August in an effort to help that nation through its crisis. Acting in concert with some of the European central banks and the Bank of International Settlements, the United States also extended emergency credits to Austria, Hungary and Germany. Earlier this country had attempted to aid Europe by relieving her, through the Hoover moratorium, of approximately $225,000,000 in reparations and war debt payments.

These European operations during a period when our own currency expanded by about $800,000,000, and when the Federal Government was running up a deficit at the rate of about $100,000,000 a month, placed a strain on the national credit structure which the wildest imagination hardly could have visioned six months in advance of France's gold raid upon New York.

Finance Funds Aid.

The establishment of the National Credit Corporation in October, with an emergency capital of $500,000,000, broke the credit stringency over the turn of the year, and in January the Reconstruction Finance Corporation came into being with a new potential credit reservoir of $2,000,000,000.

Gross earnings of the twelve Federal Reserve Banks in 1931 were $29,701,000, or $6,723,000 less than in 1930 and the smallest since 1917. Net earnings after depreciation were $2,972,000.

After paying dividends of $10,030,000, there remained a net operating deficit of $7,058,000, against surplus. In addition, the system charged $8,158,000 for the depreciation of United States Government securities direct to surplus.

The combined surplus of the twelve banks at the end of the year was $259,420,000, a net reduction for the year of $15,216,000. Total subscribed capital of the twelve banks amounted to $321,000,000 at the end of the year, against $339,280,000 at the end of 1930.

None of the twelve banks earned accrued dividends during 1931, and four—Boston, Richmond, Kansas City and St. Louis—reported operating deficits before dividends.

"The reduction in gross earnings in 1931, notwithstanding an increase of $194,000,000 in the daily average holdings of bills and securities, was due to the decrease from 3.5 per cent to 2.20 per cent in the average rate of earnings on bills and securities," the official report explained.

W. C. T. U. Convention Set.

Round Hill, Va., June 17 (Special).—The County W. C. T. U. convention will be held in the Methodist Church, Round Hill, Thursday. The Rev. Mr. Richardson, of Middleburg, will be the chief speaker.

Penguin Eggs Awaiting Politician in Chicago

Chicago, June 17 (A.P.).—Somewhere in the United States there is a politician—either Republican or Democrat—who likes to eat penguin eggs.

So Anthony Czarnecki, collector of customs, had to wire for instructions from Washington as to whether penguins are wild or domesticated birds.

The eggs were shipped here from South America—two dozen of them and strictly fresh—when a downtown hotel learned that a politician, name and party unknown, liked penguin eggs and wanted to surprise him with some.

But the importation of the eggs of wild birds is illegal. The manager of the hotel argued before the customs collector today that penguins are domesticated birds. Mr. Czarnecki is going to find out.

Dry Factions Split Over Liquor Plank

Women's Group Denies Program Is Victory for Prohibitionists.

Chicago, June 17 (A.P.).—A sharp disagreement among dry elements over the acceptability of the Republican prohibition plank came to the surface tonight with the statement of the Woman's National Committee for Law Enforcement: "It is by no means a dry victory."

Alonzo E. Wilson, executive director of the American Business Men's Prohibition Foundation, earlier had branded the plank definitely a triumph for the drys and listed 14 points where the Republicans and his associates agreed.

Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, head of the Women's Law Enforcement group, denied tonight any intention to form a "Women's Prohibition Party" but made it clear that if the Democratic candidates or platform fail to satisfy, "a further solution must be sought." She announced a meeting will be held at Indianapolis, July 4, at which the situation will be canvassed and the allegiance of the dry women will be determined.

PLANK IS ANALYZED BY BISHOP CANNON

Says G. O. P. Stand Does Not Pledge Nominee to Any Course.

(Associated Press.)

Commenting on the Republican prohibition plank, Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, issued a statement yesterday saying the convention did not "pledge any nominee of the party to follow any specific course."

His statement follows in full:

"The Republican convention plank on the eighteenth amendment substantially declares:

"1. It pledges the party to the enforcement of the law and opposes nullification.

"2. Referendums without constitutional sanction are void.

"3. Prohibition is not a partisan political question, and no public official, which includes senators and congressmen, nor any members of the Republican party, are bound by the convention action on this question.

Substitute Required.

"4. The convention does not favor submission on the question of retention or repeal of the eighteenth amendment without a substitute, the substance of which is presented in the plank adopted by the convention.

"5. The convention declares that Congress should submit this substitute as an amendment to be acted upon by State conventions. This action would give the people an opportunity to decide whether they will retain the eighteenth amendment unchanged or will adopt an amendment which will permit the several States to legalize the sale of intoxicants as their citizens may determine, such legislation to be subject to the power of the Federal Government to protect these States where prohibition exists and to safeguard the citizens everywhere from the return of the saloon and its attendant evils.

Nominees Not Pledged.

"There are two outstanding facts. First, the convention does not pledge any nominee of the party to follow any specific course. It does advise that a certain definite action be taken by Congress, which will submit to the people the question of the retention of the eighteenth amendment or the adoption of a proposed substitute. It does not declare any preference as between the eighteenth amendment and the substitute proposed.

"The second outstanding fact is that this question of the retention of the eighteenth amendment or the substitution of the proposed amendment automatically becomes an issue in the fall senatorial and congressional elections, as only Congress can decide whether it will submit any resolution and, if so, what shall be the exact terms of the resolution to be submitted."

Bishop Cannon said he would reserve any further comment until after the action of the Democratic convention.

Alternative Substitutes For Dry Law Proposed

Cheyenne, Wyo., June 17 (A.P.).—Inclusion in the Democratic national platform of a plank calling for submission to State conventions of two alternative amendments to the eighteenth amendment, one calling for repeal and the other for State liquor control, was suggested today by J. C. O'Mahoney, Wyoming Democratic national committeeman.

O'Mahoney sent his plan to Harry Flood Byrd, former Governor of Virginia, who has been proposed as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President. The Wyoming committeeman disagreed with the prohibition plank suggested by the former governor.

writer for the New York Evening Journal. Mr. Bowers' connection with a Hearst newspaper, advocating Speaker John N. Garner for the Presidency, was reported by the Times to have prevented him from accepting.

Mr. Curry and Mr. McCooey, the paper added, gave Mr. Roosevelt no commitment of support when they talked to him. They followed the same course when they conferred with former Gov. Alfred E. Smith last week.

If they decide the governor's chances are good after they have looked over the ground in Chicago, however, the Times says they probably will swing their delegations into line for him.

VETERANS' QUARTERS ARE NOT FIRE HAZARD

Seven of Eight Buildings Occupied by Them Are Adjudged Safe.

The eight buildings occupied by approximately 3,500 of the bonus expeditionary forces in Washington, with one exception, present no fire or structural hazards, but do offer serious sanitation and health problems that may become dangerous, the special inspection committee named by the District Commissioners reported yesterday.

The only structure that was found to be an extreme fire hazard is at 334 Pennsylvania avenue, where 900 men are quartered. The building is five stories high and of open wooded joist construction. It has an open elevator shaft and an open stairway adjacent, and has only one outside fire escape.

Several slight repairs were suggested in the other seven buildings to increase their safety, but they were declared structurally sound. Most of them, however, were found to be not only unsanitary because of the lack of modern facilities, but also greatly overcrowded.

The committee commended the veterans for the "excellent discipline and order being maintained at all locations," and observed that the service men "have provided their own provost police and guard service."

The investigators concluded that it would be very difficult, "if not impossible," to enforce sanitary regulations "so long as such a great number of men are congregated or housed in such small quarters."

"Hygiene and sanitation can not be observed in the buildings listed in this report, which house the majority of the marchers," the report stated. "Conditions are deplorable in most instances. If these buildings are to be occupied for any length of time, it certainly would be a menace to the health of these men, and in turn, would be a danger to the community at large."

In many of the quarters the veterans are found to be sleeping on straw on the floors and eating on the street, "where the food is exposed to dust and flies." Bathing facilities are almost totally lacking and in all instances inadequate.

The committee comprised Fire Marshal Calvin G. Lauber, chairman; Capt. J. J. Kimball, of the building inspector's office; Police Inspector T. R. Bean, and Dr. E. J. Schwartz, deputy health officer.

SENATOR ADDRESSING VETERANS MASSED AT CAPITOL

SENATE KILLS BONUS BILL, 62 TO 18

and Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), of Texas, the father of the bill.

"Three boos for Hoover," shouted someone.

Some of the men responded as the leaders sought to suppress disrespect to the Chief Executive.

Not one untoward incident occurred on the Capitol Grounds as the men received the news. They sang loudly as their voices took up the air of "America." Perhaps their war days were recalled as photographers' flash bombs exploded and the sirens of ambulances screeched as fallen comrades, victims of heat and exhaustion, were carried away.

Bridges Closed to Halt March.

Their decision to march upon the Capitol necessitated the resort to unusual precautions. When the crowd at the Capitol became alarmingly large, the bridges leading to Anacostia where most of the 20,000 veterans are encamped, were ordered closed. Large details of police prevented a siege of three bridges. No attempt to tamper with the bridges was reported.

The action of the Senate halted the bill which had swept triumphantly through the House on a wave of a 211 to 176 majority. The only votes the veterans could muster in the Senate were from ten Democrats, seven Republicans and one Farmer-Laborite.

After the action of the Senate had been announced the men were inclined to linger about the plaza. Finally, Harold B. Foulkrod, of Philadelphia, chairman of the legislative committee of the Bonus Army pleaded with the men to go to their encampments. "There is nothing more that can be done tonight. Go to your billets. Don't antagonize the police or the citizens. They are our friends. We want to keep them."

"Pack Up Your Troubles—"

Only a few minutes elapsed before the ragged hosts assembled and began the march away singing. "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag," and other songs reminiscent of the war days.

The plan to continue fight for the bonus—later thwarted by tabling of the bill—was announced by Senators Bankhead (Democrat), of Alabama, and Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma, who changed their votes from "Aye" to "No," so that they could move for reconsideration later under parliamentary rules.

Moses Blocked Reconsideration.

Before the galleries were cleared Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, made a motion to reconsider the bonus vote. Senator Moses moved that the motion be tabled. His motion carried and the final death blow to the measure was struck. This move by the administration stalwarts definitely determined that President Hoover would have no opportunity of exercising the veto he had promised the legislation.

As the Senate prepared to vote, Senator Dill moved to send the bill back to committee to provide for payment of the present surrender value instead of the full face value, but the motion was defeated by a record vote. Senators were shouting "Vote, Vote," in an effort to cut off the debate.

At 8 o'clock the roll was called to assemble a quorum for an expected vote. As the senators filed onto the floor of the Senate the ranks of the veterans, swarming outside on the lawns and plaza, were increased by 2,000 who had been allowed to enter the city after promising to be orderly. The police opened passage of the bridges.

Citizens Irate at Move.

The opening of the Eleventh Street Bridge followed a conference between veterans leaders and the police. A loud cheer arose as the bridge was lowered and the men, in columns of fours, marched across under the leadership of Elmer Bollenberg, of Cleveland.

Toward late afternoon the call went out for all the veterans to mobilize at the Capitol Grounds. As soon as police learned of the plan, the Eleventh street span was raised and 100 police gathered at the Anacostia end of the bridge.

Many of the veterans, after gazing forlornly at the bridge, turned back toward Camp Marks, but their places were quickly taken by new recruits from the camp. As the bridge was opened for them, Capt. Sidney J. Marks estimated the number that crossed at 600. Many others followed later.

The closing of the traffic lanes on the bridges resulted in such congestion that many automobiles stood for more than an hour. Irate citizens, imprisoned in the Anacostia section, besieged the Eleventh Precinct and demanded the closing of the draw of passes to get through.

Promise of Order Made.

As the men filed across the bridge nonmembers of the army were weeded from the ranks. Bollenberg, the leader, promised the police he would maintain the same order which had been maintained at the camp in Anacostia.

Only a few police were visible as the crowds of veterans congregated on the plaza and lawns of the Capitol. Leaders moved among them urging them to be orderly and to provoke no demonstrations. They warned the men that vote of the Senate would be adverse.

When the contingent from Anacostia arrived, Representative Connery (Democrat), of Massachusetts, was sent for and he addressed the army, pleading with them to create no disturbance. Representative Connery was a stanch advocate of the bonus in the House.

Others who spoke in favor of the bill in the Senate were Senators Brookhart (Republican), of Iowa; Robinson (Republican), of Indiana, and Blaine (Republican), of Wisconsin.

Senator after senator rose to explain why he was going to vote for or against the bill. As the bill neared a vote, Senator Dill (Democrat), of Washington, tried to amend the bill by providing for a bond issue to pay the bonus. He asked unanimous consent to introduce an amendment to this effect, but Senator Blaine objected.

Opposition to the bill was voiced by Senator Norris (Republican), of Nebraska, saying he did not dispute its justice but felt it would be a "danger to our government." He urged the passage of a public works program to give jobs to all unemployed.

In the midst of the debate Senator Smoot, chairman of the finance committee, which adversely reported the bill, presented a letter from Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, head of the Veterans Administration, saying the maturity value of service certificates outstanding as of May 1, totalled $3,514,713,333.

Utmost Quiet in Galleries.

Senator Robinson, of Indiana, asked that the Government "give the veterans either jobs or money to buy food," while Senator Thomas said "an adverse vote would send the veterans out to either steal or starve."

The first voice raised in opposition was that of Senator Hawes (Democrat), of Missouri, who asked that the Senate "think not of one group of citizens, but of all."

Commander in Chief Waters seemed nervously exhausted at the close of the day. His day was spent for the most part in making addresses at the seven encampments, urging the men not to give up the fight and pledging himself to remain here until carried out "feet first."

Traffic in the vicinity of the Capitol was seriously impeded by the crowds of veterans. Police had difficulty in keeping open the traffic lanes. An extra detail of Metropolitan policemen augmented the Capitol police. Reserves were held in readiness for any outbreak or disorder.

As the Senate prepared to vote on the bonus measure, an army was seated on the steps of the Senate wing and on the grounds opposite the Senate doors, ready for the verdict of the Senate on its bonus bill.

The men seemed to be in an orderly mood. Periodically leaders of the army would address the mob, pleading for order. Commander in Chief Walter W. Waters predicted there would be no disorder and that, regardless of the vote, the men would peaceably disperse.

Balked by Closed Bridges.

Commander in Chief Waters had urged the men to demonstrate at the Capitol in the hope that it would sway a few votes which have been on the border line. This is our show and we are here demonstrating for our bill."

As the debate continued, word was sent to the encampments for the men to mobilize at the Capitol. Only 3,000 of the 12,000 men billeted in Anacostia had reached the city proper when the Eleventh street and Pennsylvania avenue bridges were closed.

The motive of the men in trekking to the Capitol Grounds was explained by Harold B. Foulkrod, chairman of the legislative committee of the veterans as a means of "gaining a few votes."

Fed on Capitol Grounds.

As dusk settled over the Capitol, the men were fed by rolling kitchens brought into the grounds by their own commissary departments, and for perhaps the first time in history, an ununiformed army was fed on the Capitol Grounds.

Capitol police were augmented by nearly 100 Metropolitan policemen in preserving order. No disorders had been reported at a late hour last night. The Army Band concert on the plaza was heard by the veterans.

Hundreds of veterans filled the galleries as the debate waxed. Their frayed clothing, many of them in faded olive drab contrasted sharply with the richly gowned women and the nattily dressed men in other galleries.

Senator Blaine (Republican), of Wisconsin, speaking for the bonus, said:

"There is no one who denies the obligation. The Congress of the United States has determined that there was an obligation. I need not discuss the validity of that obligation. The only question before Congress is whether we shall pay it now or in 1945?"

In his address from the Capitol steps, Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma, predicted the defeat of the measure. On the Senate floor, he said: "This fight has just begun. When you come back here in December there will be hundreds of thousands of veterans here."

3 BRIDGES BLOCKED TO HOLD BACK B.E.F.

Police Open Spans After Protests by Citizens Homeward Bound.

Shortly before dark last night thousands of veterans, who had left the Capitol to return to their various camps, again set out to join their comrades in the crowded galleries and to await a final vote on the bonus bill massed on the front steps of the Senate wing.

A huge crowd of the veterans had already taken up positions on the Capitol grounds, and as word spread that more were on the way all available police reserves were rushed to the three outlets from the Anacostia camp—the Benning, Pennsylvania Avenue and Eleventh Street bridges.

When it was found the veterans were determined to reach the Capitol despite the detail of police, Inspector L. I. H. Edwards ordered the draw on the Eleventh Street Bridge raised to stem the flow of marchers.

Balked at Other Spans.

Although more than 2,000 of the men had crossed the bridge before police arrived, an equal number was left stranded on the other side. These, however, were soon headed for the other two bridges.

The few that finally reached the Pennsylvania bridge were met by a strong police guard. They were told that it was impossible to pass and that time would be wasted if they attempted to use the Benning Bridge, as it was also blocked by a police detail.

The veterans massed on the Anacostia side of the Eleventh street bridge and loudly voiced their disapproval of the police action. All attempts to cross the channel by boats were promptly stopped by police in a launch from the Harbor Precinct.

Home-Bound Workers Halted.

For more than two hours all lanes to and from Anacostia were blocked. Homeward-bound citizens were forced to wait. Street cars, bound for Anacostia, discharged their loads on the bridge and returned to Washington. Traffic, which during the first part of the veterans' march to the Capitol, had become hopelessly snarled, was finally untangled and rerouted back into the city.

The veterans, halted at the brink of the opposite end of the Anacostia draw, refused to listen to pleas to return to camp, and for some time the situation took on a threatening aspect.

As dusk settled over the Anacostia River and the traffic problem became unmanageable, police officials decided the draw should be lowered and the veterans permitted to pass. It was not, however, until many complaints had been received by citizens who were unable to reach their homes, that the bridge was again cleared for traffic. The Benning and Pennsylvania avenue bridges, which had been opened a short time before, were jammed with automobiles for several hours.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

ELMER TWITCHELL ON CONVENTIONS BY RADIO.

ELMER TWITCHELL thinks he is getting a great break. His radio is out of commission during the conventions. "I figure it's a real stroke of luck," said Elmer. "A feller offered to fix it for me so I could get all the broadcasts from Chicago, but I told him if he did it would be over my dead body."

* * * *

"Don't you want to hear the conventions?" he was asked.

"Positively not," declared Elmer, "and I figure that if the radio people knew how few people were listenin' in to all that bunk they'd realize what a waste of money they'd been guilty of in arranging all those hook-ups."

"A party convention is one of the great institutions of America," Elmer was reminded. "What is said and done there is of vital importance to the republic."

"Yes, but a little of them goes a long ways," argued Mr. Twitchell. "My idea of major entertainment is not a hook-up with the gas house."

* * * *

"Is it your contention that the radio audience at a national convention is greatly exaggerated?" Elmer was asked.

"I'll bet you a dollar in cash against a barrel of railroad securities," replied Elmer, "that the broadcast of a political convention gives the soup house tenors, pork chop orchestras and other minor radio entertainers the greatest audiences of the year. The stations that concentrate on Chicago drive the great unseen audiences away in a body."

"You don't claim that the radio audiences haven't any interest in convention doings, do you?" he was asked.

"Oh, they may tune in two or three times a day just to see if the band is still playing 'The Star-Spangled Banner,' or discover whether the roll call has reached the Zs yet, but I'm telling you that there is nothing more certain than that the ears of the American public can take its conventions or leave 'em alone."

* * * *

"WHY do the big radio stations go to such extremes to cover the conventions?"

"They have a distorted idea of what the radio public wants," explained Elmer. "They hold the quaint notion that a public that goes crazy over Morton Downey and Rudy Vallee will sit spellbound during a report by a resolutions committee, and that an audience that will skip its meals to hear 'The Rise of the Goldbergs' or 'Amos 'n' Andy' will find similar diversion in the catarrhal utterances of Senator Blah on budget balancing."

Mr. Twitchell was clearly off the air. "No, sir," he concluded, "the radio is no blessing during political conventions. Give me the good old days when you had to go to them in order to hear them, and when any American citizen could avoid the details by staying home."

SUMMER SONG.

I rise at dawn
To seed my lawn
With dearest, choicest clover
I work all spring
And everything
Is fertilized all over.

But summer brings
Up other things—
Not sown by hand of mine
Can some one tell
Just why in hell
It comes up dandelion?

I get to twist
And turn the sod each year
And put in seed
So not a weed
Can possibly appear.

But right away
The oats and hay
Spring high and wide and fancy.
But why, oh, why,
Does it sprout rye
And spinach greens and tansy?

SEEKER OF CAPONE'S CRIME THRONE SLAIN

Machine Gun Ambush Halts Career of 'Red' Barker, Labor Racketeer.

Chicago, June 17 (A.P.).—George "Red" Barker, hard-fisted labor racksteer, who hoped to succeed to the throne of "Scar-face Al" Capone as ruler of Chicago's vice, gambling and liquor world, was slain early today from a second-story front ambush.

His ambition was interrupted by a stream of bullets from enemies hidden in a machine gun nest on the northwest side. The body was the third of the city's "public enemies" to lay in the county morgue.

Thus ended the first ballot taken by gang guns in their traditional battle ground on the question of Capone's successor as dispenser of patronage and enforcer of boundary lines for his far-flung syndicate. Since the scar faced one went to the Atlanta penitentiary his former lieutenants have failed to maintain the old territorial rights in the sale of liquor and beer.

Third Era of Wars.

Police said Barker's passing heralded a third era of the city's gang wars. Capone ended the first period of disorganized free lancing by amalgamating the rival groups, drawing boundary lines and generally forcing respect for them. His incerceration in Atlanta put an end to that system, they said.

Barker's criminal record extended back to 1916, but he never was convicted for anything worse than assault to rob. Michigan courts locked him up for eight years on that charge with a six-day intermission, when he escaped. He was reported to have slain two men here in gaining control of more than a score of labor unions as "business agent," exacting tribute from the working men in exchange for a fancied "protection" or for coercing contractors and other employers into raising wages or using only union men.

He was one of the original "public enemies" listed by the Chicago Crime Commission in 1928. His death marked the third gangland assassination in the ranks of the 28 "enemies." Seven are in penitentiaries and four are fugitives. Two are under sentences of jail or deportation.

Business Men Elated.

Barker's death was greeted by the Better Business Bureau with a statement that the holds of racketeers on Chicago business probably would relax from internal dissension and because employers would gain courage in opposing their demands. Barker was reported to control the teamsters' unions and the linen supply business. He was on his way toward subjugation of the cleaning and dyeing, meat market, laundry and carbonated beverages trades.

Murray Humphries and Morris Kaplan, his partners in previous enterprises, were sought for questioning in the killing. So were Frank Nitti, one of Capone's most trusted gunners, just back from Leavenworth Penitentiary where he served a term for income tax fraud, so were Frankio Rio, another former bodyguard of the chief, and Joe Fusco, to whom Capone was understood to have delegated his power.

Coroner Frank Walsh adjourned an inquest into Barker's death to facilitate the police investigation. The gangster's widow answered, "I don't know" to every question concerning his habits, friends, enemies and business.

There was no trace of Barker's companions who fired a few formal shots at the second floor apartment window where the killers lay, and took his body to a hospital in the early morning hours. They left unceremoniously upon learning their leader was dead.

COUP GIVES DAVILA CHILE'S REINS AGAIN

harmless gunfire and other excitement.

Col. Grove and his principal aid, Eugenio Matte, were kept under strict guard in an unannounced spot, but it was understod they might be taken to Argentina aboard a military plane almost immediately.

Reports from various parts of the country showed the military forces were solemnly behind the new Davila regime, and business circles generally appeared to be pleased with the change. They apparently believed the junta would be one of moderation and fairness and would put down all extremist activity.

As the junta prepared to take charge, 500 Communists were arrested and the streets were cleared. Troops were ringed about the presidential palace as the junta officials were sworn in at noon.

Later a decree declaring the junta in power was published and President Davila asserted the government would proceed immediately against the "extreme left," meaning Col. Grove and those who helped him.

Socialist State Is Aim.

"We aim to create a purely socialist state," he said. "It will be a moderate socialist state with no connection whatever either with the extreme left or the extreme right."

Censorship on outgoing and incoming cable messages was suspended today. Col. Grove's government had restricted all communications to the most rigid censorship of recent years.

The first designations in the new ministry showed an attempt to amalgamate the old elements of Montero and the new of Davila.

The nucleus of the junta was formed around Davila with Senator Alberto Cabero, a member of Montero's cabinet, and former Deputy Nolasco Cardenas, and Gen. Arturo Puga, who took over the defense ministry.

Other tentative cabinet members and possible portfolios for them included Senator Enrique Zarnartu, minister of finance; Juan Antonio Rios, interior; Luis Barriga, foreign affairs; Santiago Perez Pena, justice; Arturo Riveros, agriculture, and Victor Navarette, development.

Gen. Puga appeared to be the key figure in last night's military uprising, for he, like Davila, had been a moving force for socialism with Davila in the overthrow of Montero. He resented Grove's unfriendly attitude toward foreign interests and his cooperation with the extreme radicals.

Woman, Gas Victim, Is Revived.

A neighbor last night rescued Mrs. Meca Schuyler, 33 years old, of 5323 Kansas avenue northwest, from the gas-filled kitchen of her home. Owen P. Davis, of 5321 Kansas avenue, said he smelled gas and went into the house to find Mrs. Schuyler in a semiconscious condition. Four jets on the gas stove were turned on, he told police. The woman was revived by the Fire Rescue Squad.

Money Replaces Youths' High Character Thoughts

—By JOHN J. DALY—

HERE comes the superintendent of schools in Greater New York, Dr. William J. O'Shea, decrying the present methods of education in emphasizing the money value of book learning and neglecting character development.

Why, doctor! What will the young folks think!

"Material comforts have undoubtedly resulted from reflective and directed thinking," he says, "but have the social conscience of man and the spiritual outlook of the community been energized by logic and reason?"

When the younger generation is brought to the schoolhouse door by the older generation there is usually one question uppermost in the young minds: "What are we going to get out of this?"

The boys and girls, having their eyes open, see things. Even at tender ages, as they look about them they witness spectacles that make lasting impressions. Directly or indirectly their school work is influenced. They see, first of all, hard-working teachers who get little or nothing for the effort expended—educated men and women with ideals—parents who struggle to pay taxes and provide the necessaries of life for their little ones: honest, hard-working, clean-minded citizens of the republic who have difficulty in keeping the home fires burning in the winter and the grass cut in the summer.

On the other hand, these lads and lassies see the high-falutin', fast-riding, care-free companions of joy, the pleasure lovers, who ride pell-mell through town and countryside in their high-powered motors, leading the life of Reilly; who seem to have all the material rewards merely by the exercise of a certain cleverness; "smart" men and women who sneer at God and country, home and the little ones, and all that sort of stuff.

* * * *

SO the Young Idea, fearful of becoming drudges, ask what education means, where it leads, what are its monetary rewards. If, by the exercise of high-strung ethics and the following of ideals there is to be a paring down of creature comforts, the Young Idea sees in this something old-fashioned and will have none of it.

Take the cash and let the credit go, the boys and girls say, reaching for their diplomas that carry with them keys to unlock the money chests, and shoving aside the ribbons that adorn deeds of valor and self-sacrifice.

A materialistic outlook on life is fostered by that snappy slogan of the day, "Get it while the getting is good."

Educated or not, there is little hope for the hindmost until the superintendents of schools efface a false evaluation, saying "Hey, hey," to Dr. O'Shea.

STOP-GAP FOR REPARATIONS IS AGREED UPON AT LAUSANNE

any declaration repudiating reparations, but said a moratorium on private debts and amortization of $355,500,000, mostly held by Americans, might be necessary.

Warning of Bankers.

Great Britain, through Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, declared herself in favor of wiping the war payments' slate clean (a policy first enunciated in the famous Balfour note several years ago), but Premier Edouard Herriot of France disagreed.

The French premier accepted a German declaration that Germany could not meet payments now, but added:

"Cancellation is not an efficacious, equitable solution, for debts and reparations are but one element of the world's troubles."

He was replying to Chancellor von Papen, who had declared the nations had let the Hoover holiday pass without decisive action and failed to heed the warning of the world bank committee at Basel that a catastrophe was approaching.

"Reparations Abhorrent."

"Two of her creditor countries amassed so much gold," Von Papen said, "that it became sterile, while the debtor country, Germany, was paralyzed.

"The reparations have shown themselves to be abhorrent. Experience excludes the possibility of recommending the payments. A new trial would end in a new defeat."

Mr. Chamberlain brought in his offer to wipe the slate clean "provided all governments concerned will do the same."

M. Herriot rose again to state he wanted the German people to understand that France is not callous to the difficulties of other nations, but is trying to work for the common good and the common peace.

Security Is Stressed.

"It is wrong to think that sudden cancellation would restore economic equilibrium," he said. "To do this it is necessary to establish security. There is no political peace without economic peace and vice versa.

"More important than debts and reparations is the modification of tariffs, quotas, and other trade restrictions. We ask for our share only in the spirit of Justice which we wish for every nation."

Following is the text of the resolutions adopted by the principal conferees here today:

"The undersigned governments, deeply impressed by the increasing severity of the economic and financial perils which overhang the world and with the urgency of the problems which the Lausanne Conference has met to consider; firmly convinced that these problems require a final and definite solution directed to the improvement of the European conditions and that this solution must be pursued henceforward without delay or interruption with a view to its realization in the framework of a general settlement;

Without Prejudice.

"Noting that certain payments of reparations and war debts fall due as from July 1, are of opinion that in order to permit the work of the conference to proceed undisturbed and that without prejudice to the solution which may ultimately be reached, the execution of payments due to the powers participating in the conference in respect to reparations and war debts should be reserved during the period of the conference which the undersigned governments intend should have completed its work in the shortest possible time.

"It is understood that the service of market loans will not be affected by these decisions. The undersigned governments declare that they for their own part are prepared to act on this understanding and they invite their creditor governments taking part in the conference to take the same course."

When adjournment was taken it was understood plenary debate would be continued next Tuesday.

Herriot Goes to Paris.

M. Herriot left tonight for Paris, where he will stay for two days. Before departing he told newspapermen he was satisfied with the process of the conference. The moratorium declaration, he said, was logical.

Chancellor von Papen told the press his first impressions were good and said a happy attempt was being made to cooperate to solve the world crisis in all its phases.

Police took extraordinary precautions to guard the delegates against attacks by extremists. Soldiers have been assigned to patrol night and day the hotels in which they are staying.

Policeman Cleared In Shooting Case

Wounding of Painter Held Justified After Probe in Maryland.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., June 17.—State Policeman J. R. Miller has been exonerated by his superiors of blame in the shooting Tuesday of James H. Berry, Oxon Hill painter, while the latter was riding in a taxicab on the Livingston road near Washington. State police officials said today they had made an investigation into the case and felt that Miller was justified in shooting.

After the incident, Miller said he had fired because the taxi forced him off the road and failed to stop on command. Berry, who was struck in the shoulder, was taken to the Emergency Hospital, Washington, where his condition was found to be not serious.

Charges of assaulting Miller, driving while drunk and failing to stop on a policeman's signal, probably will be placed against Albert C. 'Day, 27, of Washington, who was driving the cab, State police officials said.

Fund for Gold Standard Study Is Given Brown U.

Providence, R. I., June 17 (A.P.).—Brown University has received a special grant of funds from the Rockefeller Foundation to support a comprehensive research study of the old standard, it was announced tonight by Dr. Albert D. Mead, acting president.

The study will be carried out by Prof. William Adams Brown, jr., and Carel Jan Smit, of the department of economics of the university. It is to be based on a view "that the present breakdown of the gold standard in several countries can not fully be understood by an examination of present disturbed conditions alone," Dr. Mead said.

500 FASCISTI SEE 2 TERRORISTS SHOT

Execution of Bomb Plotters Is Cheered by Grim Blackshirts.

Rome, June 17 (A.P.).—Five hundred Fascist militiamen today witnessed the death of two terrorists, one of whom had confessed a plot against the life of Premier Benito Mussolini.

The condemned men were Domenico Dovone, accused leader of a gang of bombers, and a henchman, Angelo Sbardellotto. They were convicted in brief special trials this week.

The scene of the execution was grim and impressive. The five hundred Blackshirts were drawn up in a hollow square in the courtyard under the walls of Fort Bravetta, on the outskirts of Rome.

At the open end of the square was placed a chair. Dovone, stolid, but accepting the ministrations of the Catholic Church, was seated and tied with his back to the firing squad. Twenty-four of the militiamen were lined up and fired at his head and the region of his heart at a given signal.

As the body sagged, almost instantly lifeless, the militiamen raised their daggers and gave the Fascist war cry, "A Mo!!" (To us). This was at 5:16 a. m.

At 5:45 a. m. Sbardellotto was led to the same chair and the performance was repeated, save at the end of the volley that sent him to death, the platoon commander shouted, "For Benito Mussolini!" Then the squad and 500 militiamen gave the Fascist cheer, "Eia, Eia, Eia, Alala!"

Sbardellotto refused the offer of a priest to comfort him, announcing "My soul I have already given." Both accepted the end stoically.

Dovone was the reputed leader of a gang of bombers hired by anti-Fascists in Paris to spread terror in Italy. Sbardellotto allegedly had been designated to kill the premier, for he was captured near Mussolini's office on June 6 with bombs in his possession. He confessed.

Lash and Hanging Urged for Means

Blanton Would Have Felon Whipped 48 Hours, Then Scaffold.

(Associated Press.)

Two days of whipping and then hanging was urged in the House yesterday by Representative Blanton (Democrat), Texas, for Gaston B. Means. As discussion of a Federal kidnaping bill began Blanton said:

"This bill should be amended to cover cases such as that of Gaston Means. His crime was one of the most despicable and heinous ever committed. They ought to put a whipping post outside this Capitol, tie him to it and whip him for 48 hours. And then they ought to hang him."

Means has been sentenced to fifteen years' imprisonment for obtaining $104,000 from Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean in a fake plan to recover the kidnaped Lindbergh baby.

The kidnaping bill was passed by the House and sent to the President.

Former Head of Memel Directorate Is Dead

Koenigsberg, Germany, June 17 (A.P.).—Otto Boettcher, former president of the Memel Directorate, died today. He was operated on for cancer yesterday.

Herr Boettcher was deposed last February as head of the Memel government by Lithuania on charges that he had maintained too close relations with Germany. By a decision of the League of Nations Memel is specially administered under Lithuania. Most of the citizens are of German extraction.

AMERICAN BANKERS STIRRED BY GERMANY'S WAR DEBT PLANS

porary default from Germany. While the United States has been the greatest lender to Germany, Great Britain, Holland, Switzerland and the Scandinavian countries have also loaned important sums.

There is believed to be strong possibility that some common action by all the nations with important private credits frozen in Germany may be necessary. The bankers' committee, of which Albert H. Wiggin, of the Chase National Bank, of New York, is chairman, last March continued the still-halten, or stand-still, agreement which provided for the extension of short-term credits to Germany. During the hearings on the Johnson resolution in the Senate the amount of American short-term credits in Germany was placed by some bankers who testified at $75,000,000. The full amount placed in Germany is now believed to be very considerably in excess of that sum. The interest and amortization charges alone on the German credits amounts to more than $350,000,000.

It is believed here, however, that Germany will make every effort short of actual default in order to keep her national credit intact. Such a temporary freezing of the funds placed on deposit in Germany by American bankers and business men would do incalculable damage to German business and German financial integrity.

While the possibility of a moratorium on private debts has been discussed in the foreign press, the State Department denied that any official suggestion had been made to this Government. All information available here indicated that the nations owing the United States will make every effort to get the question of intergovernmental debts before the proposed world economic conference. Some speculation was aroused in foreign circles due to the absence of any plank in the Republican platform on intergovernmental debts. It was variously interpreted. If an appeal is made to this Government for a proposal for debt readjustment, the response of the United States, it is believed, will be approximately as follows:

First, the President will indicate to these foreign debtors that nothing can be done in their case until they have first set their own house in order. Once this has been done, however, it will be possible to officially notify Congress of the continental action and agreement and then petition that body for the reestablishment of the debt funding commission to reexamine the debts on the original capacity-to-pay basis.

Second, the United States can only treat with these debtors individually, since the original debt agreements were made in that manner. Any attempt to present a united front or a movement en bloc would not be entertained.

European payments to the United States will begin again on next December 15. The Hoover moratorium will expire the end of this present month, and since no immediate payments are scheduled there is no necessity for any action on the matter of debts before that time. In the interval the elections will have been decided in this country, and when Congress meets the first week in December it will be possible to bring before it any further action on the matter of the intergovernmental debt.

OHIO WOMAN WINS FEDERATION RUN-OFF

Dr. Peirce, of Lima, Given Second Vice Presidency at Seattle Session.

Seattle, June 17 (A.P.).—With six new officers elected, the General Federation of Women's Clubs made ready tonight for final sessions of the twenty-first biennial convention tomorrow.

Dr. Josephine L. Peirce, of Lima, Ohio, defeated Mrs. Clarence Fraim, of Wilmington, Del., for the second vice presidency in a run-off election today, 205 votes to 139.

The new second vice president is chairman of the federation's division of family finance and prominent in child welfare and public health work in Ohio. Failure of any one of three candidates for the office to receive a majority of votes cast yesterday caused the second balloting. Mrs. Edward Land, of Statesville, N. C., was eliminated in the first vote.

Sympathy to Lindberghs.

The other new officers are Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, of Brockton, Mass., who was unopposed for the presidency; Mrs. Eugene B. Lawson, of Tulsa, Okla., first vice president; Mrs. Saidie Orr Dunbar, of Portland, Oreg., recording secretary; Mrs. Edward Hammett, of Sheyboygan, Wis., treasurer (reelected), and Mrs. Felix T. McWhirter, of Indianapolis, and Mrs. Frank Warren, of Minneapolis, trustees.

Hot Springs, Ark.; Richmond, Va.; Chicago, and Ponca City, Okla., have entered bids for the next convention, in 1935, but the city will not be selected until after this session ends.

A message of sympathy promising to "do all in our power to bring about conditions that will prevent recurrence of such a crime" was sent Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh by the "Juniors," younger affiliates of the clubwomen. The message referred to the murder of the Lindbergh baby.

Capital Doctor Speaks.

Dr. Estella Ford Warner, of Washington, D. C., special consultant to the United States Public Health Service, told the delegates sanitation, prenatal care and diphtheria immunization are the three chief problems in public health work, as evidenced by studies of the Nation's women's clubs.

She declared the record of the United States in "regard to maternity deaths is far from a condition in which to be proud," pointing out that about one mother to every 140 babies born dies in childbirth.

A tree planting was held at the University of Washington, honoring Mrs. John F. Sippel, of Baltimore, retiring president.

Premier Who Fought Against Church Returned to Seat, However.

Valetta, Malta, June 17 (A.P.).—Premier Lord Strickland and his Constitutionalist party were beaten by the Nationalists in the first Maltese general elections since 1927, final returns today revealed.

The thirty-two assembly seats were distributed thus: Nationalists, 21; Constitutionalists, 10, and Labor, 1. The seventeen seats in the Senate were distributed mostly among the Nationalists and the clergy, according to custom.

Dickson's Plane Record Claim Surprises Pilots

PETER McNEILL, who is more commonly known along the waterfront on the lower tip of Manhattan Island as "Buck McNeill," has been dockmaster at the Battery for twenty years. Although he is not a life-saver by occupation, he has rescued 274 persons from drowning. His biggest life-saving job was in 1916, when he helped 224 persons off the steamer Keyport five minutes before she sank.

On 50 other occasions he has dived in after careless sightseers or would-be suicides and pulled them ashore. When some one falls off the sea wall anywhere between Pier A and the Staten Island ferry it is conceded that McNeill will pull him out. None of the waterfront characters rushes to the rescue—they just call McNeill.

McNeill never removes his pipe from his mouth when he dives in after a drowning person.

Thornton, it was shown, approached the teller and pushed through to him a note demanding money, on pain of blowing up the bank with a supposed bottle of nitroglycerin. While the teller stalled him along, Thornton grabbed the money and fled in a taxicab. He was apprehended when he returned to Washington from Baltimore, where he had spent most of the money.

BONUS BILL KILLED.

By the overwhelming vote of 62 to 18 the Senate puts an end to the bonus raid.

To the credit of the Republican party it may be said that only renegades of that party voted for the bonus. No regular Republican favored it.

The Democratic party is entitled to equal credit for defeating this raid. Only ten members of that party favored it.

Senators who voted in the negative deserve public thanks for their moral courage in resisting the unwise demand of the veterans. The senators who encouraged this demand or who yielded to it can not escape the double charge of demagoguery and cowardice by pleading ignorance. They are fully informed as to the wrong they were willing to inflict upon the Government and people.

One of the Democratic champions of the bonus advised the veterans to remain encamped in Washington and to take care to identify their friends "and enemies." It was vicious and foolish advice, of the kind that stirs up violence. No senator who opposed the bonus can be truthfully classed as an "enemy" of the veterans. The only enemies of the veterans are those who deceive them, who pretend to be their special champions in order to make political capital at their expense.

Public order is endangered and the veterans are cruelly mistreated when they are induced to undergo hardships and disappointment by politicians who hold out false hopes to them. These tricksters are enemies wearing the mask of friends. They have no use for the veterans except to exploit them. The safety and welfare of the people, including the veterans, are jeopardized by unscrupulous politicians who seek to hold places of honor by deceit and disregard of duty.

The veterans ought to see the truth, but many of them do not. They have maintained good order up to this time. The public appreciates this. All honest citizens recognize the fact that any one of these veterans might have been occupying the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, and that the lad who rests in the tomb might have been now among his buddies asking for the bonus. It is the premeditated and potentially tragic betrayal of the veterans that arouses the indignation of the public, and not the appeal of the veterans themselves.

Disorders will surely occur if the veterans remain encamped here. Who will be responsible if blood should be shed? The people of the United States are not deceived, however deeply deceived the veterans may be. The responsibility will rest squarely upon the shoulders of representatives and senators who have encouraged this visitation and lied to the veterans, making them believe that by massed importunity little short of a threat of violence they could coerce Congress into imposing a tax of $2,400,000,000 upon the harassed and impoverished people of the country. The perfidy of this advice will render the names of the parties infamous if it leads to the death of veterans or citizens.

The Post reiterates the suggestion that Congress immediately set apart a portion of the $300,000,000 that has been provided as loans to the States, to take care of the veterans now here and to transport them to their States. The amount thus expended can be deducted from the loan to the State to which the veteran belongs. The governors should at once advise the veterans that the States can feed them and give them employment. When this has been done the veterans will have no excuse for remaining here, and if they should insist upon remaining after food and work await them at home they can be made to feel that the sympathy of the public is no longer theirs. In the meantime they may distinguish between their real friends and their real enemies.

VICE PRESIDENT CURTIS.

Making all allowance for the fine qualifications of other Republicans who were suggested for the Vice Presidency, the national convention acted most wisely in renominating Charles Curtis. No other candidate could compare with him in experience and proved fitness for the office. The majority of delegates weighed all factors before choosing Mr. Curtis, and their choice undoubtedly commands the approval of the party.

Mr. Curtis has not only maintained the dignity of the Vice Presidency, but has extended the usefulness of the post by applying to it his varied knowledge of governmental affairs and his keen judgment of men. He was a rival of Mr. Hoover for the presidential nomination in 1928, but there is no bitterness in such rivalries on the part of men really qualified for the office. Mr. Curtis has been a loyal friend and counsellor of President Hoover. His political and legislative advice has been valuable, both to the Republican party and to the country. As a presiding officer he has expedited legislation and won the friendship of all senators by his impartiality and courtesy.

Few Republicans equal Mr. Curtis as a campaigner. His powers of endurance were conspicuous in the campaign of 1928, during which he traveled and spoke in nearly every State. His addresses clarified the issues and contributed to the public stock of accurate information concerning the Government. With rugged health and a store of experience at the service of his countrymen, Vice President Curtis may be expected to take a leading part in the Republican campaign.

WORK OF CONGRESS.

The deadlock on the question of Federal pay is holding up the so-called economy bill. President Hoover expresses the hope that the conferees will accept the furlough plan, which does not reduce basic pay, spreads employment among more workers, and places the Federal employment system in line with private industry in shortening the working week. The workers would receive less total pay, but instead of a cut without any recompense whatever they would not be required to work as many days as at present. The time they gain may be made profitable to their personal advantage if they so desire.

The House conferees can well afford to yield on this subject. Their stand for a drastic cut in pay, without any reduction of working time, is not necessary in order to effect economy. The furlough plan is more humane and actually provides more employment while achieving a reduction in the total salary budget.

Two great appropriation bills, providing for the Departments of State, Justice, Commerce, Labor, Treasury and Postoffice, are in conference after having suffered a horizontal cut of 10 per cent by the Senate. The adjustment of items in these bills is a tedious and controversial task, involving questions of employment as well as public service. The District of Columbia bill is in conference, the independent offices bill has been reported to the Senate, and the second deficiency bill has passed the House. The appropriation bills as a whole can be disposed of speedily.

On the question of unemployment relief some debate may be expected. The Senate objects to the Garner pork barrel bill, and Democrats of the Senate wish to substitute a pork barrel bill of their own. They seem to be determined to support the plan to issue $500,000,000 in bonds to help the unemployed. A tug of war between the two pork barrel bills is in prospect; but the Democratic convention comes on apace, and it is expected that Congress will adjourn by June 25 in spite of the Democratic dispute as to what constitutes the most toothsome pork.

CHAIRMAN OF THE G. O. P.

The Republican national committee promptly prepares for action by electing Everett Sanders chairman. Hailing from Indiana, Mr. Sanders is of course an adept in politics by nature, but he enlarged his qualifications by service in Congress and as secretary to former President Coolidge. He is acquainted with all public men and enjoys exceptional popularity.

Chairman Sanders will not be endowed with as large a campaign fund as he could profitably use in promoting the welfare of the G. O. P., but his candidates have the advantage of occupying positions from which they can be heard in all parts of the country. Possibly the Democratic chest will not be overflowing, either. Economy is the order of the day. One good campaign speech must be stretched to take the place of two.

The new chairman combines tact with driving power, and his innate courtesy will forbid him from descending to the vulgar level reached by the director of the Democratic national committee during the last two years. The selection of a Democrat of Mr. Sanders' type to succeed Jouett Shouse would insure a decent campaign in which debate on public questions, and not personal vilification, would be the rule.

TO HELP HOME OWNERS.

Assurance that the Federal home loan bank bill will soon be translated into law will mean the rounding out of the President's program of relief and reconstruction in a gratifying manner. This measure, which passed the House by viva voce vote, will doubtless experience little difficulty in the Senate, and practical help for many home owners and home builders will soon be available, offering assistance that will be invaluable to those whose mortgage indebtedness threatens loss of their property. Through the encouragement of home construction, activity in the building trade may be expected.

A fund of $125,000,000 under this bill will be provided through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to assist where necessary for the establishment of not less than eight nor more than twelve district home loan banks throughout the country, with a capital stock of not less than $5,000,000 each. The member organizations that will create these banks will be building and loan associations, cooperative banks, homestead associations and savings banks. Insurance companies, trust companies and general banking organizations are excluded from participation, under a House amendment.

A Federal board of five members will be created by the President with salaries of $10,000 each, while each of the home loan banks will be governed by a board of eleven directors, two to be appointed by the Federal board and nine selected by the small member banks. Bonds, guaranteed by mortgages accepted by the system, will be offered to the public to increase currency circulation. Not more than 40 per cent of the value of real estate is to be advanced on a mortgage loan, and the limit of advance on any single home property is $20,000.

Lengthy hearings on the bill were held by the House committee on banking and currency. It met with opposition from some witnesses, but many more approved it, and it had the support of Gen. Dawes, Secretary Lamont and many industrial leaders, who consider the President's plan for aiding small home owners a sound and constructive measure particularly needed at this time.

The American Bible Society has distributed 10,000,000 copies of the Scriptures in twelve months, but some of them seem to have been distributed to the wrong people.

If Republican wets and drys will arrange to cuss in relays they can keep up the agitation against the prohibition plank all summer.

President Hoover is said to be fond of blood-curdling mystery stories, but he doesn't need them while Congress is in session.

Isn't it comforting to know that the world's ills are soon to be settled in Chicago, even if Chicago's ills must remain unsettled?

In New York it is proposed to pay physicians by installment, if any. This may bring about a system of cures by installment.

Iowa couldn't expect to put both Hoover and McNider on the ticket, even if it did prove its Republicanism by ditching Brookhart.

Certain latter-day economists seem to imagine that the best way to make the old horse go is to starve him to death.

PHILIPPINE LEGISLATION

By VICENTE VILLAMIN.

After fighting the economic depression in America with heroic measures Congress is being urged to enact so-called Philippine independence legislation that is certain to bring about acute economic distress in the islands. This is being done ostensibly to carry out the theory of "defining the future political status" of the Philippines.

Under normal conditions the enactment of such clarifying legislation would be desirable, but "in times like these" its passage will be so harmful to the Philippines as to partake of the nature of an intentional oppression.

Already Philippine values are tumbling down as the impression went out that certain groups in Congress are playing fast and loose with the fate of the 13,000,000 Filipinos. The Philippines Free Press, the leading publication in the islands, says editorially that sugar shares are now being offered for sale at the price of the buyer. This artificial situation is welcome to the islands' economic rivals, and may result in placing the control of the islands' leading industry in the hands of outside antagonistic interests.

Philippine government bonds, which carry the moral guarantee of the United States Government, have gone down from 5 to 10 points. Philippine bank funds are being used at present to prevent the prices of these bonds from tobogganing down. Sympathetically the securities of private companies have weakened considerably. All these are unfair because they are not justified by the intrinsic value of those public and private securities.

Money is getting more and more scarce in the islands and credit is getting tighter and tighter, creating a veritable paradise for the mortgage sharks, usurers and speculators. The legal rate of interest is already as high as 12 per cent.

Needless to say, it is the rank and file of the Filipino people who bear the brunt of these oppressive conditions. Those who style themselves as friends of the Filipinos refuse to understand these facts and prefer to talk about imperialism and other awe-inspiring conceptions. For the sake of the real welfare of the Filipino masses there is a need right now for a moratorium on politics and academics.

There is no emergency in the islands to justify indecent haste in legislating on their future political status. There is no emergency in America to require the hasty expulsion of the Philippines from under the American flag. The imperious challenge to both American and Filipino leadership now is to arrest the depression and bring back normalcy. When better times return there will be a better atmosphere for the proper settlement of the Philippine question. Such setting is absent now, which is inherent "in times like these."

The Donkey's Turn Next.

POST HASTE.

If you can't figure something out of the prohibition plank that suits you the committee was not as smart as it thought it was.

It was quite appropriate that the Secretary of State should do the first official explanationing. It was all clear except the delimitation of the demand that the power of the Federal Government be used "to safeguard our citizens everywhere from the return of the saloon."

Where is everywhere? It must mean within the States, but does it also include Nicaragua?

Anyhow, boiled down, the 500 words say: "Let the States vote on prohibition."

Chile has flopped back to Davila again. Whoever captures the national palace last makes his own mandate to rule the nation.

The Japanese are finding that the League of Nations committee are not nearly as good publicity agents for their war as the correspondents they let escape.

That Senate committee will felicitate itself over the fact that the Bulls outnumber the Bears three to one in New York's new telephone book.

The Republican convention may have to be reconvened—the prohibition plank does not suit Mr. Shouse.

There will doubtless be just as many cooks engaged in the preparation of the Democratic prohibition broth, and we shall see whether it pleases Mr. Sanders.

Chicago's convention hall is being reequipped with broad raddios and expert accountants and adding machines to handle the factions and fractions.

Chile should set up a score board in the public square to keep tally and let the people know who are the rebels from day to day.

The Chicago convention developed imitators of Will Rogers who can't appreciate the difference between good-natured gibes and insulting buffoonery.

The Capital awoke yesterday to a realization that there is a convention still in session on the Hill.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

STRANGE STATESMANSHIP.

One time a statesman thought to try
A notable experiment.
Against his party's hue and cry
He said just what he meant.

On public weal he kept both eyes,
Forgetful of his own.
If he believed a scheme unwise,
He promptly made it known.

No heed to next year's votes he paid,
But, like a workman hired,
An honest, brave attempt he made
To do the task required.

The politicians day by day
In anger came to call,
And said "If you keep on this way,
You'll lose your job next fall."

He answered, "I was voted in
My judgment best to use;
If politics I play to win,
This job I ought to lose."

This took the people by surprise,
So strange a man he seemed!
That statesmanship could be so wise
They'd never even dreamed.

"This man," said they, "is not the kind
To cry that white is black;
He's not afraid to speak his mind—
Let's vote to send him back."

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY DEAR LOUISE: You are cheerful by nature and habit, and you have an uncommon capacity for happiness, but you have one weakness that causes you a lot of unnecessary misery.

You are filled with rebellion and resentment when the world doesn't match your ideal of what it should be.

And that means you haven't yet learned the most important of life's lessons.

Some years ago Jim Derieux, then editor of the American Magazine, took his baby daughter to a restaurant frequented by New York's bankers and business potentates.

In that atmosphere of unbending dignity and solemn egoism, the baby created a sensation. Her manners, Mr. Derieux said later, were perfect. And then he added: "That is, perfect baby manners. She ate with her fingers."

To understand that, my dear, is the beginning of wisdom.

The job of creating this world wasn't finished in seven days. It is still being created. It is evolving constantly. And the things that seem to be wrong are merely uncompleted things.

Growth and action are constant, and reaction inevitable. And everything that exists, including people, is precisely as it should be and must be at its present stage of development.

You don't condemn a house because it is only half finished, you don't find fault with an acorn because it hasn't yet become an oak. You realize that the bud must come before the flower, the grub before the butterfly.

Why, then, do you see fault anywhere? Everything in the world about you is the natural result of yesterday. And today it merely presents another stage of growth. It is imperfect only in the sense that a colt is an imperfect horse.

Once you see the truth, you can enjoy the world as it is.

Don't condemn anything by comparing it with the standard of perfection. Everything is perfect, of its kind, and everything as it is represents a necessary step in the development of God's great schemes.

If a tramp appears on the stage, you are disappointed only because you were so foolish as to expect a gentleman in fine clothes. Life is more fun when you quit looking for figs on a thistle.

A sour taste is as it should be. Don't think it at fault, my dear, merely because you expected a sweet. Love, DAD.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

The Bonus Trick.

Chicago Tribune.

The bonus probably would not even have come to bat in Washington, much less ever getting to first base, if the congressional proponents and backers of it had thought of themselves as taking responsibility for the accomplished fact, for the legislation and the actual payment of the money. They traded on the certainty of an obstruction. Either the Senate or the President would prevent the signing of the contract and the fulfillment of its terms. If the Senate failed, the veto would dispose of the affair. Meanwhile the supporters of the bonus, having escaped accountability, would gain such political profits as they could, being friends of the veteran.

This trick of legislation is, unfortunately, as common as it is unworthy. It permits one outfit of politicians to acquire what they think is merit by throwing upon more responsible persons in government the need of stopping something which should not have been started.

The intriguers not only light a fire which, as they know, must be extinguished by other persons, but they endeavor to raise a moral reproach against the rescue.

Thousands of Them.

Judge.

And if the country is in as bad shape as the Democratic orators say it is, we can't understand why so many of them want to be President of it.

Only a Few.

Sioux Falls Argus-Leader.

It may be well to remember that not all veterans are panhandling their way to Washington and demanding assistance from the Government. Only a few hundred out of the few million who served in the war are participating in the crusades. The great majority is attending to affairs at home, just as other citizens are doing.

In a Class by Himself.

San Diego Union.

Gov. Murray announces that he has no hope of getting the Democratic nomination. This makes the governor practically unique among Democrats.

Another Widow Retires.

New York Sun.

Though a seat in the House of Representatives has meant a "sweet privilege to serve my people," Mrs. Effiegene Wingo, of the Fourth Arkansas district, is not a candidate for another term. She was elected to the House in November, 1930, to fill the unexpired term of her deceased husband, Otis Wingo, who had served in the House for nearly twenty years, and at the same election was chosen to serve a full two-year term. * * *

It is too soon to say that politicians and voters have learned that it is a bad policy to deal with offices as with dower rights. There will be other examples of chivalry in the future, but it seems increasingly clear that women voters as a whole are not fooled or flattered by such sentimentality. Some of the women who have inherited a seat in Congress have demonstrated their individual ability, but of most of them it can be said that they submitted with dignity and good taste to a false code of chivalry, served unostentatiously and departed the Capital quietly, wondering what the men who invented the term-by-inheritance thought they were doing.

Garner's Sample.

Topeka Capital.

Well, the House at last passed a bill for Speaker Garner, who has not shown a style of leadership up to this time which appealed to his Democratic brethren. But they came across strong for the Garner pork barrel. If the country wants to know what kind of government to expect from a Democratic administration and Congress, here is a good sample.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Maj. Lanier Suggests a Plan to Dispose of Bonus Army—Says Organize Emergency Division.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The assembling of the "Bonus Army" in Washington is an unaccountable psychological phenomenon. It is like unto and as fantastic as the Crusades in medieval times, and the migrations of entire tribes and peoples in Europe in the third century. Whatever its fundamental inspiration, it is symptomatic of a serious social situation, and the presence here of these thousands of men presents to the people of Washington a grave condition that calls for an immediate remedy. They are a menace to themselves and to the health of the people of Washington, for an epidemic among them is inevitable sooner or later if they are allowed to remain here. Furthermore, the psychological impulse that brought them here is liable to take a dangerous turn, and may produce a situation that may make it necessary to put the city under martial law.

These men are Uncle Sam's veterans, and it is his duty, and not that of the people of Washington, to look after and provide for them.

The following suggestions are offered for the solution of the problem: A special act of Congress authorizing and directing the War Department to enroll these men in the Army, and organize them into a division, to be known as "The Emergency Division of the United States Army," the enrollment to be only of those who are now here, and for one year, subject to muster out or discharge at any time within the year if, in the discretion of the President, the improvement in industrial conditions makes it probable they will be able to secure employment, and any man to be discharged at any time upon his own application if he is offered employment. All of the general and field officers of this division should be provided by detail from the regular Army. Among these men are many who were noncommissioned officers in the World War. Such men and their records should be ascertained, and from them the requisite number of company officers should be selected and given temporary commissions as officers of this division.

The division should be tentatively organized immediately, and uniformed and equipped from the surplus stores on hand from the World War, and then marched to Camp Leonard Wood, in Maryland, and put under canvas until temporary buildings can be constructed, which should be done by the men themselves, for there are many carpenters and mechanics among them. The men should receive the same pay and allowances, and be subject to the same routine, training and discipline as the regular service. All this involves many details that can not be even suggested in the limited space that may be allotted this communication.

This proposal will cost much less than the bonus at this time, or the costs that may eventually arise from temporizing with the situation until it becomes acute and some untoward incidents may require drastic action that would be deplorable and unfortunate.

This plan would give these men immediate employment, preserve their self-respect and morale, and greatly strengthen their patriotism, so much needed by all the people in this trying period of general demoralization.

These men, instead of being a potential menace to peace and order, would then be supporetrs of the Government and defenders of the social order.

In view of the fact that Brig. Gen. Glassford appears to have the entire respect and confidence of these men, and is an officer of distinction, I suggest that he be made a temporary major general and detailed to command this division.

ALEXANDER SIDNEY LANIER.

A New Hampshire Town's Achievement in Reducing Taxes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I believe the readers of your paper will be interested in the action of the town of Hancock, N. H., in meeting the problem of taxation; a matter which at this time of deflation and depression confronts the entire United States.

At the town meeting held in March, at which time appropriations are made, our citizens gathered to meet the situation squarely, personal politics being set aside. They sat like one big family around a table, and all agreed that we must have lower taxes. The results of this move can not be better expressed than by quoting the remarks of one of our largest taxpayers. He commented on the fact that our town not only has a very low tax rate, but can boast of good schools, a library, running water in every home, and an electric lighting system which reaches even the remote farms, all owned by the town; and said further: "Hancock certainly has set an example to be followed by every town, city, county, and last but not least, the national Government, and I congratulate them upon their most wise and courageous accomplishment."

In my capacity as a public official of the town, it has been my privilege and pleasure to receive many such congratulations from our taxpayers and others. In 1930 our tax rate of $2.35 per $100 was the lowest rate of any town or city in the county, and 49 cents lower per $100 than the average State rate. In 1931 our rate was 25 cents per $100 lower than the average. But in the present year we believe we hold a record, with a tax rate of $1.98 per $100, or $19.80 per $1,000. Notwithstanding this extremely low rate, we were also able to reduce our assessed valuation on property still more. Is it any wonder that we are receiving congratulations?

UNITED IRELAND HELD GOAL OF DE VALERA

Britain Told Free State Head Is Unchanged on Oath-Land Issues.

London, June 17 (A.P.).—The House of Commons was told today that the ultimate aim of President De Valera is a United Irish Republic, recognizing the British crown "in certain circumstances."

J. H. Thomas, secretary for dominions, said the president of the Free State made this assertion to him in Dublin last week during negotiations to settle differences.

Mr. Thomas said Mr. De Valera envisioned an Irish republic including Ulster, which would be called, understood and accepted as a republic.

Mr. De Valera was pictured as recognizing circumstances in which the British commonwealth would act as a unit for external purposes. Then "his majesty the king would be recognized as the head" of the British commonwealth.

Advice to De Valera.

Mr. Thomas told Commons that he informed President De Valera that it would do no good to talk about such a proposition, because neither this nor any other British government would agree to such a proposal.

The Dominion secretary's remark came when he read a dispatch from the head of the Irish Free State during a debate on the Irish question.

The purport of this dispatch, Mr. Thomas said, was that Mr. De Valera had not deviated one iota from his original position on the abolition of the Irish oath of allegiance and the land annuity payments.

The Free State dail has passed a bill abolishing the oath to the crown and annuities due for land turned over by Englishmen when the Anglo-Irish treaty was signed in 1921 have been withheld by the Free State government.

Situation Is Unchanged.

This stand, the Dominion secretary added, left the position of the Anglo-Irish difficulties worse than it was before.

He went on to say that the Irish note accepted the principle of arbitration on land annuities, but declined to agree to a restriction of personnel in such an arbitration to citizens of the British commonwealth and insisted that other annual payments to Great Britain must be included in any arbitration.

David Lloyd George approved the government's attitude in the first speech he has made in the new Parliament. Members of all factions gave him a big reception.

"I was elected to oppose this government," he said, "but in my first speech I must support them."

Dublin, Irish Free State, June 17 (A.P.).—President De Valera told the Dail today that he is standing fast on his demand that a board of arbitration to consider payment of the Irish land annuities to Great Britain shall not be confined solely to members of the British commonwealth.

"We mean to hold this money," he said, "until Britain establishes her right to it. We mean to get this issue before a court in which there can be no suggestion of any loading of the dice against Ireland."

3 Women Forced to Shield Bank Bandits With $30,000

Fort Scott, Kans., June 17 (A.P.). Officers of Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma joined tonight in a search for five men who robbed the Citizens National Bank of $30,000 here today and escaped by forcing three young women to shield their flight.

Lee McCreedy, Fort Scott fireman, who approached the bank as the robbers emerged, identified one of the men who carried a machine gun, as Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, from published photographs of the Oklahoma outlaw.

As the five men left the bank they forced two women customers, Fern Kerr and Eula Kepley, and Mildred Baucom, a bank clerk, to accompany them. Miss Kepley and Miss Baucom were told to enter the car and put their heads out of the windows. Miss Kerr resisted and was released. The other two women were let out of the black sedan driven by the robbers several blocks from the bank. Miss Kerr was taken to her home extremely nervous.

Harry Parrish, assistant cashier, and Lawrence Wolfe, a teller, were beaten with revolvers when they were slow in turning over keys to money compartments demanded by the bandits.

10 DEAD, 17 MISSING IN BLASTS AT HUGE MONTREAL DRY DOCK

cue their injured companions and workmen.

Fire Chief Raoul Gautheir, former president of the Dominion Fire Chiefs Association and known far and wide for his courage in other disasters, died with three of his subordinates in the second and most terrific of the blasts. They were burned to death within sight of their comrades, helpless to fight their way through the raging flames to assist them.

The firemen killed were Paul Henrichon, J. Debrienne and J. Hanelin. The six workmen known to be dead were John Ewen, James Wilson, John Riddell, James Corbett, Donald Dunn and William Atherton.

The missing men are J. Riley, A. Tudor, R. Cagnow, A. Jones, W. Gillespie, J. Larimee, M. Snowden, J. Ford, R. Butt, T. Boone, J. Legge, W. Tardis, H. Rock, Jack Devlin, T. Hulhan, J. Briggs and J. Cardiff.

The search for the bodies was hindered by the intense heat of the Cymbeline's plates, but officials believed the seventeen bodies would be found in the torn and twisted interior. An attempt will be made to raise the badly damaged drydock, which had been towed here from England. It was partly filled with water as it sank after the detonations.

None of the 34 members of the crew, who were asleep when the first blast shook the vessel from stem to stern, was killed or seriously injured.

"We were thrown all over the place," said one. "We scrambled about like rats trying to find our way out of the darkness."

A red-hot rivet, poked through the tanker's steel plates, reacted like a torch to tinder in the gas-filled hull. The Cymbeline's main fuel tanks burst into fragments with a roar that awoke most of Montreal's residents and caused widespread excitement along the waterfront.

A hundred men had been detailed to repair the Cymbeline, which had been damaged in grounding in the St. Lawrence River. They were working in the early morning darkness when, with death-dealing suddenness, the tanker was torn wide open.

Flaming oil leaped 100 feet in the air as scores of firemen rushed to the great Vickers Drydock and started to throw huge streams of water on the tanker.

The last and most terrifying explosion occurred while firemen sought to check the vicious flames. The blast sent blazing oil high in the air, threw men's bodies into the harbor, and sent many, their faces torn and bleeding, staggering away from the dock, many with broken arms and others with broken legs dragging themselves agonizingly along.

As smoke cleared away and surviving firemen—fifteen had been injured in addition to those killed—and volunteers started to carry dead and injured away, women and children, crying hysterically, fought police lines in an effort to peer into the faces of the victims.

Firemen, many with tears streaming down their cheeks after being told their chief probably had died, finally brought the fire under control about eight hours after the first explosion. They would make no estimate of the property damage.

Chicago Teachers Seek Pay Relief From Mayor

Chicago, June 17 (A.P.).—Several hundred school teachers, seeking back pay before the summer vacation, marched to Mayor A. J. Cermak's office to demand relief today.

The mayor was booed when he informed the teachers the board of education was responsible for their financial plight. Then he was cheered as he promised them help. Bankers declared that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which has been asked for help, can not legally lend money for teachers' salaries.

Strong-Arm Thief Gets Trunk Laden With Gold

Kinston, N. C., June 17 (A.P.).—A bold bandit with a lot of muscle was free today with $1,000 that once belonged to John Turnage. Last night he entered Turnage's home and went to a room in which several people were sitting.

In the same room was Turnage's trunk containing $1,000 in gold and bills. The man held up those present, picked up the trunk and fled to the woods near Turnage's home in Greene County, rifled the trunk and disappeared.

SHAKE-UP RUMORED IN MEXICAN REGIME

Secretary of War Calles Is Hurrying to New York With Ill Wife.

Mexico City, June 17 (A.P.).—Widespread rumors of a shake-up in the Government of Mexico cropped up today as her secretary of war, Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles started for New York with his wife, who was desperately ill of meningitis.

There was no official confirmation of any report dealing with political changes except those which Gen. Calles ordered before his departure.

These included the transfer of several military commands and the placing of the ministry of war under Gen. Pablo Quiroga. Then Gen. Calles obtained permission from the president to leave the country.

The Gen. and Mrs. Calles left Mexico City during the night in a special train, which was due to cross the international border at Laredo, Tex., late tonight or early tomorrow.

There the train will be broken up and the general's special car attached to fast American trains for New York, where Mrs. Calles will be transferred to the sanatorium of Dr. J. J. Eller. An operation probably will be performed. Dr. Eller is a son-in-law of Gen. Calles.

The route to New York will be via Laredo, San Antonio, and St. Louis.

Meanwhile, the chamber of deputies today granted special powers to President Ortiz Rubio to readjust federal expenditures in order to balance the budget. The president had asked extraordinary authority to keep expenditures within income and prevent a deficit of about 50,000,000 pesos.

Cripple's Starvers Are Found Insane

Victim's Mother and Brother Will Be Committed to Institution.

Baltimore, June 17 (A.P.).—The mother and brother of the 26-year-old cripple, starved to death ten weeks ago "to drive out devils that possessed him," were found insane and not legally responsible for his death in a verdict given later today by a coroner. They were ordered held in a local hospital, and will be committed to an institution later.

Mrs. Annie Aubel, 55, the mother, and Paul Aubel, 30, the brother of the cripple, Grant Aubel, an arthritic victim, were examined today by two Baltimore alienists at the request of the authorities.

The body was found on a couch by police who entered the Aubel home yesterday under a ruse. A diary, kept by Paul Aubel, said Grant had died April 4, and predicted his resurrection on June 24.

BRITISH UNDERTAKE HUNT FOR FAWCETT

Expedition Starts Today for Brazil to Seek Explorer Lost Seven Years.

London, June 17 (A.P.).—A British expedition will leave here tomorrow to back-track the 7-year-old trail of Col. H. P. Fawcett, explorer and mystic, into the inner jungles of Brazil's vast Matto Grosso.

The expedition was inspired in part by the tale of a Swiss trapper, Stephan Rattin, that he saw Fawcett alive and well last October between the Tapajos and Madeira Rivers. The trapper said the Britisher was a captive of Indians and asked that a message be given the nearest British consul.

Leaders of the enterprise will include Robert Churchward, who explored the Aracuaya River last year, and Capt. John G. Holman, a native Brazilian hunter and engineer.

Like Fawcett the explorers will start from Cuyada on the edge of Matto Grosso. They will proceed to the headwaters of the River of Death (Rio das Nortes). Thence they will go into the Araguaya River by canoe to the Island of Bananal.

From this largest fresh water island in the world, the party will go on up the Araguaya to Para, Brazil, a total distance of some 1,500 miles from Cuyaba.

The search for Fawcett, who disappeared hunting for a Garden of Eden and lost civilization antedating the biblical earthly paradise, will be intensified in the territory west of Bamanal, or roughly about 12.20 south latitude and 52.30 west longitude.

This locality is somewhat further West than is the native village where Rattin said he saw Fawcett last fall. Many authorities have explored the area and returned with the conviction Fawcett was dead, but others, including Churchward, believe him to be alive. Most stories disagree in various details of this point.

BRUENING CHEERED AS REICH'S SAVIOOR

Former Chancellor Is Given Ovation; Hitlerites Stir Row With Uniforms.

Mains, Germany, June 17 (A.P.).—Making his first public address since he was ousted from the chancellorship, Dr. Heinrich Bruening received a tremendous welcome tonight when he appeared before a Hessian election campaign meeting. He was greeted as "the savior of Germany."

The campaign has resurrected a slogan of the 1906 election—"from the commandant's sabres we shall not flinch." This is a reference to the military character of the von Papen cabinet.

In defense of his administration Dr. Bruening declared it was the goal of his Centrist party to bring about a united Germany.

A crowd of 5,000 persons gave him one of the stormiest demonstrations of his career.

Munich, Germany, June 17 (A.P.).—A tumultuous row took place in the session of the Bavarian Diet today, when the presiding officer requested the National Socialist members, who appeared in their uniforms, to leave the hall.

The Nazis, whose right to wear the uniforms was restored today by an emergency decree of the von Papen cabinet at Berlin, shouted "Hail Hitler!" and declined to leave.

The session was suspended immediately.

Strong protests were made by the Bavarian government yesterday against the decree. The provincial government took modification in its own hands and ruled that the ban on open-air political demonstrations would remain in force although uniforms might be worn on certain occasions.

This afternoon the government ruled that because of the disturbance in the Diet the wearing of party uniforms would be forbidden until further notice.

Nevertheless, when the Diet reassembled the Nazis were still in uniform. The president asked them to leave, but they refused. Then the police were called in and the offending members were hauled out one at a tim.

State troopers scattered the pickets. Harold McIe was arrested. Company officials said some men quit work at its Carolina, Monongah and Rivesville mines, but that all are continuing to operate.

The strike was called yesterday by the United Mine Workers of America. Van Bittner, of the U. M. W., said the union has asked company officials to negotiate a union wage scale.

St. Patrick's Church Bans Standing Room

The crowds attending St. Patrick's Catholic Church, Tenth street northwest, between F and G streets, have become so great, especially at the 12 o'clock mass on Sundays and Holy Days, that the church has been obliged to put into effect "Section 1, Article XV, of the Police Regulations," which rules against persons standing in aisles in theaters and other public places where entrances and exits must be free from obstruction.

The Right Rev. C. F. Thomas, the pastor of St. Patrick's Church, announced yesterday that beginning tomorrow there will be no standing allowed in the aisles of the church, and when all the seats are occupied straps will be placed on the front doors of the church to bar entrance.

BIG SCHWAB PROFIT IN FIRM SALE BARED

Hearing of Suit for Broker's Fee in Tool Company Deal Is Started.

New York, June 17 (A.P.).—Details of the sale by Charles M. Schwab in 1927 of the Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co. for a price in excess of the market value were given today during hearing of a suit by two consulting engineers to collect a 2 per cent broker's fee from the purchasers.

Cortlandt J. Langley, confidential agent of Mr. Schwab, appearing for the plaintiffs, Victor Soskice and Michael Kay, consulting engineers, testified that after three months of secret negotiations the banking firms of August Belmont & Co and James Speyer & Co. had agreed to buy all the 94,179 shares of Pneumatic Tool Co. stock for $175 a share. Pneumatic Tool was then $130 a share on the market.

Langley also corroborated the plaintiff's contention that they were to have received a 1 per cent broker's fee each, as part of the bargain. Previously, Soskice and Kay had repudiated an agreement signed on January 27, 1928, by which they received $6,250 each "in full payment" for their services. They testified they were induced to sign such releases because Morgan Belmont had said "it didn't mean a thing," but merely represented an accommodation to Schwab, who was "short of cash" at the time.

Langley said Mr. Schwab had expressed a desire to dispose of all his business interests except the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and the American Steel Institute, and throughout the negotiations he had insisted on secrecy.

"If this is hawked about and gets back to me," Langley quoted Schwab as saying, "I will repudiate it and you, too."

Baraca-Philathea Group Hears Talks

Record-Breaking Attendance at Meeting Preceded by Supper.

The thirty-third annual convention of the world-wide Baraca-Philathea Movement, in session at the Mayflower Hotel, ended the third day of its program last night with a record-breaking congregation attending the meeting held at the First Covenant Church, Eighteenth and N streets northwest.

The main speaker of the evening, Miss Henrietta Heron, of Washington, president of the movement, speaking before an electric, flower-decorated cross, made an impressive talk on "Life's Crosses." This was followed by an address by Dr. Ross Stover, of Philadelphia, on "An Up-to-Date Christian."

The convention, featuring Homer Rodeheaver, famous "Billy" Sunday song leader, opened Wednesday night. Mr. Rodeheaver is assisted by his sister, Mrs. Ruth Thomas, of Roanoke. The meeting last night was preceded by a supper at the hotel. A banquet will be held tomorrow night at the Shoreham Hotel. The convention will adjourn Sunday.

FOX SOLD HIS STOCK SHORT, QUIZ SHOWS

mittee to obtain from the Treasury complete income tax information on Fox and all others named in the testimony as receiving money from pools or other operations.

Action on the motion was deferred until the committee has opportunity for an executive session, but Chairman Norbeck (Republican), South Dakota, said he had been informed it had "plenty of authority" to obtain such information.

Mr. Fox himself was absent as Mr. Gray presented the lengthy testimony, although he had come to Washington from New York. For the second day his attorney came to the committee room to say Mr. Fox was too ill to appear. The hearing had been postponed from Thursday so that he might testify.

Mr. Gray and the Fox attorney, Benjamin Reass, of New York, differed sharply as to whether the organizer of Fox Film and Fox Theater Corporations was able to attend. Mr. Gray asserted a doctor he had sent to Mr. Fox's hotel reported him perfectly able to come, while Mr. Reass said he had a physician's certificate to the contrary.

The committee also returned briefly to its inquiry into Continental Shares, Inc., of Cleveland, about which testimony was presented at length yesterday.

Ferdinand Eberstadt, a former partner of Otis & Co., in which Cyrus Eaton, organizer of Continental Shares, was also a partner, testified he did not believe Chase National Bank, in October, 1930, used money that was to go to Continental Shares as a loan to help Otis & Co. out of financial difficulties. Mr. Gray contended it did.

Mr. Eberstadt added a protest that the inquiry was being conducted "more as a prosecution than an investigation," and said the committee "should not be made the dupe of those who promote investigations of this character for their own interest."

Mr. Gray did not accept Mr. Eberstadt's invitation to question him further on this statement, but Senator Couzens (Republican), Michigan, said the matter had better be taken up in executive session.

The banking committee decided unanimously yesterday to ask the Senate for authority to continue its stock market investigation through next March 4.

THIRD ALARM ..speed and power

The U. S. Government Specifies for its Emergency Use

"...a grade of motor fuel which is suitable for ambulances, fire-engines, emergency vehicles,—"

(Excerpt from Federal Pamphlet, VV-M-571, July 21, 1931)

There's a thrill in watching them going into action . . . A streak of red, a roar of power and they're on their way . . . You, too, can have third alarm speed, and fire engine power under the hood of your own car with every tankful of Texaco Fire-Chief Gasoline!

The United States Government specified this type of motor fuel for use in its own fire engines and other emergency vehicles. Naturally, being an "emergency" fuel, Texaco Fire-Chief gives extra power—faster work on the throttle.

It more than meets highest government specifications for distillation range and vapor pressure. It's anti-knock with an Octane Rating that is outstanding. Yet Texaco Fire-Chief costs no more than the regular non-premium priced gasolines.

Drive up to the familiar red Texaco pump today for Texaco Fire-Chief Gasoline or the silver Texaco pump for Fire-Chief Ethyl.

"Liquid lightning" is about the only way to describe these super-powered motor fuels. Both are available everywhere in all our 48 States.

ORGAN AND CHIMES SERVICES ARRANGED

National City Christian Will Give Informal Evening Music Programs.

Beginning Sunday evening and continuing through the summer months, the National City Christian Church will hold an evening bells service instead of the regular Sunday evening preaching service. The service will begin at 7:45 o'clock, and will consist chiefly of numbers played on the tower chimes and the organ by Robert Ruckman, organist, with a brief devotional period led by the minister, Dr. H. H. Harmon. There will be no sermon. The hour is intended to be a time of meditation and quiet worship and will be informal, those who attend being free to come and go as they desire. Dr. Harmon's morning sermon subject will be "With Jesus in the Garden." The chorus choir will sing "The Lord's Prayer," an anthem from the library of the choir of the Imperial Chapel, Leningrad, of which the composer, Apletscheieff, was the director. There will also be a quintet number, "Saviour, Like a Shepherd Lead Us," sung by the regular quartet of the church, assisted by Mrs. Henry C. Littlefield, soprano.

Le Rendezvous Society will follow its social tea hour at 6 o'clock with a program dealing with the peoples of the Southern mountains and with the French Acadians of Louisiana. This is one of a series of "round the world" programs to be given during the summer months, which will emphasize the contributions made by the countries visited in the fields of religion, literature and art.

On Thursday and Friday, June 23-24, the Non Pareil Society of the National City Christian Church will be host to the Intermediate Christian Endeavor Union of the District. The meetings will be held in the Vermont avenue building.

The annual church school picnic will be held at Chesapeake Beach on Saturday afternoon, June 25.

52 Clerics Are Studying at College of Preachers

Fifty-two clergymen representing fourteen States are attending the eighth annual summer conference under the auspices of the College of Preachers at Washington Cathedral this week upon invitation of the Bishop of Washington, the Right Rev. Dr. James E. Freeman, and the warden of the college, the Right Rev. Dr. Philip M. Rhinelander. The leaders and the subjects of their lectures are as follows:

The Rev. Dr. Frank Gavin, professor of ecclesiastical history at the General Theological Seminary, on "Some Aspects of the Anglican Tradition;" the Rev. Dr. Willard Sperry, dean of the Harvard Divinity School at Cambridge, on "The Technique of Preaching," and the Rev. Dr. Leicester Lewis, of Philadelphia, "Recent Developments in European Theology."

The conference members are in residence in the College of Preachers Building on Woodley road and in Whitby Hall. Their daily schedule calls for celebration of the Holy Communion, meditations, lectures, conferences and hours of recreation in the afternoon. This conference concludes the series which has been conducted since last autumn under the general direction of Bishop Rhinelander and his associates. Figures recently compiled show that since the College of Preachers plan was inaugurated by the Cathedral Chapter in the summer of 1925 more than 1,000 clergy and laymen in the Episcopal Church have attended conferences under these auspices. Many of the clergy in remote parts of the country are utilizing the book service of the college library, which makes available to them by mail the latest religious reading matter.

Summer Schedule Planned By Mt. Pleasant Church

The summer schedule of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church will begin next week and continue until September 11.

At the final Sunday morning service tomorrow, preceding the vacation period, the minister, the Rev. Russell J. Clinchy, will preach on "Certifying Our Hopes." The church school will hold its closing session one week from tomorrow morning, reopening September 11.

Beginning a week from tomorrow, the members of Mount Pleasant Church will cooperate with All Souls' Unitarian and the National Universalist Memorial churches in a series of twelve union summer services, four of which will be held in the Mount Pleasant Church, on July 24 and 31 and August 7 and 14.

The young people's organizations of Mount Pleasant Church have elected the following officers for the new church year, beginning in September:

Young People's Forum: President, Miss Bertha Lockhart; vice president, Folsom Norsworthy; secretary, Miss Ruth Kizer; treasurer, William Powell; chairman, program committee, Miss Elizabeth Brubaker; chairman, membership committee, Miss Cleo Williamson; chairman, social committee, Robert Livingston; chairman, refreshment committee, Miss Louisa Stuart.

ESTABLISHING DUMMY'S SUIT.

THE question of reentries into a hand, after a suit has been established upon which losing cards in other suits may be discarded, is always one of vital importance. It is one of the many reasons why a careful plan for the play of the hand should be made as soon as the contracting is ended and the first lead made by the opposing player.

An interesting example of the careful planning of the play of the Dummy was given recently at the Tri-State Bridge Tournament at Uniontown, Pa., Mrs. Harry E. Potts being the only player, holding the South cards, to make the game in hearts which was bid by practically all North and South partnerships.

West—Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.

The Bidding.

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
	Pass	1♠	Pass
2♡	Pass	3♡(1)	Pass
4♡(2)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—North's hand appears very strong, but in measuring its Rebid value it contains only one Raise for partner's Takeout. The spade suit, of course, is not rebiddable. The alternative bid would be notrump. Game at notrump can not be made against the strongest defense.

2—South's Rebid is justified.

The Opening lead was the 5 of diamonds, which was won with Ace in Dummy, and Mrs. Potts planned her play for what seemed a reasonably easy hand, particularly if West held the spade Ace. The solidity of the trump suit seemed assured, and if the spades could be readily established, losers in clubs could be discarded on established low cards in that suit.

The Queen of hearts was then led from Dummy, and a small heart led to the closed hand. When both East and West followed to the second round of hearts Mrs. Potts knew that she was not faced with an unfavorable division of trumps. She then led a small spade, which West refused to win. The trick was won with the King in Dummy, East dropping the Ten.

The question of making the game now depended upon driving out the spade Ace before the club Ace was taken from the Dummy. The drop of the Ten, while it might possibly mean a singleton, appeared improbable, due to the distribution of the Dummy and South hands. Mrs. Potts decided that the most probable distribution of the spades was two in the East hand and four in the West, the West holding probably including the Ace. She therefore now led the spade Queen, and when the Knave of spades dropped from the East hand the success of her plan of play seemed assured. West won the trick with the Ace, and returned a club to remove an entry from the Dummy. The Ace was played, the 5 of spades returned and ruffed with the heart King in the closed hand. East's last trump was then picked up by leading a small heart to the Knave, which had been retained in the Dummy as an essential reentry, and two clubs discarded on the now established spades, thereby making the contract of four-odd, which was attainable by no other line of play.

TODAY'S POINTER.

The question of retaining a means of entry into one hand or the other—that is, maintaining a line of communication—is vital to the play of almost every hand. It is useless to establish low cards in a suit in the Dummy if the Dummy retains no card by which the value of these established cards may be realized.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

A Dah-ray design for your telephone screen or a wall plaque, perhaps?

NEW YORK, June 17.—How very truly do our surroundings express ourselves!

Nothing—not lack of time, nor lack of money, nor lack of ambition, nor any of the other lacks by which people lacking in good taste try to excuse themselves, actually does excuse uninteresting, inartistic surroundings.

It doesn't matter whether you are surrounded with the most atrocious and shabby furniture, whether your vista be one of intermittent washings and radio aerials, whether the rent is paid or not—or who pays it. What matters is what you do with all these things. A truly lovely lady throws a pillow here, sets a vase there, has a bookcase instead of a "cozy corner" and her surroundings are hers. Her need for an artistic frame has given her the insight—her brains and clever fingers do the rest.

* * * *

Of all the needs of civilization, I do think that the telephone is the most needful—and the least artistic. Why, even typewriters have become somebody these days—and bathrooms are poems in pastels! But the telephone goes on forever—seemingly—jangling its shrill little bell, coiling its brown wires, hiding its innermost parts in a black and mysterious and certainly ugly box.

Many a lovely lady has sighed about it—and wondered what to do about it. Well, so have we. And we don't like those doll things whose skirts conceal the telephone, either!

So whatever? Well, we just racked and racked the few poor brains we had left, and tried to figure out ways to make the telephone a thing of beauty and a joy almost forever—and do you know, I believe we succeeded? Anyhow, whoever used to come to our house to play—when we had a house, that is, was always charmed with our telephone concealments.

So, things being as they were, and now as they are, we just thought you might like to know some clever and original ways to conceal the telephone in your midst, too! And how to make the things that hide this instrument, with your own clever fingers, perhaps during vacation time. So there's a leaflet telling you how to make telephone hidies, all ready and waiting for your stamped, self-addressed envelope—which, you know, you must send to the Dare Department of The Washington Post. Are you inter-r-r-r-rested?

What does today's design mean? It means that you can cut it out and save it to trace onto a telephone hidie! Or you can just trace it onto anything you wish—whatever it means, it's a Dah-ray design in good standing, directly inspired by living at Dawn Mirage—rimmed around with mountains and very much in the shade at this minute—but not the kind of shade you think I mean!

* * * *

Hear a lot about "cire" ribbon these days. Yes, and do you know how to pronounce it, ex-actly? You must say "see-ray," you know. And then of course you know that "cire" means "shiney" or "shellacked?" And that cire ribbons are not as stiff as you think they are by looking at them.

Cire ribbon makes most chic little hats. It sashes and bows, and trims all over the place. And if you like, it makes a smart binding—which is likewise a trimming. Not to mention "fouffffffs," which are just what you think they are—and trim this and that in miladi's boudoir wardrobe.

Au revoir.

Advice on Gardening

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me how to make kerosene emulsion.

MRS. ALLEN K. P.

Kerosene emulsion is made by combining two gallons of kerosene, one-half pound of whale-oil soap or one quart of soft soap with one gallon of water. The soap should be dissolved in boiling water and then poured while still warm (away from the fire) into the kerosene. The mixture must then be churned violently for about five minutes by means of a force pump. At the end of this time the mixture will have become the consistency of thick cream. This emulsion will keep indefinitely. Dilute it only as you need it. For most insects except scale or bark lice the staple emulsion should be diluted with from fifteen to twenty parts of water.

I have a stretch at the foot of my garden where the sun shines virtually all day. The soil is fairly rich and it is well drained. Would such a location do for zinnias.

MRS. LAURA W.

Yes.

Please give a list of bulbs suitable for use in a rock garden.

MRS. PETER F. B.

Chionodoxa, crocus, jonquils, snowdrops, Spanish iris, Lilioum tenuifolium, muscari, Scilla sibirica and Tulipa clusiana.

Please tell me how to propagate a hibiscus. I have two large plants.

NANCY E. F.

Hibiscus may be propagated from seeds which will produce blooms the first year if the seeds are sown early enough. The roots are easily divided and one can always be sure that the plants will come true to form from root divisions.

Please tell me whether lavender requires much sun. I have some clumps planted in shade which never do well and I have been wondering if it is a case of too little sun.

MRS. GEORGE D. A.

Lavender requires a sunny situation and a light soil.

Can the matilija poppy be grown from seed or must I use root cuttings?

MRS. BERTRAM F.

Yes, but this method is rather unsatisfactory; it is much better to use root cuttings.

Please tell me of at least two everlasting varieties of plants aside from straw flowers, which I now have.

FREDA R. P.

Xeranthemum, acroclinium, lunaria (honesty) and gompherna (globe flower).

I have been having trouble with the borers in my iris. I can't be certain that I get all the borers by digging and I have been wondering if a solution of lime water poured around the iris will help any. J. L. S.

Lime water will cause earth worms to come to the surface, but we doubt whether it would do the same with iris borers, much less destroy the borers in the ground. It is much more practical to lift the plants, examine the roots and where you note the presence of the borers cut open the corms and remove the borers. When you replant the roots you must, however, plant them in a different location.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Love That Lasts.

DEAR Frances McDonald: I've written to you before, but somehow did not get an answer. So I'll try again. I read your column and enjoy it immensely and have also benefited by your advice a number of times. Here's my story:

Is it possible for a girl to be incapable of truly loving one man? I was married when I was quite young and my husband broke all the rules of our marriage vows. But in the last three years that we have been separated I've decided that if I honestly had loved him I would have stuck it out. In the past year I have had two proposals from very intelligent young men. The first, I thought I was desperately in love with—but this passed off in a short while. The second I was all ready to marry and now I can't stand the sight of him.

What's worrying me? I want to marry again and have a home, but I want a man that I will be willing to die for if necessary, or at least one that I'll be able to endure having around for at least the rest of my life. I assure you I most certainly don't want to go into the divorce courts again a second time. I wonder if there are many girls like me. Can you help me out?

"TWENTY-SEVEN."

You tell your whole story when you state you want a man you "would die for." Like millions of other girls, you are out for some high-powered experience that will thrill you for life. Well, marriage is not like that at all. Neither your marriage nor any other woman's! You seem even regretful that you could not have been blind to infidelity and betrayal, because of some so-called great love for a scamp! Where on earth do you get such ideas? If he broke all the rules and vows of marriage, be assured he would have broken your heart, too. So put him out of the picture. And begin to study life. Who are the happiest people? The ones who are always "desperate" over someone or other? The ones who are ever chasing thrills? Or the ones who have at last found their stride and who manage an even pace and a steady step?

You could marry a dozen men, and if you married each time merely because of emotional urge, you would be as far from contentment the twelfth time as the first. Because there must be something more between two people than mere emotionalism. There must be a grave concern for each other's welfare and happiness, a deep and well-founded respect for each other's intelligence and character, and honor and integrity. So long as either one is merely seeking emotional exaltation, the marriage is doomed.

Stop and think a while, instead of wildly dashing from experience to experience, from sensation to sensation. Come down to earth. What are the things that make life lovely, livable? Thrills? Being "ready to die for" somebody? Or being ready to live for somebody? Grow up. Be a woman. And pick a man worth living for, and live for him and with him till the evening shadows fall. That is life and marriage.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

IS VEGETARIANISM GOOD OR BAD?

A CORRESPONDENT sends us a clipping in which Prof. G. Wakeham, of the University of Colorado, is quoted as making a report on vegetarianism to the American Chemical Society. He found that lifelong, consistent followers of the vegetarian cult had a metabolism rate 9 per cent below the normal.

What is called the metabolism rate is a measure of the speed at which the fires of the human body are burning. When this rate is quite low we compare it to a fire that has been banked or, better still, one that has been "bedded down for the night," by the owner of the premises. On the other hand, when the rate is higher than normal, we compare it to a fire on which some one has put coal oil or a fat pine knot, or—perhaps a better illustration—a fire where the ashes have been removed and the flues opened.

Accompanying the clipping sent is a letter in which it is stated that these high fires burn out the grates or, in terms of human well being, wear out the kidneys and the blood vessels. The suggestion is made that the slow-living vegetarian lives longer than the fast-living meat eater. The advocates of meat eating call attention to the shortness of the span of life of certain vegetarian peoples. The vegetarian defenders reply that this is because of the low standards of cleanliness and health and the economic hardships of such people, and claim that if they dwelt on high economic levels and according to good sanitary standards they would live to a great age.

There is considerable proof from other sources that animals can live on a plane of a low rate of metabolism. When fish live in mud or survive freezing it is because, while so existing, their fires have been banked. Toads have their fires banked when they live for long periods in places where no active toad could survive. When men have fasted for 40 days or more, scientific study has shown that their fires burned brightly for the first few days of the experience, and then gradually died down. During the latter part of the fast their metabolism rate was not much above that of cold-blooded animals. East Indian fakirs who permit themselves to be buried alive and are in fair condition when dug up are said to be able voluntarily to bank their fires. During the period of apparent death their metabolism rate is very low. Hibernating animals have very low rates when they lay up for the winter.

Some men have chronically low blood pressure as a result of starch and sugar indigestion. They get snappier and have higher pressure when they shift from a starch and sugar rich diet to one that is poor in these foods and rich in meats and fats.

These are some facts that throw sidelights on the age-old fight between two groups of people. No claim is made that either these sidelights or the original report settles the main question, or even any question. Prof. Wakeham says:

"It will be asked at once whether, in the light of this work, vegetarianism is good or bad. For the present, this is a matter of interpretation."

This study merely records an observed difference between the average basal-metabolic rates of meat eaters and those of vegetarians.

HOW TO GET SLEEP.

N. A. H. writes: Formerly, every spring and fall, I had pains in my back. After an endless series of "cures," none of which cured, a physician gave it as his opinion that the mattress on my bed was too soft, the too deep curve causing a nightly stretch and strain on spinal nerves, muscles and bones. His recommendation was a simple board slat framework, slightly smaller in length and width than the mattress.

A carpenter made it for me at practically no cost. I placed it over bedspring and under mattress, making firm, comfortable support for my back. One hundred per cent relief was immediate and permanent. I used it for several years, took it out a few months ago just to see what would happen, but have had no pains. Actually, I preferred the hard bed to the mushy feeling of a soft mattress.

REPLY.

Did you ever sleep in a hammock? Try it and find your argument multiplied.

COLD SORES.

E. E. G. writes:

1. What is the cause of cold sores?
2. How can they be prevented?
3. What is a good treatment for them?

REPLY.

1. The usual cause is an infection such as common cold, or pneumonia.
2. By avoiding the cause.
3. Applying camphor ointment is generally satisfactory within limits. Nature cures.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

Expert Answers Readers' Questions.

M. H. asks: "Can anything be done to prevent chains and necklaces from darkening the neck?"

If the chain you are wearing is a good one the fact that it leaves a dark mark on the neck may indicate acid in the system. But if you will clean the chain thoroughly with soap and water or a little ammonia and water and dry thoroughly, then paint the chain with colorless gloss or nail polish, I think you will find this treatment helpful. You need not cover the entire chain, merely the links that come in direct contact with the neck and leave the discoloration.

Constant Reader writes: "Please answer this question. What causes the blood to come to my face almost every evening? My face gets hot and red and in two hours the trouble seems to pass away."

I would advise you to consult your physician immediately. Many middle-aged women suffer from what is commonly called "flushes" which your description indicates may be troubling you. Your physician is the one to diagnose and recommend remedy.

X. Y. Z. writes: "Could you please tell me how to make fat lips small and thin. I am a girl of 14 and have lips that I am sure are too large. I've whistled, which does no good, and tried other ways. I use no lipstick, so I couldn't make thin lines."

It is very difficult to change the original shape of one's features, and beauty standards have changed to such an extent that the generous mouth has its advocates just as the small, cupid's bow mouth has its admirers. Make a conscious effort to hold your lips firmly. Whistling is a good exercise, so is blowing bubbles. Massage may help somewhat. Pucker lips and massage gently with a good cream before retiring. And don't worry. In another year or two you will be able to use make-up advisedly to make the lips appear smaller.

"Permanent Prospect" says: "I have been taking iodine treatments for my hair and scalp and my operator tells me that I can not have a permanent wave."

Iodine treatments are usually beneficial for the scalp, but sometimes inclined to make the hair brittle and breakable and, if in a weakened condition, the hair will bend and break when a permanent is given. A few oil treatments should be beneficial, particularly if a good oil scalp food is massaged well into the scalp and through the hair.

What Today Means

"GEMINI."

IF June 18 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a. m. to 11:45 a. m., from 4:45 p. m. to 6 p. m., and from 9 p. m. to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 9:20 a. m. and from 7:30 p. m. to 9 p. m.

A tranquil period is not foreseen for Saturday, June 18, and probably contention with friends or associates—outside the home—may spoil all possible enjoyment of the day. More play and less work is advised, as neither hand nor mind will be in shape for profitable work.

Mothers who bear children on this June 18 will find their offspring too self-willed and set of purpose to expect loving or affectionate natures. They will be high-spirited and will require careful handling. They will have alert comprehensive minds and will be fond of sports and games.

Born on June 18, you are a very transparent person, showing anger, pride and amusement too plainly for any concealment of your feelings. Even when you try to mask your likes or dislikes, your face or manner is sure to "give the show away." You are given to taking unaccountable antipathies. You do not take advice well, and if forced upon you, your inborn contrariness drives you to do the opposite. The only way to handle you is to give you your head, although having your own way will not always inure to your good.

To be perpetually in the company of other people irks you very much, and a certain amount of privacy is as essential to you as sleep, for the sake of both your health and peace of mind. If you have books, you do not ask for people. Contentment is something which you will scarcely find, and it will always be "anything for a change." It may be left to a German poet, in the words—"There where thou art not, there alone is bliss"—to hit the keynote of your restless temperament.

Your fellow-traveler for life's long journey should not be chosen until your character is well formed and ripened. Travel in double harness will be difficult for you, for steady diet at the best.

Arlington Monarch Club To Boost Membership

Plans for the carrying on of an extensive drive for new members and to arouse more interest in the Arlington County Monarch Club were outlined yesterday by A. Dewight McKee, national extension secretary.

Mr. McKee, who came to the county yesterday, stated that it will be his purpose to increase the present membership of the local club which today is but 35. PALACE

"THUNDER BELOW." Paramount picturization of the novel by Thomas Rourke, adapted to the screen by Josephine Lovett and Joseph Buchman, starring Tallulah Bankhead, with Charles Bickford and Paul Lukas. Directed by Richard Wallace. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

In some obscure philosophy it seems that "thunder below" was the native designation of an earthquake, and, by some odd exercise of logic was held also to be synonymous with love. The analogy except in a few extreme cases, would appear to be just a trifle nebulous. No more so, however, than Mr. Thomas Rourke's purpose in limning the character of his heroine—if that is what she was—in the somber tints he did. For Susan, in this tale of one of the oil industry's isolated outposts in tropical Latin-America, is as drab a creature as one would care—or care not—to meet.

In fact, in casting Miss Tallulah Bankhead in the part, Paramount has done this competent actress a distinct injustice by insisting that she be a tragedienne. It must be her voice. The Bankhead vocal organ is deep and throaty and excellently well modulated to the sepulchral lamentations of thwarted love and the hapless plaints of the abject defeatist. There is not a sparkle in a ton of such celluloid as this.

Miss Bankhead, that you may get the straight of the matter, is the wife of Walt, boss of the jungle camp, secretly—to everyone but her—loved by his bosom friend and right-hand man, Ken. Man's legendary fidelity to man and Ken's resultant devotion to the pal who we are led to believe, had taken him prisoner in the war, forestalls any serious consequence of this familiarly triangular situation until Walt loses his eyesight and a trespasser by the name of Davis arrives in the camp from a rival outfit. Then is precipitated the combination of circumstances that demonstrates to Susan the impossible position in which she is placed. She does not love her husband, can not have the man she does love, renounces the alien suitor and solves the whole awkward mess by leaping off a high veranda onto the jagged rocks of the coast below, where presumably her dead body was found days later by a passing clam-digger, or somebody. The men of the party, as the picture ends, do not take the trouble to go see what it was frightened the gulls that usually perched in peace on those rocks!

Miss Bankhead, gowned and negligeed like a Park Avenue debutante, is well enough in her thankless role, except that the whole conception of her character strikes an anomalous note in a play that attempts to transplant a drawing-room plot to the jungles of Central America—or wherever it was.

The men-folk fare considerably better. Charles Bickford is a believable boss, until he becomes blind, and Paul Lukas offers one of his consistently intelligent and plausible performances as the lover with a conscience. Ralph Forbes appears in the brief role of the interloper and is rather the best-looking hombre of the lot. Leslie Fenton is unimportantly cast and brave efforts in the direction of much futile comedy are made by Jimmy Finlayson, erstwile Sennett comic, and Eugene Pallette.

The atmosphere of the tropics is well simulated and a considerable native support sprinkles many of the settlement scenes with characteristic Spanish chatter skillfully written into the action.

The foremost supplementary feature is a Charley Chase comedy, "In Walked Charley," that does not represent this comedian's high point of achievement. A Grantland Rice Sportlight, "Hunting Thrills," a day's outing in the Seminole alligator swamps; a Krazy Kat cartoon comedy, "Hiccups, the Champ," and a new issue of the Metrotone News complete a bill that strengthens the conviction that Tallulah Bankhead could use a good picture!

METROPOLITAN

"SKY DEVILS." United Artists' picturization of an original story by Joseph Moncure March and Edward Sutherland, featuring Spencer Tracy, Ann Dvorak, William (Stage) Boyd and George Cooper. Directed by Edward Sutherland and produced by Howard Hughes. Reviewed Friday evening by Dorothea Lewis.

Just another Flagg and Quirt combination, this. A great deal of rough and ready "masculine," and not particularly funny, slapstick humor is in evidence with only the smooth Mr. Spencer Tracy to make the hoary wisecracks seem good enough to yield a chuckle or two.

The airminded and enthusiastic young Mr. Howard Hughes has now made it unanimous—and probably at one sitting. Having brought angels down in epic fashion, he now lifts the devils up, and the devil air shots are strangely reminiscent of the angels'. Mayhap, "Hell's Angels" is proving the possession of all the rehashing assets that "Trader Horn" has had for M. G. M., and the "Ten Commandments" so recently for Cecil B. DeMille.

Wilkie (Spencer Tracy) and the rather blotto Mitch (George Cooper) can't swim so they get jobs as lifeguards at Coney Island in 1917. There they have their first of a forthcoming interminable series of run-ins with one "One-Punch Hogan" (William "Stage" Boyd).

And when they all go to war, guess what? Hogan is their sergeant and flying instructor. Eventually, Hogan and Wilkie, now bickering buddies, and The Girl, are airily and aerially skipping out for Switzerland and leaving the Army flat. To lighten the load, Wilkie nonchalantly looses the plane's bombs and entirely destroys an enemy munition storehouse. Returning as conquering heroes to their company, Wilkie helps out again by equally nonchalantly loosing a remaining bomb to blow up the welcoming band, general, colonel and all. When last seen, Wilkie, Hogan, Mitch and The Gal are staying right in their plane and going away from there—pronto.

It's all right, if you like its type and aren't fed up with past versions. As previously mentioned, that Likeable Tracy lad is considerable help. So, too, are some nice air shots including elegant clouds, and the new and much publicized Ann Dvorak, being rather ingratiating as The Gal, and incidentally dancing a bit.

William Boyd is well enough as Hogan. Unlike the Quirt-Flagg episode, there is no shifting of sympathy here, it's always with Wilkie and that may be because we've had too much Boyd-villaining. Yola D'Avril, in a brief role, is always welcome, reminding us so much of little Renee Adoree.

A cartoon comedy and a newsreel, featuring the surprise of the year—Hoover's and Curtis' nomination, you know—complete the bill.

RKO-KEITH'S

"STRANGERS OF THE EVENING." Tiffany picturization of the novel, "The Illustrious Corpse," by Tiffany Thayer, featuring Eugene Pallette, Lucien Littlefield, Warner Richmond and Zasu Pitts. Directed by H. Bruce Humberstone. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

Outside of serving its major purpose of furnishing swell mystery-comedy, "Strangers of the Evening" is particularly noteworthy in furnishing a number of usually minor actors choice bits and, further, because it is a vehicle in which said actors, while serious enough so far as the play itself is concerned, all but give the audience a great big Bronx cheer for its gullibility.

That is, when all is said and done—and there is plenty done and more said!—it all turns out to be a perfectly grand hoax in which most every one is taken for a "ride."

Opening with the gay interior of an undertaker's work room (or whatever it is called), the action proceeds to the creation of another corpse. Not satisfied with these, the ghoulishness continues with a couple of disinterments!

Eugene Pallette is the detective sergeant whose duty it becomes to solve what is thought to be a murder—only the corpse disappears, which illustrious corpse later turns up in the person of Lucien Littlefield. Mr. Littlefield, while suffering from amnesia, is befriended by ZaSu Pitts. Theodore Von Eltz and Miriam Seegar furnish the love interest. Among the others involved are Tully Marshall, Warner Richmond, Harold Waldridge, Mahlen Hamilton and Francis Sayles.

If you care for chills playing tag up and down your spine, and enjoy being knocked loose from your chair by the sheer ridiculousness of the situations—then "Strangers of the Evening" is your picture.

The audience eats it up with no less avidity than is shown by the cast at the finish. All this cast—composed of what might be called the lesser lights—needs to do at the end is to step out of character and give the audience the horse laugh. That's how they play it. Swell fun!

Far more important from the standpoint of the cinematographic art is "The Tragedy of Everest," a pictorial account of the ascent of the "Goddess Mother of the World," directed by one Capt. Noel, with synchronized narrative by David Ross. Only in "The White Hell of Pitz Palu" has such a story been filmed—a story of man's attempt to conquer the unconquerable; the pitting of human sapience against the omnipotence of nature. Not only is the essay vividly told against the majestic Himalayan background, but even more indelibly traced is David Ross' reading of the accompanying script.

After seeing "The Tragedy of Everest" the conviction grows that here indeed may be a lasting reminder that man, notwithstanding his knowledge and wisdom, is after all "a little lower than the angels."

Of especial interest to cinemaddicts is "Down Memory Lane," a release of Screen Snapshots, spoken by Hobart Bosworth, bringing a glimpse of the idols of days gone by, including Theodore Roberts, Wallace Reid, Larry Semon, Alma Rubens, Lon Chaney, Rudolph Valentino and a host of others. Pathe News roundsd out a highly meritorious program.

LOEW'S FOX

"WEEK ENDS ONLY." Fox picturization of the novel by Warner Fabian, featuring Joan Bennett, Ben Lyon and John Halliday. Directed by Alan Crosland. Reviewed Friday night by Don B. Reed.

Contrast. Mansions and hall bedrooms; evening gowns and aprons; gilded sport palaces and attic studios; gay lights and dim shadows; worship and insults; love and hate.

That seems to be the story of "Week Ends Only," a tale not new, but in this instance cleverly done by a capable cast, headed by the ever-refreshing Joan Bennett, whose good looks are maintained from riches to poverty and back again.

Miss Bennett moves smoothly through a good role, ably assisted by Ben Lyon and the decidedly artistic, yet villainous, John Halliday. Others who add fine bits are Halliwell Hobbes, Henry Armetta and Walter Byron.

Venetia, played by Miss Bennett, is an heiress as the story opens. The stock market wipes out her father and the blow kills him. Forced to find work, she accidentally meets Martin, her former butler, now manager of the finest speakeasy in New York. She becomes its hostess. In the course of events, she meets and poses for a struggling artist and through friends, aids him. He paints her portrait and is happy. Suddenly he discovers she spends each week-end at a rich man's lodge. Believing the worst, he insults Venetia, goes back to his studio and paints a new portrait as he now sees his former ideal. As might be expected, it wins first prize and a trip to Europe for the artist. Venetia, seeking to forget, plans to visit Europe with her rich friend. There is a sugar-coated finish with just the right amount of suspense and no shooting.

Mr. Lyon, as Jack, the young artist, is better at his love making than his hating, but does a neat piece of work throughout. John Halliday's deft performances have built for him a reputation which suffers not in the least as Arthur, the wealthy clubman. Halliwell Hobbes is a sympathetic Martin, butler and speakeasy manager, while Walter Byron offers one of his typical man-about-town characterizations.

If ever a Loew unit approached the class of the higher-priced revues, this week's "Keep Klowning" production does it. A chorus of 24 Chester Hale Girls in three tricky, well-staged and excellently lighted and costumed numbers, stops the show on three occasions, a feat that hasn't been accomplished here in months.

Collins and Peterson are the principal clowns. They have old stuff and new, all of it laugh producing, and add cornet and vocal solos to their dancing and comedy. Working also with Wesley Eddy, they are close to a panic. Wesley sings "Sugar" and "My Silent Love", in his inimitable manner. Stan Kavanaugh, the Australian juggler, is another hit. Jean and Angie Queen offer a pleasant diversion.

Phil Lampkin and the orchestra score no less than the stage show with a "Bouquet of Roses," including "Mighty Lak' a Rose," "Moonlight and Roses," "Rose of Washington Square," "My Wild Irish Rose," with a trumpet solo by Mr. Lumpkin, and "Roses of Picardy." A comedy, "The Candid Camera," and the Fox Movietone News complete a bill that you won't want to miss.

EARLE

"STREET OF WOMEN." Warner Brothers picturization of the novel by Polan Banks, adapted to the screen by Charles Kenyon and Brown Holmes, starring Kay Francis, with Allen Dinehart, Marjorie Gateson and Roland Young. Directed by Archie Mayo. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

Here is a strictly metropolitan drama, conceived, mounted and acted with an eye single to the opulence and unconventionality that are to be encountered only in centers of huge undertakings, social aloofness and unmeasured wealth.

Such personal detachment as is here depicted does not characterize the life of even the leaders in small communities. It requires the vastness of a great city to permit such clandestine relationships as form the basis of this interesting, but not altogether convincing, story of a successful young woman who made a more successful man out of an already successful one, disrupted his home in the process and even threatened the happiness of her own brother and her married sweetheart's daughter in her eventually triumphant effort to demonstrate that love is a beautiful thing!

The enigmatic title of the picture is predicated upon the thought that behind every great achievement is the inspiration of a woman. The achievement in the present instance is the building of New York skyscrapers. Thus in casual conversation is a string of towering buildings referred to as a "street of women"—and there you are.

Kay Francis is cast in the role of a smart costume designer who owns the most exclusive shop in New York. For three years she has gloried in the love of a married man with family and fortune. Her brother is her idol, as the rich man's daughter is his. These two youngsters while both studying in Paris became engaged. This ordinarily would have sealed the doom of the affair that has been kept from them for obvious reasons. But no. Through the adroit manipulation of the best friend of all concerned, the architect of all those tall buildings, who has given Natalie's brother Clarke his start, the wife is persuaded to seek a Reno divorce, the youngsters are "sold" the idea that the love that has been so assiduously hidden is an ideal thing—and that is that.

The three pivotal roles are played with charm and finesse by Miss Francis, Allan Dinehart, as the married lover, and Marjorie Gateson, as his incompatible and unrelenting wife. The juvenile love interest centers in Gloria Stuart and Allan Vincent and the friend of all the families is portrayed with all of that quizzical humor that makes everything Roland Young does delightful.

The settings throughout the picture are the last word in modernistic artistry. An inelegant word that once was employed to index subjects of such impeccable pictorial quality as this was "class." "Street of Women" possesses it in superabundance.

Headlining the four-act vaudeville bill is Cliff "Ukulele Ike" Edwards, whose appearance is the signal for another demonstration of the value of a screen reputation in furthering one's personal popularity. Never has he made such a hit in Washington as he scored yesterday. His material is about the same as formerly—the songs, of course, are all comparatively new, except his opening "Singing in the Rain," from that colossal "Broadway Melody"—but favorable public reaction to it has been magnified a hundred fold.

The ingenuous Miss Maxine Doyle also introduces the Four Ortons, with some hazardous feats on the tight wire, who are followed by Edgar Bergen and Velma Wayne in an unusually diverting ventriloquial act, "The Operation." Rita Royce, assisted by the Reiss Brothers and Tiny Tina, a seductive chanteuse, offer "Impressions," and make deep ones in so doing. Singers, dancers and comedians par excellence, all four of them.

The Universal News, with Graham McNamee; the Four Mills Brothers, in "I Ain't Got Nobody," a combination song-cartoon reel; Ted Husing's "Sport Slants" and a comedy, "Divorce al la Mode," featuring Raymond Hatton and Harry Myers, augment an expansive entertainment.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

WHILE commentators upon the affairs of the theater, both legitimate and motion picture, have been busy in the compilation of list-of-ten, representing the ten best of this, that and the other—from favorite actors to best directors, finest plays, foremost dramatists and whatnot—the Motion Picture Herald, outstanding among the trade journals devoted exclusively to the cinema, has gone about the compilation of a list of the ten biggest money making stars as determined on the basis of cold cash as reflected by actual box-office statements.

The Herald sought no expressions of personal opinion, but put decision directly up to the box-office by sending this question to all of the representative motion picture exhibitors in the United States and presumably Canada: "Please list the ten players who drew the greatest number of patrons to your theaters since last September, without regard to age of picture, net profit, length of run, nature of competition or conditions (weather, etc.) prevailing during exhibition."

On the strength of the analysis of the first returns in response to this questionnaire, as indicated by advance proof sheets of the issue of The Herald out today, the ten leading box-office names in the industry are, in the order named, Marie Dressler, Janet Gaynor, Joan Crawford, Wallace Beery, Greta Garbo, Will Rogers, Charles Farrell, Norma Shearer, Clarke Gable and Wheeler & Woolsey, as a team.

These ratings may undestandably be altered as further returns are received and tabulated. The percentages scored by the stars named range in a regularly descending graph from Marie Dressler's 91 per cent to Wheeler and Woolsey's 41. The percentage in Marie Dressler's case, for example, means that she was named among the best ten box-office attractions in 91 per cent of all the questionnaires analyzed in the first returns. The other per centages were Janet Gaynor 84, Joan Crawford 75, Wallace Beery 67, Greta Garbo 61, Will Rogers 60, Charlie Farrell 60, Norma Shearer 59.8, Clarke Gable 59 and Wheeler and Woolsey 41.

If you must know who was No. 11, it was Joe E. Brown, with a percentage of 40.4.

By producing companies, this initial rating gives Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer six leaders out of the ten; Fox, three, and Radio, one.

The most amazing feature of the recapitulation of the preliminary returns lies in the distinguished list of names comprising the roster of players whose names appeared on less than 1 per cent of the returned questionnaires.

You'd be surprised!

On the bill at the RKO-Keith Theater for the week that began yesterday is a subject that never failed to elicit an enthusiastic round of applause when it was shown to yesterday's opening-day crowds, thus proving that sentiment is strong in the hearts of the dyed-in-the-wool screen fans.

It is the "Down Memory Lane" issue of the Screen Snapshots, resurrecting silent shots of favorite actors of an earlier day who have answered their last curtain calls. Mabel Normand, Rudolph Valentino, Barbara le Marr, Louis Wolheim, Alma Rubens and a score of others are among those to whom Hobart Bosworth, as an unseen eulogist, pays tribute.

It was pretty quick work, but on the screens of at least the Palace and Loew's Fox yesterday morning were extensive newsreel scenes taken at the Republican national convention out in Chicago. Senator Dickinson's keynote speech and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's plea for repeal of the eighteenth amendment both are extensively reproduced.

Kate Smith, that song bird of the South that can't get it over the mountain, is in Washington visiting the home folks for a few days. Hello, everybody!

The Columbia Players, I am reliably informed, are wondering about the state of the Nation. Of all the perfectly grand props loaned the local acting group for its recent production of "Holiday," a careful checking up reveals that only a handsome cocktail shaker appealed to the tastes of the light-fingered. It vanished.

Before venturing any axiomatic Sherlockian deductions, may we inquire whether the shaker was empty or, er, ah, shall we say filled, at the time of its disappearance?

Bright, gay, cool and quite terrifically smart, the Shoreham Terrace is more than ever the spot for twilight and after-dark festivities this summer—so I hear. Meaning, no doubt, that the Terrace dinner and supper dances are golden sunsets for either busy or idle hot weather days—even such rainy ones as we have been having in such profusion lately.

Barnee and his twelve-piece Riviera Orchestra, latest musical creation of Impresario Maxim Lowe, provide dance music that thr-r-ills, cheers and soothes, depending probably upon which bar you happen in upon. Barnee, a slick and sharp young director, is full of melody, rhythm, versatility, high jinks, contagious enthusiasm and all the other things, if any, essential to first-class dance music direction.

Supper dancing gets under way at 10 and continues until midnight, but if you can't wait that long, dinner dancing is in order from 7:30 to 9:30, overlooking a terraced garden, flecked with starlight, a lazy moon hanging . . . . .

And how've you been?

Speaking of that Riviera Orchestra of Barnee's reminds me that when the "On the Riviera" stage revue plays Loew's Fox Theater the week of July 1, its star will be Conchita Montenegro, vivacious Spanish screen actress who also dances and sings. Her most vivid screen performance, you may remember, was with Leslie Howard and C. Aubrey Smith in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production of Peter B. Kyne's story of "Never the Twain Shall Meet."

By the way, you certainly looked swell helping to tote that daisy chain!

COLUMBIA

"MYSTERY RANCH." Fox picturization of "The Killer," by Stewart White, starring George O'Brien, supported by Charles Middleton, Cecelia Parker and Forrester Harvey. Directed by David Howard. Reviewed Friday night by J. F. Brady.

While there does not seem much "mystery" connected with this picture, it is certainly true that it is a real "Western" with all the ingredients necessary to a high pitch of excitement, broken here and there with a touch of romance and comedy. There is enough of this high tension stuff to create a flim of real interest for those who like the thundering of horses' hoofs, a lot of gun play, hand battles on high cliffs and the like.

"Mystery Ranch" will find favor with the younger element more quickly than with the older. For the adult fan, sympathy for the lone female character (in the major part of the story) will grip them throughout.

The settings have been most wisely chosen, since we are treated to some very beautiful views of the wilds of Arizona. Soft music springs up occasionally out there in the wide open spaces, but it has been carefully timed and is of such tonal quality as to appear perfectly "within the picture."

In a story titled "Mystery Ranch" one would naturally expect a bit of bafflement, but here we start off by seeing a hanging, shortly after which it is disclosed by whose order it was done. From there on one knows the "killer" and what "Bob" (George O'Brien) is up against when he comes from Bar 2 Ranch to capture Henry Steele (Charles Middleton), the man who claims all rights to everything in the valley.

Henry Steele has surrounded himself with many of the Apache Indians, who look dangerous and say nothing, obeying orders to kill when given. Bob has been given orders by the Government to go out and get this man Steele, dead or alive—and he goes bravely to his task.

But he is greatly surprised to find he has more than that to do, since Steele has as his captive the beautiful daughter of his dead partner. Jane (Cecelia Parker) is being held until she will consent to marry Steele. So we have this as the keynote for more bravery on the part of Bob, and does he have it!

"Mystery Ranch" has a wonderful climax, in a most beautiful setting. It is filled with quick, smooth-running action, amid the crack of many rifles—a scene you will not soon forget.

George O'Brien puts over a splendid interpretation of the brave and honest man, a true believer in law and order. Charles Middleton plays the man with the iron nerve, intent on "possession" obtained by any means; Cecelia Parker, as the beautiful but scared girl captive, is interesting, while Forrester Harvey, with his accent, succeeds in mitigating some of the tenseness.

Supporting the feature are an unusually interesting Paramount News, showing some views of the G. O. P. convention; a travelogue, "Isle of Isolation;" "Felix the Cat" cartoon, and a good kid comedy, with Mickey McGuire.

COUNTY BUSINESS WOMEN CONVENE

Plans for the coming year were outlined. The report of the treasurer, Mrs. Rachel White, was adopted.

Mrs. Katherine Cohen and Mrs. Dorothy Dunn leave today for Staunton, Va., where they will attend the annual meeting of the board of directors of the State Federation of Business and Professional Woman's Clubs.

Bargain in Whisky Costs Victim $50

Prisoner "Couldn't Resist" Opportunity, but He's Fined for Enterprise.

Ardell Proctor, who told Judge J. Chew Sheriff that he found such a good bargain in whisky that he could not resist buying it, was fined $50 in Marlboro police court yesterday for possession of three cases of liquor.

Proctor, who lives at Oxon Hill, said that he had never handled whisky before and did not know where he could sell it, but had bought the three cases so cheaply that he was "bound to make money on it." He was arrested on the Livingston road by Policemen R. Arnold Naylor and G. William Gray, who found the contraband in Proctor's auto.

The trial of Albert Day on charges arising out of an automobile accident after which a passenger in his car was wounded by a policeman was postponed until next Friday. Day, a Washington man, is charged with reckless driving, driving while drunk, and assault on a policeman. He said that by next Friday James Berry, the wounded man, would be able to appear in court on his behalf. Roosevelt Thomas, of Washington, charged with possession of several cases of liquor found in his car on the Southern Maryland pike, was also fined $50 after he had told Judge Sheriff he did not need a lawyer as he was going to tell the truth.

$15,000 Total Asked In 3 Auto Crash Suits

Three damage suits, totaling $15,000, were filed in Prince Georges County Circuit Court yesterday against Walter M. Bauman, of 3227 Quesada street northwest, as the result of an automobile accident in Central avenue last April.

The plaintiffs are Edwin B Cook, Nettie Mae Cook, and Martha D. Fowler, a passenger in the car driven by Cook. All three are represented by Attorney Clarence M. Roberts. Cook's declaration, filed with the suit, states that he was cranking his auto, which was parked on the road, when it was struck by a car driven by Bauman. Cook's auto was knocked into a swamp, he says, where it collided with a tree, and he was also dragged into the swamp, his declaration goes on.

33 Persons Arrested In Prince Georges Raid

One of Prince Georges County's larger raids, which netted 33 persons and 77 bottles of reputed beer, called out the police department's truck yesterday to bring the prisoners and alleged contraband before a magistrate for a hearing.

The raid was made early yesterday on the Rosedale Manor Club, near Glen Dale, by a squad led by Policeman Claude Reese, after a motorist had reported that he had been stopped and cursed as he passed the place. Sam Jeffries, said to be the proprietor, was committed to jail in default of bond of $1,500 on charges of possession of liquor and keeping a disorderly house. The other 32 prisoners were charged with disorderly conduct and released on collateral of $4.50 after a hearing before Magistrate Louis Gundling.

Law Offices Are Robbed.

The law offices of Police Justice William S. Snow, in the Alexandria National Bank Building, were entered on Wednesday night and papers of value to Justice Snow only were taken, along with some law books. The thieves also took a metal box belonging to John W. Brookfield, jr., attorney, having offices in the same place, and some papers from his office were later found in a vacant office in the building.

Joint Scout Meeting Held.

A meeting of all Boy Scout troops in Alexandria was held last night in the Virginia Public Service auditorium in reference to the enrollment for Camp Roosevelt, the Boy Scout camp, on Chesapeake Bay. The meeting was in charge of William L. Leitch, Camp Roosevelt director, and George R. Fletcher, Alexandria Scout executive.

Dry Men Warned On Stopping Cars

Definite Information Is Held Needed as Rum Suspect Is Freed.

Something more definite than a statement that they had "information" that a certain car was carrying liquor is needed to justify stopping the car, United States Commissioner J. Frank Parran told Federal dry agents working in Southern Maryland when he released William H. Walking, of Hughesville, yesterday on charges of possession and transportation.

In the future, if arrested persons are to be held for action of the Federal court, the person giving information must appear at the hearing or there must be some suspicious circumstance, Mr. Parran said. Past practice has been for agents to keep the name of their informers out of the hearing before the commissioner.

A plea by John C. Holt that he had driven 35 miles from Laurel Grove to Indian Head to get a drink at a still was not believed by Mr. Parran, who held him in bond of $1,000 on charges of manufacture and possession. Holt said that he was merely a visitor at the still when it was raided by the Federal agents.

VEGETABLE-FRUIT RECIPES STRESSED

They Give Welcome Change to Diet; Prize Winners Are Listed.

The profusion of fresh vegetables and fruits in the local stores afford welcome changes in the diet of the average home.

The homemaker with such a variety from which to choose adds not only color and inspiration to her table but many valuable food properties as well.

Nature is a wise mother, indeed, and yields of her bounty lavishly to those who are able to draw on her stores.

"Plent of vegetables" is a fine slogan the year around and especially at this season of the year.

STUFFED SQUABS.
(Awarded Book Prize.)

These squabs can be bought fresh from any chicken or fish dealer in New Center Market.

Draw squabs like a chicken, set in salted water for ten minutes.

Meanwhile, take the liver, heart, gizzard, one onion, little parsley and chop all quite fine. Add two tablespoonfuls melted Land o' Lakes butter, one well-beaten Sanico egg, two tablespoonfuls fresh bread crumbs (Schneider's) and season with salt and pepper. If the dressing is too thick, add a little milk or cream. Stuff the squab, close the stuffed opening with a toothpick, salt and pepper and dredge the outside of squab with flour. Put it in a baking dish over a pan filled with water and bake a nice brown, baste often with a little melted Land o' Lakes butter. Serve hot, garnished with parsley.

MRS. CHARLES C. KENNON.

3 eggs (Rockingham), separate whites from yolks
1 quart milk (Sanitary)
½ teacup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch (Sanitary)
Flavor to taste

Boil the mixture, stirring until it is smooth. Use whites for meringue; pile on pudding and place in oven to brown.

Filling.

1 cup of cream or rich milk (Sanitary)

The Homemaker

By NANCY CAREY

GIVES A READER WAFFLE-MAKING ADVICE.

NOW for the remaining recipes necessary to our week-end menus with only an aside to Mrs. L. to the effect that electric waffle irons are not to be greased for waffle cooking. Put plenty of butter in your batter, two tablespoonfuls (melted) to each cupful of flour is not too much. Have your iron at top heat and after batter is poured into center of iron close the lid quickly. Too much batter will "lift the lid" and ooze out, and too little will make a small waffle with unfinished edges. You can be your own judge concerning quantity after the first waffle or two. I can't tell you how much batter to use, since I am not acquainted with the size of your iron. Have the batter thin—so that it pours easily. Good luck, and to every one best wishes for a pleasant week-end.

Shrimp Cocktail.

Clean fresh shrimp and place in small glasses set in beds of finely cracked ice. Serve with the following sauce:

¾ cupful catsup
2 tablespoonfuls tarragon vinegar
Few drops tabasco sauce
1 teaspoonful Worcestershire sauce.
Juice of one lemon
Sprinkle of celery salt

Boiled Leg of Mutton.

Sew the meat in a piece of coarse cheesecloth and cover with boiling salted water. Cook about fifteen minutes to the pound. When done, remove the cheesecloth, lay the mutton on a hot platter, rub with butter and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Serve with caper sauce.

Caper Sauce.

About ten minutes before removing the meat from the water, take out a cup of the liquor and cool. Remove the fat that rises to the top and strain into a saucepan. Bring to a boil and thicken with one tablespoonful of butter, blended with one tablespoonful of flour. Season to taste and pour in a beaten egg slowly, return to the stove for a minute and add two tablespoonfuls of capers. Serve with the mutton.

Pear Salad With Ginger Mayonnaise.

3 cupfuls pears, diced
4 teaspoonfuls lemon juice
Dash of salt
¼ cupful chopped preserved ginger and sirup
1-3 cupful mayonnaise
1-3 cupful cream, whipped

Sprinkle pears with salt and lemon juice. Toss lightly together with dressing made by folding ginger and mayonnaise into whipped cream. Serve on crisp lettuce leaves.

Peppermint Ice Cream

½ pound red-striped peppermint candy
1 cupful top milk
1 pint whipped cream

Soak the candy in the milk overnight. If it does not dissolve readily, heat slightly. Cool. If a mechanical refrigerator is used to freeze the dessert, pour the mixture into one of the pans and allow it to freeze to a mush, then fold in the whipped cream and continue the freezing. When using an ice cream freezer, combine the unbeaten cream with the milk mixture and freeze until stiff, using three parts ice to one part salt.

Refreshing Summer Beverages.

Summer days are thirsty days! And there are so many occasions when a sparkling, icy drink is most refreshing and welcome. It may be after a tiresome shopping day in town, a brisk game of tennis, or, perhaps, when friends "drop in" of a hot afternoon or evening. It really doesn't matter, for in our new folder you will find many suggestions for easily prepared, appropriate beverages—all equally delicious.

Answer to Readers.

Dear Miss Carey: I am 30 years old, 5 feet 4 inches tall and weigh 128 pounds. Am I overweight? I would love to get rid of a little fat around my hips and legs. I exercise a lot, but it doesn't seem to help a great deal. I don't want to lose weight in my face and neck, but that is what always happens when I try to diet. Will you suggest a remedy?

MRS. L.

One rather good reason why you always lose weight in your face and neck when you try to reduce, Mrs. L., may be that you really do not need to lose weight at all. For your age and height, the charts indicate an average weight of about 130 pounds, but since it is better to be a little under rather than overweight as we grow older, perhaps you would find 125 pounds more desirable. And since you are so very little above this figure, it should not be necessary for you to adopt a diet at all, much less a strict diet, in order to lose so few pounds. Exercise in general will do it and brisk walking in particular. That will reduce any surplus fat on your hips and legs without the all too common hollow-cheeked and crinkled neckline effect which improper diet causes. It would be well to watch your diet, especially should you show any definite tendency to gain weight as time goes by, and if you should like, I will be very glad to send you our folder. Don't diet foolishly. Know what you are about and then keep right at it until you have accomplished your aim. Any other way is so decidedly foolhardy and unwise.

SALAD FOR SUMMER WINS RECIPE AWARD

Mrs. T. H. Mullenberg Is Recipient of Post's $5 Prize.

A summery salad was the recipe which won this week's Post $5 award. In fact, Mrs. Thomas H. Mullenberg, of 822 Longfellow street northwest, who submitted it, entitled it "a delightful summer salad."

Summer is the salad season, and cool foods take a place of importance along with cooling drinks when the thermometer is bubbling.

The recipe follows:

1 cup Campbell's tomato soup
3 packages Philadelphia cream cheese
1 cup stuffed olives, chopped fine
1 cup celery and green pepper, mixed, chopped fine
2 tablespoons Knox gelatin
¼ cup water
1 cup mayonnaise

All ingredients from Sanitary Grocery Co. and District Grocery Stores.

Heat soup, add cream cheese, stir until thoroughly blended. Add gelatin, which has previously been soaked in the water. Fold in mayonnaise, olives, celery and pepper. Pour in molds. Chill for two hours or longer. Serve on lettuce garnished with hard-cooked eggs.

OUR DAILY FOOD

By COLONEL GOODBODY

A SPRING SUNDAY DINNER.

HERE'S a fine Sunday dinner menu:

Chicken en casserole, brown rice, buttered spring onions on toast, a salad of tomato, celery and olives, rolls and butter and angel cake with crushed strawberries.

That meal sounds delicious and I like dinners that taste good.

When we plan meals we must, first of all, choose foods that meet the needs of the body. But that doesn't mean that we must limit our diet to a few foods, selected because they're "good for us." On the contrary, the choice of an adequate diet leads us to the use of a greater variety of food, and with an abundant opportunity to satisfy our individual tastes.

Here is a sound, sensible statement from the American Red Cross: "With the possible exception of milk there is no food in our daily menus that can not be replaced by another equally or nearly as good."

You know sometimes we forget that fact in our zeal to eat what's "good for us."

And here's another statement from the Red Cross: "A menu written out on paper may look all right, but when served to the family it may be something entirely different. We must be careful not only to have the right foods in the menu, but what is even more important, to have them properly prepared."

And I guess all of us agree with that.

I was talking to George Rector the other day about the right way to cook scrambled eggs. And do you know what that famous restaurateur said:

"Always cook them in a double boiler, colonel."

He went on to tell me how when he was out in Seattle once he asked how many women in the audience had ever cooked scrambled eggs in the top of a double boiler. Only two hands went up. So he showed them how to cook eggs slowly, over boiling water, so that they would be soft and tender, a sort of souffle, not overcooked.

"You know, colonel," said Mr. Rector, "scrambled eggs should be delicate and golden yellow, with no large lumps, which are likely to form if you use a skillet. The heat is too close to the eggs when you use a frying pan."

He went back to Seattle just a year later, and asked the same question: "How many of you ladies cook scrambled eggs in a double boiler?" Practically every woman in the audience held up her hand! They were following the method used by the famous Mme. Poulard, of St. Michel, Normandy, France.

Aimee Hutton Hasn't Typhoid.

Los Angeles, June 17 (A.P.).—While Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, Los Angeles evangelist, sought rest and seclusion in a bay district sanitarium today, the city health department announced her typhoid test was negative and she would not be quarantined. One physician said the evangelist was "emotionally worn out." He said she has a normal temperature and pulse and an apparently calm exterior.

Market Meanderings

By MILDRED REED BUNDY

Wedding cakes in all their sugar-festooned glory stood six in a row in one shop that the Meanderer visited this week. The heat of mid-June did not seem to weaken their crisp, sugary icings. Miniature bride-and-groom dolls stood demonairely atop these cakes, apparently as unafraid of the precipice they overlook as such significant figures have always been. Candy wedding bells and white roses support the tiny figures in their nonchalant attitudes. Easily, wedding cakes take high places in food news this month. In this certain pastry shop wedding cakes are made in all sizes, big enough to serve "just the family" or sufficient for a hundred or so guests. The cost of the cakes ranges from $2 to $100.

The sweet, frosty exterior of such cakes does crumble at critical times when it is being placed in exposed positions, the Meanderer was told. One mountain of a wedding cake, ordered for a large home wedding, was shaken a little in its equilibrum as it was being deposited in a high place of honor, and showed a sizable crack, alas! Consternation over the cracked wedding cake was about to upset the wedding plans. The pastry chef, busy in his little shop on G street, was notified that the cake would not do; that he must furnish another. Since hours of intricate work on the cake had been necessary, a reorder of the same cake in double quick time was impossible. But the cake sculpturer took his little pail of magic icing and a few tools and made haste to the scene of the threatened confection. In an unbelievably short time the cracked wedding cake was again made whole by the cake artist's deft touches.

"Road service on wedding cakes!" was the waggish comment of the Meanderer's chief counsellor.

Two of the creators of many of Washington's highest hat wedding cakes, one the cake artist-chef in a well-known pastry shop, the other in charge of the cakes and other sweets in the Mayflower Hotel, have been friends for nearly 20 years. As chore boys in bake shops in New York, both doing the inevitable scouring of pots and pans, they saw the possibilities of the trade they had just entered upon. As boys in their teens, they had come to America from Italy. The Meanderer gathered from the expressions of the two cake artists that the journey from their home in Italy has never been regretted.

June-time heat may not cause wedding cakes to lose their poise, but that same heat may take the crispness out of the housewife, no matter how fortified she may be. Cooking may become a limited, much lessened duty through the summer with the aid of some of the excellent, reasonably priced cold meats the Meanderer saw on her inspection tours. Much of the meat prepared as cold cuts is in glass jars and its attractive quality is easy to see. Spiced beef in pound sizes sells for 85 cents in one particular chain store on Fourteenth street. In this same shop a whole ox tongue in glass jar sells for $1.95. Chicken breasts in jelly, packed in England, are a delightful suggestion for the particularly choice summer meal. Several chicken breasts in one jar sell for $1.39.

Summer foods for the pantry shelf always include tea for the always popular iced tea. What is probably the best value in choice tea for the purpose is a genuine 100 per cent orange pekoe tea—tea fanciers know that not all orange pekoe labels mean 100 per cent orange pekoe—in tightly packed tins from a famous English house for $1.25 a pound. Not long ago the pound tins of this tea sold for $2 a pound. This cut in fancy tea price the Meanderer found in the chain store where the above-mentioned choice cold meats are found. Next door to the chain store is a shop which features a special blend of tea prepared locally and featured in Washington for many years, selling for 60 cents a half pound. Another value in the long-established Washington grocery is a half-pound of orange pekoe tea in an iced-tea flask, both for 60 cents.

Appetizers, or hors d'oeuvres, surely have an importance for the meal planner during the hot months when appetites may lag. This class of foods includes many things. An appetizer's duty is denoted by its name—it must interest the appetite. Therefore, it must have an inviting appearance and a distinct flavor. Wandering along the busy lower part of Fourteenth street, the Meanderer came upon a shop window full of hors d'oeuvres, and their accessories. She paused, wondering if the exhibit would interest housewives. It would, she decided, and decided quickly, for not in all her months of searching for interesting foods has she found choice hors d'oeuvres at such low prices. The display was in a chain store, a very nice one in a location convenient for downtown shoppers. Only recently has this chain store offered its customers these teasing bits of food. They are found in only a small per cent of this certain chain of stores. Surely with this store's dash into the hors d'oeuvres business with prices on the desirable bits of food so low, many of us will cease to hesitate because of the cost to give our meals the sophisticated tang of the high class hors d'oeuvres.

A jar of assorted hors d'oeuvres may be found in this newly discovered appetizer collection for 39 cents. Assorted hors d'oeuvres with caviar and truffles is 69 cents. Whole grain, choice caviar has the modest price of 55 cents for two ounces, 99 cents for four ounces in this food collection. A two-ounce jar of red caviar is only 33 cents. The giant grain, or Beluga caviar, sells two ounces for 75 cents. A jar of pate de foie gras has the unparalleled price label of 95 cents. Anchovies sell for 15 cents up for the flat fillets; 39 cents for the three-ring type. Olives join the low cost appetizers with a 7-ounce jar of ripe olives featured at 17 cents. The tiny pearl onions, usually so expensive, are but 25 cents here.

Today six strawberry tarts and a layer cake which may be mocha, chocolate or tutti fruiti, may be purchased at a G street pastry shop for only 98 cents.

Alabama sugar corn has seen a generous reduction in price in nearly all markets, a dozen ears now selling for 60 cents.

Smooth, appetizing fish pastes that are so much used on crisp crackers for summer's light meals, are in an interesting variety in a corner stand in one big downtown market. The display includes lobster, salmon, bloater, sardine and anchovy paste, 45 cents a jar.

Blackberries sold as low as $2 a crate in a market in the Southwest section this week, a reduction of one-third the price asked last week.

A new preparation for the housewife who likes one dish meals is labeled "family stew." It contains beef, potatoes and carrots, and a can weighing 1 pound 6 ounces sells for but 17 cents at a busy market on Seventh street.

Three dozen eggs for 50 cents at an open-air stand in a market in the Southwest section was an indication to the Meanderer that eggs were not climbing to the slightly higher prices expected of them at this season.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

EVERETT SANDERS, chairman of the Republican National Committee, began making political history as far back as 1924, when he organized the first radio bureau of the Republican party. Mr. Sanders, then a member of Congress from Indiana, was the head of the speakers' bureau, with headquarters at Chicago, in the campaign to elect Calvin Coolidge.

Sanders quickly saw the possibilities of radio and instead of tiring out his principal speakers, who included such men as Gen. Dawes, Secretary of State Hughes and Secretary of Commerce Hoover, by chasing them about the country, arranged for their appearances at strategic points and had their speeches broadcast as widely as possible. It was the beginning of the political networks as we now know them.

Walter Newton, secretary to President Hoover, was then assistant to Mr. Sanders and was put directly in charge of the radio work. "Oom Paul" Gascoigne, of Washington, and Col. Ben Pratt, of Chicago, developed radio activities in subsequent campaigns.

Calvin Coolidge, though once credited with having characterized radio as "a lot of noise," was nevertheless delighted with the results it attained for him in the campaign. In fact he was so pleased with the radio and other work of the speakers' bureau in connection with his election to the Presidency that he persuaded Mr. Sanders to forgo leaving public life, as the latter had intended doing at the conclusion of his term in Congress, and serve as his secretary.

AN address before the annual convention banquet of the Atlantic Division of the American Radio Relay League by Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, will be heard over WMAL at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

The league, founded in 1914 by Hiram Percy Maxim, is credited largely with the development of modern radio through the constant activity on the air waves of its large membership. Dr. Klein will tell the story of the amateur radio operator and the far-reaching consequences of his efforts. A second speaker on the program will be Paul Segal, law representative of the group, who will discuss the forthcoming international convention of radio interests in Madrid, Spain.

Among the speakers at the afternoon session of the league at the Mayflower Hotel will be W. D. Terrell, chief, radio division, Department of Commerce; Capt. N. L. Baldwin, U. S. A.; A. A. Hebert, of the American Radio Relay League; Lieut. Comdr. W. J. Lee, U. S. Naval Reserve; L. C. Herndon, radio supervisor; Paul Goldsborough, Aeronautical Radio, Inc., and Dr. E. G. Woodruff, of Penn State College. This session will not be broadcast.

Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, will speak during the Institute of Public Affairs broadcast over WMAL at 9:15 o'clock tonight. He announced that his subject will be "What the Republicans Have Left Undone."

THE world's heavyweight championship fight between Max Schmeling, of Germany, titleholder, and Jack Sharkey, of Boston, contender, will be discussed during a special program originating in both Germany and the United States and broadcast over the WJZ network at 9 o'clock tonight, three days before the battle.

The running of the American Derby will be described by Clem McCarty, racing expert, from the track of Washington Park, Homewood, Ill., over WRC at approximately 5:15 o'clock this afternoon.

The Brooklyn Handicap at Aqueduct will be described by Thomas Bryan George over WMAL at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Classical music of a lighter nature will be heard during the Boston Symphony Orchestra Pop Concert over WRC at 8:15 p. m. The program, conducted by Arthur Fiedler, will come direct from Symphony Hall through Station WEEI, Boston.

SCHMELING-SHARKEY PRICES CUT TO BOOST SALES

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

In the absence of any sensational ballyhoo efforts on the part of the gentlemen who are charged with bringing the personalities of Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey before the public through the public prints, this department suspects that neither of the two principals in the world heavyweight championship battle next Tuesday can swim.

None of Tex Rickard's fistic extravaganzas had proceeded to the stage a week from the fight without at least one daring canoe rescue in which either the champion or the challenger was the central figure. As far as this department has learned, neither Schmeling nor Sharkey have even so much as taken to a canoe since their training campaigns started, which would imply that the Garden's ballyhoo boys are not the same ballyhoo boys that Rickard employed.

That the fight Tuesday night looms as the most outstanding financial flop since heavyweight history dealt in six figures is not surprising, in view of what both Sharkey and Schmeling have left undone in the past.

Neither is calculated to capture the imagination of the fight fans in the manner that Dempsey and the illustrious champions who preceded him excited the prize-fight public. Neither is known as a knocker-out. Schmeling won the title sitting down, on a foul, and Sharkey has disappointed big crowds so often that he has had more last chances to redeem himself than Marty Gallagher.

Schmeling won't win Tuesday night on a foul. That was decided last year, when the New York Athletic Commission ruled out the conclusive consequences of a foul blow.

It will mark the first heavyweight battle in history when neither principal can win or lose on a foul. Under the New York ruling, a fighter must continue even after a low punch, with the offender losing only the round in which the foul occurred.

The ruling appears to be doubly in Sharkey's favor. The former sailor, known as a notoriously low puncher, can slug with perfect confidence in the knowledge that Schmeling will not be able to claim foul. He may do enough damage with a low punch to lose the particular round and then go on to win the fight after having softened the German up with low punches.

Schmeling, of course, has the same opportunity to foul Sharkey with no fear that a low punch would be conclusive in the former gob's favor, but the German was hardly able to land a punch of any description when the two fought in 1930.

The German will be forced to show considerable improvement over his last performance against Sharkey if he is to retain the title. If he continues to bob and weave with his jaw offering the ready target that it offered Sharkey two years ago, Mr. Schmeling will need the Schmeling salts before the 15-round limit is reached.

Frank L. Jenkins, who rose from messenger boy to become passenger traffic manager of the entire Southern Railway System, as well as one of the District's best amateur golfers, is staging a big party today, the thirty-eighth anniversary of the Southern system.

Jenkins has arranged for you to ride, if you start today, anywhere over the entire system, which covers Dixie like the morning dew, for 1 cent per mile, and that seems much cheaper than staying at home. The auto is yet to be built that can be operated that cheaply, and Frank has taken a big wallop at this thing called depression. It should make him a member of the hole-in-one club anyway.

Tow Punches Gallagher To Win

Barry Beats Charles; Irving Knocks Out Bordeau in 1st.

By JACK ESPEY.

THEY called him a "set-up," this lanky Bob Tow, of Birmingham, Ala., but he twisted those five letters around to read "upset" last night when he won a unanimous decision over Marty Gallagher, Washington heavyweight, in one of two eight-round feature bouts in Twin-City Arena.

Tow, conceding 21 pounds in weight, punched out a clean-cut victory to spoil Gallagher's last "last chance" as a main event fighter in these parts. He threw off the odds-on favorite time and again from the clinches and tagged him about both body and head with straight rights and lefts.

Gallagher started furiously, evidently realizing he had to show improvement to secure a position among the better heavies of this section. But the pace told on him after the fifth round, while Tow, growing stronger, galloped away with a big lead in points.

Marty Floored By Foe.

Tow smashed Marty to the canvas with a one-two slam just before the bell ended the fourth and in the seventh opened a cut over Gallagher's right eye.

In the final bout Reds Barry, Southeast Washington heavy, scored decisively at the expense of Tim Charles, his former sparring partner. Bad blood was in evidence as this pair flailed away viciously the entire route, but Barry had too much speed and class for Charles, whose chief asset proved to be stamina.

The 1,000 fans present were treated to a quick knockout in the main preliminary when after 2 minutes 18 seconds of the first round, Henry Irving stretched out Leroy Bordeau with a roundhouse right to the whiskers. Bordeau, former Georgetown University football star, was making his professional debut. In the other bouts Joe Bruno, Baltimore, and Harry Lennox, Zihlman, Md., junior lightweights, drew in six rounds, and Billy Hooe, Mohawk Club junior welter, outslugged Pep O'Brien, Scranton, Pa.

Kansas Mound Phenom Bought by White Sox

Independence, Kans., June 17 (A.P.).—Arthur Evans, 20-year-old Southern pitcher, was sold to the Chicago White Sox by the Independence Western Association Club today for immediate delivery.

It is his first season in organized baseball. Evans, whose home is in Flat River, Mo., has pitched in eleven games, allowing an average of less than six hits and two runs per game.

Perry and Crenshaw Play for South Title

Birmingham, Ala., June 17 (A.P.).—Sam Perry, 24-year-old Birmingham yeteran, and Files Crenshaw, a Montgomery lawyer four years his senior, today eliminated two youthful challengers in extra-hole semifinal matches and will meet tomorrow for the Southern amateur golf championship.

Perry, who won this title three years ago, defeated Johnny Morris, the 17-year-old Birmingham former caddy, on the nineteenth hole. Crenshaw was forced to go to the twentieth green to turn back the 19-year-old Georgia champion, Charley Yates, of Atlanta.

SCHAAF BOUT DELAYED.

West New York, N. J., June 17 (A.P.).—The fight between Stanley Poreda and Ernie Schaaff, scheduled for tonight, was postponed on account of rain. It will be held either next Thursday or next Friday night.

Mrs. Martinez Triumphs In Women's Net Semifinals

IN one of the most bitterly contested matches played here this year, Mrs. Ruth Martinez, District women's tennis champion, entered the final round of the often postponed Women's District Tennis League tournament by beating Mrs. Frances Stone, Chevy Chase Club expert, 6—1, 0—6, 6—4. The match was played at Wardman Park Hotel and lasted more than two hours.

For violent reversals of advantage, and consistent driving it had few equals. The two girls battled 40 minutes before the score of 4-1 was reached in the first set, but at this point Mrs. Stone seemed to lose her excellent control of the ball and Mrs. Martinez quickly ran out the first set.

The result of the second set was totally unexpected, and from the gallery little difference could be noticed in the actual course of the match.

Near the end of the set Mrs. Stone changed her tactics from one of patient stroking to net charging. Cutting off the drives of Mrs. Martinez, Mrs. Stone dropped them short and at prohibitive angles to win the set with a flourish.

The rest period seemed to do neither of the girls much good, but they stuck courageously to their tasks and waged the closest sort of battle for every point. Hot tea helped Mrs. Stone after Mrs. Martinez had gone to 3—1, and she tied up the score at 3—3 with more net charging. But the stamina of the eventual winner, plus strokes that rarely miss, began to tell in the stretch, and she got home safely, after a match which frequently brought salvos of applause from the sidelines.

Mrs. Martinez meets Frances Walker in the final round of the tournament tomorrow afternoonn at Columbia Country Club.

CAPITAL ACE DEFEATED IN SURPRISE

Mrs. Meckley Bows, 3 and 1, in Gibson Island Tourney.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 17.—Staging the biggest upset recorded thus far in the Gibson Island women's golf tournament, Mrs. William B. Hurst, jr., gained the final round today by triumphing over the winner of the championship last year, Mrs. Betty P. Mackley, of Washington, by 3 and 1.

Mrs. Hurst, who is the titleholder at the Elkridge Hunt Club, will meet a clubmate, Mrs. E. Boyd Morrow, Maryland State champion, for the crown tomorrow. Mrs. Morrow today eliminated Mrs. M. Louise Bell, of Rodgers Forge, 5 and 3.

The break in the match came at the short fifteenth when Mrs. Meckley overdrove the green and Mrs. Hurst won with a 3, to again become 2 up.

They halved the sixteenth with par 5's.

Mrs. Meckley lost her tee shot at the seventeenth and her second shot was right down the middle. The Washington star then put her brassie shot hole high. Mrs. Hurst half topped her second shot, but her niblick was only two club lengths from the pin. Both missed their putts, and then Mrs. Meckley conceded the hole and the match.

STILL DAZED, SARAZEN SAYS

NEW YORK, June 17 (A.P.).—Gene Sarazen, new British open golf champion, came back to New York today with the trophy in his arms, to be welcomed down the bay by a reception committee and received later at City Hall.

"If any one had told me in advance of the tournament that I would shoot 72 holes in 283 strokes," he said with a grin, "I'd have answered, 'You're crazy.' I don't know how I did it. I'm still in a daze. It as one of the greatest thrills of my life.

"This is what I've been wanting for years—just to come home with the cup and be met by my friends at Quarantine."

Sarazen was taken off the ship by a police tug, escorted to the Battery, and from there to City Hall, where Mayor Walker waited him.

Black Yankees Play Pilots in Double Bill

The New York Black Yankees, one of the best known colored baseball teams in the country, will meet the Washington Pilots in a double-header at Griffith Stadium today, beginning at 1:30 o'clock. Tomorrow the Baltimore Black Sox will be encountered, at 3 o'clock.

The Yanks have in their line-up one Fats Jenkins, dubbed by Connie Mack as the Babe Ruth of Colored ball, Jenkins carries around the same amount of avoirdupois as the Bambino, and is claimed to be able to hit hard.

BOYLE BEATS JACOB IN UPSET

Dennison and Doyle Survive in Boys' Semifinals.

KENT BOYLE and Tom Moorhead will meet today in the final round of the junior tennis championship of Washington on the courts at Wardman Park Hotel at 11 o'clock. One hour earlier, Bob Doyle, youngest of the tennising Doyles, will meet Stanley Dennison for the boys championship.

Boyle, captain of the Friends School Tennis Team, moved into the title round yesterday by downing the seeded No. 1 player of the tournament, Happy Jacob, in a surprising 6—0, 6—4 victory. Moorhead was even more decisive with his semifinal round opponent, Spencer Howell, who was swept aside by the lambasting Moorhead drives, 6—1, 6—2.

Doyle reached his first finals by putting out Pete Allnutt, Powell Junior High boy, 6—3, 6—3. Dennison chopped his way through M. C. Oliphant by the same score.

Moorhead and Doyle are slight favorites to annex the two crowns today, but both must produce even better tennis than they have done all week to achieve their goals.

Immediately following the junior match, Paul Heston, nationally known professional, and developer of Joak and Ned McLean, will play an exhibition match against a ranking District amateur.

RUTGERS FOE FOR OLD LINE IN SERIES

BALTIMORE, June 17 (A.P.).—Johns Hopkins and the University of Maryland today were favored to turn back the invasion of the Crescent Athletic Club of New York and Rutgers College in the semifinals of the Olympic lacrosse eliminations here tomorrow.

The Terrapins from College Park already have a 10 to 2 victory over Rutgers whom they meet in the first game, while the Hopkins twelve have trounced Mount Washington, a winner over the Crescents. The Blue Jays and Crescents will meet in the second game.

Johns Hopkins, whose 1928 team won the Oylmpic title, has been undefeated this year. Each of the other three contestants has lost one game, Maryland's being at the hands of the Blue Jays.

Londos-Grobmeier Are Matched Again

Jim Londos and Fred Grobmeier will rassle again at the ball park next Thursday night. It was announced yesterday by Promoter Joe Turner, who explained that Grobmeier had been bothering him for a return match since Londos threw him three weeks ago, and had built up such a chain of extenuating circumstances which showed he was not "right" that night that there was nothing left to do but stage the thing over again.

Two other matches next Thursday night bring here four of the best known boys in the business. George Kotsonaros wrestles Gino Garibaldi in one 30-minute affair, and Jim McMillen is matched against Pat O'Shocker. Garibaldi has rarely been seen in Washington, but in New York, Brooklyn and a bit westward he is a "logical contender."

Wrestling, among other things, will assume a depression tax after Tuesday. Until then patrons may purchase the regular $3 seats for $2.72; the $2 seats for $1.81; the $1.50 seats for $1.36, and the $1 seats for 90 cents. After the tax goes in effect the usual prices will prevail, $3, $2, $1.50 and $1.

Coffman Gets Test Today At Detroit

Nats' New Acquisition Will Face Sorrell or Uhle.

By FRANK H. YOUNG (Staff Correspondent of The Post).

DETROIT, Mich., June 17.—Manager Walter Johnson and his Nationals are resting today and will resume play in their series with the Tigers tomorrow afternoon. Dick Coffman, recently obtained from the Browns in a trade which sent Carl Fischer and some cash to St. Louis, is due to draw the Washington pitching assignment.

This will be more or less of a test for Coffman, Johnson said tonight. He is particularly anxious to decide upon a regular rotation of his four best moundsmen and, with Coffman and Alphonse Thomas now on the job here, wants to get a true line on their ability. In a short relief shift against the Tigers here Wednesday, Thomas looked particularly good, allowing but one hit, and the Nat leader makes no secret of the fact that he is banking heavily on Tommy to make good.

Should Coffman and Thomas show the class expected of them, Johnson will consider them and Crowder, Weaver and Brown as his regulars and will use his other three, Marberry, Burke and Ragland, in relief roles, with the first pair drawing the assignment in games in which the Nats still have a chance to win and with Ragland probably finishing out losing games.

Sorrell or Uhle To Face Nats.

Against Coffman tomorrow, Manager Stanley Harris plans to start either Vic Sorrell or George Uhle, with the latter considered more likely to draw the assignment.

With Shortstop Joe Cronin back in the game, the Nationals look to be just about a 50 per cent better ball club. Many fans do not subscribe to the theory that it is possible for one player to either make or break a team, but this certainly is a fact. The Nationals without Cronin since June 4 have looked like a weak ball club. The three victories they took from the White Sox, a downtrodden classless club, came only after heated battles and, except in one game, the Browns made the Nats look like amateurs. And in the loss of the first game here on Wednesday, only a little of the Cronin punch was needed to save the day.

Thursday, against Trainer Mike Martin's better judgment, he acceded to Cronin's request for a heavy rubber bandage on his still ailing thumb and the shortstop went back in the line-up. Not only did he come through with a triple to score two runs but he played well afield and, equally important, keyed his mates up to a high pitch, for there is no question but what he is the spark plug of the infield and spurs his mates on to bigger and better things in a baseball way.

"If we can keep Joe from getting that finger of his hurt again, we'll go somewhere in the race yet," said Johnson tonight. "We can't get along with Cronin out of there and now that he's back I look for us to win consistently."

Carl Reynolds, who was among the league's leading hitters early this season, is showing signs of regaining this form which made him the most talked of player in the circuit. Yesterday he pounded out his third homer of the trip and his second in as many days, while he is beginning to hit the ball squarely again, hardly a day passing recently that at least one liner happened to head straight to a rival fielder. They will start falling safe one of these days and then watch Carl's smoke.

Trainer Mike Martin this morning received a telegram from a Washington fan encouraging the team. It read: "Hold the fort." Immediately Mike and two or three of the players around him grabbed a newspaper to see in what race "Hold the Fort" was entered.

"Dizzy" Dean Relents, Asks Street for Chance to Pitch

ST LOUIS, June 17 (A.P.).—"Dizzy" Dean, the eccentric Cardinal pitcher, who left the Cardinals in a huff Wednesday, has reached an agreement with President Sam Breadon and will rejoin the team Sunday in New York, it was announced today.

The lanky right hander, who left the club at Philadelphia, in a dispute over money matters, was apparently contrite today, and he sent the following telegram to Manager Gabby Street in Philadelphia:

"Manager Charles Street,

Philadelphia.

"I am sorry I left the club like I did, and if you will give me a chance to pitch in Philadelphia tomorrow and again in New York Wednesday I will show you how games should be pitched.

"DIZZY DEAN."

The agreement came when the Cardinals agreed to refund a $225 allowance made to Dean's father, which had been taken out of the pitcher's salary.

Dean, in a letter to Vice President Branch Rickey, said: "I had some trouble over some trivial matters in Philadelphia and I got mad, and while I was mad I said some things I should not have said in the newspapers."

Owing to lack of airplane service Dean was forced to postpone his intended departure to join the team until 6 p. m., when he will proceed to New York by train. He had intended to fly to Philadelphia and pitch in tomorrow's game.

Sexton Sets New World Record

Former Hilltop Star Breaks Mark for 16-Pound Shot.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 17 (A. P.).—Leo J. Sexton, former Georgetown star and now the New York A. C.'s mighty shot putter, was able to make only one perfect toss today at the Harvard Stadium, but it went 52 feet 8½ inches for a new world record. It was the only exceptional performance in the long opening program of the American Olympic semifinal track and field meet.

Working from a take-off that was slippery from an all-day rain, Sexton fouled on his first try with the 16-pound ball, but on his second attempt hurled the shot over the gravel and into the grass, for the stadium ring measures only 52 feet.

The former Georgetown star bettered the world record set by E. Hirschfelt, of Germany, in 1928 by 1¼ inches, topped Herman Brix's American mark by 2⅞ inches, and shattered John Kuck's Olympic record of 15.87 meters, made in the last international games, by more than 8 inches.

Brix, however, hurled the shot exactly the same distance achieved by Sexton in a recent meet in Taft, Calif. This extraordinary coincidence gives the United States two claimants to the official world record.

Sexton robbed John Anderson, of the New York A. C., of the limelight for the former Cornell star led the six discuss qualifiers with a tremendous heave that measured 163 feet 5¼ inches, but three and a half inches behind Eric Krenz's accepted world record.

Midatlantic Doubles Entries Close Monday

Only three more days remain for filing entries in the annual Middle Atlantic doubles championship, which starts Thursday at Columbia Country Club. Entries are being received by Arthur Slater, at the club, until Monday night.

Washington will supply the majority of the team entered, although Baltimore, Norfolk and Richmond plan to send representatives. The winners will be eligible to represent the section in the national doubles, in Boston.

Lewis and Sonnenberg Win in Philadelphia

Philadelphia, June 17 (A.P.).—Ed (Strangler) Lewis was declared victor in the final wrestling bout of the weekly card tonight when his opponent, Roland Kirchmyer, of Oklahoma, fell to the concrete floor outside the ring upon missing a flying scissors and was knocked unconscious. Before this Lewis twice was nearly pinned with scissor holds across the abdomen. The bout lasted 24 minutes 37 seconds.

Gus Sonnenberg's flying tackles were too much for Matros Kirilenkos, a Russian, in the semifinal and the Providence wrestler applied a body press in 23:16.

D. C. Pros to Leave For Scene of Open

Gene Larkin, assistant golf professional at the Chevy Chase Club, who left last Wednesday for New York for practice rounds on the Fresh Meadow course preliminary to playing in the national open championship next Thursday, will be followed tomorrow night by the other contestants who qualified from this section. In the party will be Robert T. Barnett, Chevy Chase; A. L. Houghton, Kenwood; Mel Shorey, East Potomac Park; Archie Clark, Congressional; James M. Roche, Elkridge; C. T. McMaster, Hillendale, and Glenn Spencer, Maryland Country Club. Walter Cunningham, Burning Tree, who did not qualify, will also leave tomorrow night and will remain throughout the tournament.

Turnstiles Are Idle In Both Big Leagues

New York, June 17 (A.P.).—The major league turnstiles did not click a single click today. There was not a game in either league, the first time there has been such an occurrence this season.

The American League had no contests scheduled, and all four National League battles were rained out.

The St. Louis Cardinals and the Phillies came closest to playing at Philadelphia. They were ready to go and the batteries had been announced when the rain set in.

Petrolle Is Suspended By Pennsylvania Solons

Philadelphia, June 17 (A.P.).—The State Athletic Commission today suspended Billy Petrolle, "the Fargo Express," and Henry Goldberg, of Brooklyn, N. Y., for unsatisfactory services in bouts at Pittsburgh. Eddie Conrad, of Cleveland, a second, was suspended for coaching a boxer from his corner at Pittsburgh.

Nurmi Enters Finnish Run in Spite of Ban

Helsingfors, Finland, June 17 (A.P.).—Despite the ban placed upon him by the International Amateur Athletic Federation, Paavo Nurmi will compete in the marathon run at the Finnish Olympic tryouts Saturday at Viipuri.

The distance marvel has been in active training all spring in the expectation that he will compete at Los Angeles this summer, despite the ruling that he was ineligible because of an expense account controversy that grew out of a tour Nurmi made in Germany and other European countries.

Although the Finnish Athletic Association, which once absolved Nurmi of any wrong doing in the controversy, has refused to acknowledge the right of the I. A. A. F. to bar the great Finn, it expects the I. A. A. F. ban will be lifted in any case in time for him to compete in the United States.

Garden Acts To Insure A Crowd

50,000 Seats at $2 and $5 Priced to Stimulate Gate.

By EDWARD J. NEIL

NEW YORK, June 17 (A.P.).—The desperate efforts to get Max Schmeling's heavyweight title defense against Jack Sharkey out of the "financial mechanical lung," where it is breathing faintly, took a decided turn today in favor of the cash customers.

Drastic reductions in whole sections of high-priced seats in Madison Square Garden's new bowl on Long Island have increased to approximately 50,000 the number of tickets that are selling for between $2 and $5.

In effect, the cheaper-priced seats have been moved into the higher-scaled areas, leaving only 17,000 of the total capacity of 77,000 in the top brackets. On this new scale it is estimated a complete sell-out Tuesday night would gross only $500,000, with every indication that no more than half that amount will be lured from the pockets of the faithful.

Garden Also Harrassed By Tax Situation.

No other heavyweight championship battle in modern ring history ever presented such a discouraging financial prospect so short a time before the firing was due to begin.

The Garden also has been harrassed by the Federal tax situation. After tickets were printed, allowing only for a 10 per cent tax in conformity with the new bill that goes into effect June 21, the day of the fight, it was discovered the Federal Government intends to collect the 22 per cent of the levy of the old tax bill on all tickets sold prior to the day of the contest. The Garden will be forced to pay the difference, materially reducing net proceeds.

While hope of financial success has about died, there seemed every possibility the duel will be one of the artistic triumphs of modern heavyweight history. Both warriors are in superb condition. Both are clouters and can take tremendous punishment.

Schmeling Seeks Vindication.

Schmeling still feels keenly the fact that he won the title from Sharkey in four rounds while sitting on the floor claiming foul, the only heavyweight champion in history with that dubious distinction.

The Boston sailor, with nothing but bitter memories at his own lack of control in a match he was winning easily, is further aroused by the fact he can gain little except the title in victory. Whereas Schmeling will receive almost 50 per cent of the net receipts, Sharkey will get only 10 per cent.

Furthermore, fouls will not count this time because of an amendment to boxing commission r

$50,000 AMERICAN DERBY TODAY DRAWS 14 3-YEAR-OLDS

Boatswain 3-1 Favorite in Classic

Stepenfetchit Rated Second Choice to Jeffords Colt.

I Say Is Only Filly in Race; Boatswain Is Top Weight.

By CHARLES DUNKLEY.

CHICAGO, June 17 (A.P.).—The $50,000 American Derby will be run at Washington Park tomorrow with Boatswain, 3-year-old son of Man o' War, and winner of the Withers Stakes at Belmont Park, the ruling choice to capture the twenty-fourth running of the fixture.

The event, first run in 1874, attracted an overnight field of fourteen representing the best 3-year-olds left in training. Unless showers develop overnight, the race, at a mile and a quarter, will be run over a fast track, with prospects of an attendance of more than 35,000.

Stephen Fetchit Held Second Choice.

Boatswain, the entry of Walter M. Jeffords, of New York, was installed as favorite at odds of 3 to 1. Stepenfetchit, the Mrs. John Hay Whitney colorbearer, another invader from New York, third in the Kentucky Derby, was second choice, at 4 to 1, with Yonkel, owned by Abe Bartelstein, ranking third choice along with Osculator. Yonkel is the main dependence to carry a Chicagoan's silks to victory.

The race two weeks ago shaped up as the best 3-year-old event of the season, with every prospect of evolving a championship struggle, but Burgoo King, winner of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness Stakes, broke down in a training gallop at Belmont Park and had to be withdrawn. Evening, probably the best 3-year-old filly in training, also met with a misfortune to force her withdrawal. Tick On and Economic, which finished second in the Kentucky Derby, also encountered training injuries.

Tomorrow Boatswain will attempt to conquer the best 3-year-olds that can be sent against him. He will meet them on new racing grounds and will pack top weight, 126 pounds. The others, with the exception of I Say, the only filly in the race, will carry 118 pounds. I Say was assigned 113.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL. WASHINGTON PARK, CHICAGO.

Mrs. Bennings' son, Bill, would like to do a little bragging. If you'll pardon me, I'll harp on yesterday's selections. Had Polydorus, $3.70; Stone Martin, $6.44, and Anita Ormont, $10.88 at this track. At Aqueduct, I gave Action, a 5-to-6 shot. My second and third choices were prominent but they don't count on my list. Burgoo King, Tick On and Economic will be missed in the American Derby today. Mr. G. H. (Brother Pete) Bostwick has done it again.

At the other tracks today, give these a look: Crimson Rose, Trajectory, Son o'Sweep, Black Patricia, Cabama, Flo O'Neill. BILL.

AMERICAN DERBY—I'm forced to string along with the West in this $50,000 added contest today. ADOBE POST will carry the Bennings dough postward today and there's a reason. This gelded son of Cherokee and Ruth S. has been busy and consistent in the last two months of racing. Has turned in a number of slashing victories under the handling of Jockey C. Dandolt, who will have the mount today. Breaks fast as a rule and thus should not be handicapped by No. 1 post position. The derby chart shows the Knebelkamp and Morris entry had a very rough race and no chance to get to the front group. STEPENFECHIT will have Robertson in the saddle and Mrs. John Hay Whitney's colorbearer must be reckoned with at some stage of the race—probably the stretch drive. BOATSWAIN gives the top pair eight pounds and will be out there winging as long as he lasts which many would lead us to believe will be all the way.

FIRST RACE—At the difference in weights in a field of this kind BLACK COMET should pay off in four figures and I believe that's what will be done. A consistent animal that will battle to the end. ERVAST, running back to that good race, would be the one to beat. PATRICIA MARIAN is moved down to third.

SECOND RACE—WISE ANN has been away from the races for several months, but was a keen juvenile in the South. Said to be sound, this miss has been burning up the track in trials. Quite an assignment to beat a field of this caliber, but I believe it can be done. PRYOR'S recent races give him second on my list. BALLYGRAN to beat LIQUEUR for third.

THIRD RACE—I look at this race as the most open on the card, with some ten horses figuring heads apart. Perhaps I'm letting my friendship sway me, but I believe JAZ AGE has a good chance. This fellow was a bear in the South last winter and brought his speed North to win the Inaugural Handicap at Bowie. Thereafter the bright red silks that he bore slipped farther and farther back, indicating that old Jazzer was wearing off his edge. Since he has been rested and then returned to serious training. Expect him to be a hot animal today. Then, again, I may be wrong. VOLTAGREEN drops weight. DORIS JEAN for third.

FOURTH RACE — It looks like CHICSU has more than he can chew in this race. However, this one has shown me tricks all season, and I put her on top here. IMPISH and SURFBOARD for what is left.

SIXTH RACE—SANDWRACK surprised the last time, and I look for him to step home ahead of this field unless we are to be kidded again. BOARDWALKER has a right to be second in this group. UNENCUMBERED for third.

SEVENTH RACE—WATERPORT can carry mine in this race. Has been racing well, likes the track and the distance and totes only a steadying impost. GUNFIRE and BATTLING ON for the place battle.

REVERSAL OF GOLD FLOW IS PREDICTED

Economist of Chase National Sees Tide Turned Soon to United States.

New York, June 17 (A.P.).—An early reversal in the tide of gold shipments, which in recent months have been from the United States to Europe, was forecast today by Benjamin M. Anderson, jr., economist of the Chase National Bank. He addressed a luncheon of the Association of Foreign Press Correspondents.

Dr. Anderson said American bankers had unhesitatingly met the foreign demand for gold, and in so doing had won the confidence of the world. The gold export problem was over, he said, so far as this country was concerned.

The foreign exchange markets, as you know are much better; the domestic hoarding, which was never large, has practically died out, and the whole picture looks much more cheerful," he asserted. "I think we may lose some more gold yet, but I think also that, before the year is over we shall be gaining more gold than I want to see come in. With moderate return of confidence in our American position, this would seem inevitable.

"The only countries that can take much gold for monetary purposes now are the United States, France, Holland and Switzerland. Belgium can take some; Germany, theoretically, could take some, but is unlikely to gain much. France, Holland and Switzerland are glutted with gold, and it seems to me inevitably that the tide must turn our way after a little while."

Dr. Anderson presented figures showing the impregnable position of the gold standard in this country. The ratio of gold in the Federal Reserve Banks and in the Treasury to paper in circulation stood at 76.3 per cent on June 8, 1932, he said. The figures for preceding years were June 30, 1919, 60.2; June 30, 1920, 45.5; June 30, 1928, 93.7. For June 15, 1932, he estimated it at approximately 75 per cent.

Iron Ore Holders Denied Payment

Regular $2 Distribution to Great Northern Properties Omitted.

New York, June 17 (A.P.).—Because of the "unprecedented" depression in the iron and steel industry, there will be no semiannual distribution for holders of certificates of Great Northern Iron Ore properties this month, Louis W. Hill, president of the trustees announced today.

The management had hoped, Mr. Hill explained, to pay a regular distribution of $2 annually, but due to existing economic conditions the trustees have deferred the minimum royalty requirements of a number of leases, thereby substantially reducing the income of the company during the present year.

The last distribution on the certificates was $1 last December.

Lake Superior iron ores consumed in May totaled 918,321 tons compared with 1,039,799 in April and 2,674,758 in May, 1931. Ore on hand at furnaces and Lake Erie docks on June 1 totaled 32,899,957 tons compared with 27,166,711 tons on June 1, 1931.

Weakness continues to rule in leading markets for steel scrap. At Chicago dealers are reported offering material 50 to 75 cents a ton below recent quotations.

Conditions in the Youngstown market are said to be better with shipments to mills on the increase.

Receivers Named For Celotex Plants

Company Admits Insolvency; Assets, $11,130,000; Debts, $2,423,500.

Wilmington, Del., June 17 (A.P.).—Colin C. Bell, of Wilmington, and Hobart P. Young, of Chicago, were appointed in Federal Court today as receivers for the Celotex Co., of Chicago, manufacturers of insulating board.

The bill of complaint asking for the receivership was filed by McManus, Inc., of Chicago, creditor in the amount of $7,039. The Celotex Co. immediately filed an answer admitting insolvency and consenting to the appointment of receivers. The bill states that the Celotex Co. has assets of $11,130,000 and debts of $2,423,500, but that although assets exceed liabilities, it does not have sufficient cash on hand to meet maturing obligations.

The company has outstanding 53,266 shares of preferred stock and 276,510 shares of common stock. It operates plants in the vicinity of New Orleans, La.

Raw Sugar Prices Continue to Soar

20,000 Tons Bought at 2.90 Cents, Duty Paid; Futures Off.

New York, June 17 (A.P.).—Raw sugar prices continued to soar today and the refined product joined in the forward movement. At the same time futures quotations, which have advanced around 50 per cent in the past 12 days, reacted moderately.

Strength of the raw and refined classes followed reports that refiners had purchased between 20,000 and 25,000 tons of spot sugar at 2.90 cents a pound, duty paid.

Raw sugar advanced 1-10 of a cent a pound to 2.90 cents for spots, while the refined registered gains of 1-10 to 2-10 of a cent a pound to 3.90 to 4 cents for fine granulated.

Futures were off from .02 to .04 of a cent a pound, due principally, it was said, to some realizing and hedge selling by the Cuban trade, which otherwise remained out of the market.

Dealers in refined reported that large orders were being received. Estimates of total business recently placed ranged between 800,000 and 1,000,000 tons, the largest movement in several years.

Sugar Advances Again.

San Francisco, June 17 (A.P.).—The Western Sugar Refinery announced today the second increase in the price of sugar this week. The new advance of 10 cents a hundred pounds, effective tomorrow, will make the basic price to wholesalers $3.90 for fine granulated cane.

Railroad Credit Grants $7,500,000 More Aid

New York, June 17 (A.P.).—The Railroad Credit Corporation has granted additional loans aggregating $7,500,000 to carriers, bringing the total of loans so far made to $22,000,000, distributed among 33 railroads.

E. G. Buckland, chairman, says it is expected the corporation, in cooperation with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Interstate Commerce Commission, will be able to meet the 1932 fixed charges of all carriers eligible for loans.

MARKET COMMENT

Westheimer & Co.—Friday's events brought no material change in underlying market situation. Confidence still is apparent but leaders are inclined to delay any extensive operations until an improved business trend takes definite form.

Waggaman, Brawner & Co.—Friday's market was dull and heavy. Absence of news and the small volume on the decline gave an appearance of a natural reaction. Any favorable news, such as developments at Lausanne or adjournment of Congress, might easily start a sharp rally.

Robert C. Jones & Co.—We feel that in the next six months we will have a sustained advance in bonds and that there will be a better investment market for the best securities. The market probably will be very trying to the daily speculator and there will be disappointments to those looking for quick profits. The soundest policy is to take advantage of weak days to buy and hold.

G. M.-P. Murphy & Co.—The Lausanne conference seems to have gotten off to a start which will appeal to markets as sensible and perhaps much more favorable than had been expected. * * * The market unquestionably has sponsorship and so far has met little heavy selling even in isolated instances. It is too early to say whether or not constructive operations can succeed, but certainly market precedent suggests higher prices over the next few weeks. We see no reason for operating counter to the prevailing upward trend, even though there is little to indicate it is more than temporary.

The following summary of yesterday's financial markets abroad is from the regular European service of the Associated Press.

London—Advances of 4 to 5 points in German bonds and general improvement in gilt-edged securities featured the quiet but firm market. Cheap money and hopes of a favorable outcome at the Lausanne conference helped prices. Other sections were also cheerful. The close was firm.

Paris—Profit taking checked the advance on the bourse. Local buying and bear covering, however, wiped out the losses that followed. French rentes were weak, while Bank, Suez and Rio Tintos issues were firm. The closing was firm.

Berlin—After an optimistic beginning, due to reports from the Lausanne conference, the boerse closed weaker.

RESERVE BANK SEEN CONTINUING CREDITS

Observer Says Life Blood of Easy Money Will Aid Business Revival.

By FRANK N. McCONNELL.

New York, June 17 (A.P.).—There is excellent reason to believe that the Federal Reserve System will continue its policy of credit expansion, now in effect for over two months, until the life blood of easier money warms the body of everyday business, according to informed banking quarters.

The weekly Federal Reserve statements, made public today, show further progress toward the goal of abundant credit, and a number of leading bankers who play an important role in casting the financial policies of the Nation are showing considerable enthusiasm.

Bond Buying May Be Cut.

While the Reserve banks until recently had been purchasing Government securities at a $100,000,000-a-week pace as means of forcing liquid funds into the Nation's money reservoir, it is now believed by leading authorities that future purchases will be made at a slower rate.

Ending of the abnormally heavy tidal flow of gold to Europe primarily accounts for this change. The earlier phases of the Federal Reserve program, according to this viewpoint, achieved success in spite of the handicap of heavy seepage of gold to Europe. Now that this has ended, it is expected that the Reserve program will be made more effective.

The statement for the Federal Reserve System as of June 15 showed that the twelve banks held a total of $1,692,207,000 of Government securities, a gain of nearly $50,000,000 for the week, and of $707,173,000 since April 13, when the new Reserve policy of large-scale buying of Government obligations was begun.

Week's Credit Gains.

Federal Reserve Bank credit on June 15 reached $2,270,000,000, a gain of $72,000,000 for one week and of $584,000,000 since April 13.

Meanwhile, member bank reserve balances, which show the state of health of the commercial banks in much the same way that a bank account does for the individual, stood at $2,101,000,000. This was a nominal decline of $11,000,000 during the week, but $90,000,000 greater than on April 13.

Excess reserves of the member banks—representing the surplus of such reserves over actual needs—continue around $250,000,000, a figure which is providing the leeway for commercial banks to grant loans more readily to industry. In terms of potential credit, it is the base on which $2,500,000,000 of commercial loans might be made.

Sears, Roebuck Votes To Omit Usual Dividend

Chicago, June 17 (A.P.).—Directors of Sears, Roebuck & Co. omitted declaration of the usual quarterly dividend today. A statement issued by Lessing J. Rosenwald, chairman of the board, said the directors decided to omit a dividend payment at this time.

"The action was taken," he said, "in view of the difficulty at this time of estimating earnings for the year and as two quarterly dividends of 62½ cents per share have already been paid." The mail order house had paid regular dividends at the $2.50 annual rate since 1927, with stock dividends of various amounts in addition until this year. A change in the rate, however, had been forecast recently because of the continued decline of the dollar sales total, reducing the gross earnings despite economies.

LEADING FERTILIZER COMPANIES TO UNITE

Virginia-Carolina Chemical and Armour Concerns Agree on Merger.

New York, June 17 (A.P.).—T. G. Lee, president of Armour & Co., announced today that plans had been completed for merging the Armour Fertilizer Works and the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Corporation, two of the largest companies in that field.

Their assets will be transferred to a corporation to be known as the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Corporation. Charles G. Wilson, of Richmond, Va., president of Virginia-Carolina Chemical Co., will be chairman of the board, and John E. Sanford, of Chicago, now president of Armour Fertilizer, will be elected president.

Armour Fertilizer Works was formed by Armour & Co. to utilize byproducts of the meat packing business for fertilizer purposes. However, the fertilizer industry has changed, most of its activities being now based on chemical processes.

"The sales of both Armour Fertilizer Works and Virginia-Carolina Chemical Corporation have shown very serious declines in the last two years," Mr. Lee's announcement said. "Both companies are today operating at a loss and at about one-third of capacity. The proposed combination, accordingly, grows out of a necessity for meeting the changed economic conditions, and creates a new enterprise which it is expected will be able to effect such economies as will enable the new company to maintain a successful existence."

The new company will have 180,000 shares of 7 per cent preferred stock which will be divided equally between Virginia-Carolina Chemical Corporation and Armour Fertilizer Works, and 1,000,000 common shares, of which 61 per cent will be delivered to Armour and 39 per cent to Virginia-Carolina Chemical Corporation.

Construction Contracts Lose Only 4 Per Cent

New York, June 17 (A.P.).—Heavy engineering construction contracts reported for the month to June 13 failed to follow the seasonal slump recorded last year at this time, says Engineering News-Record.

Total awards for the period show a loss of only 4 per cent from the weekly average for May.

RETAIL BUYING GAINS IN SEASONAL UPTURN

Wholesale Commodities Rise in Rush to Obviate New Tax Costs.

New York, June 17 (A.P.).—Retail buying power continued to show considerable breadth during the last week, and trade activity was further stimulated by active commodity buying in certain wholesale markets in anticipation of the new excise taxes, according to the weekly mercantile trade reviews.

Bradstreet's reported a continuation of the upward seasonal trend in merchandising in some sections, although others, particularly the central and southwestern divisions, show a decided lull.

"While summer dullness is coming on," said this review, "seasonal spring buying has been sufficiently deferred to bring retail volume about up to last year.

"There has been a sharp upturn in some of the manufacturing and producing opportunities in anticipation of taxes to be imposed under the recent statutes enacted by Congress. Rubber products, particularly automobile tires, are being made and sold in large quantities. In addition there has been an increase in quotations for all nonferrous metals except copper."

Dun's said the most encouraging reports of distributive gains are being received from the Southeast and that orders from merchants in rural districts are assuming a broader trend. This review also referred to the increased activities in manufacturing centers in response to the impending taxes.

Bulgaria Will Provide Half of Interest Due

New York, June 17 (A.P.).—Funds for meeting half the interest and sinking fund requirements on the Bulgarian 7½ per cent stabilization loan of 1928 and the 7 per cent settlement loan of 1927 for the period from April to September will be provided by that government, it was announced today by Speyer & Co., bankers.

Failure of the government to meet the requirements in full caused trustees of the issues to protest to the secretary-general of the League of Nations, and the Bulgarian government has requested the trustee to ask bondholders to form a committee to negotiate for future services on the loans.

WHEAT COLLAPSES ON HARVEST SALES

Favorable Weather Also Aids Price Slump to Lows; Other Grains Lose.

Chicago, June 17 (A.P.).—Collapsing under the first heavy selling pressure from the 1932 United States harvest, all deliveries of wheat today outdid the season's low price record.

Favorable weather for domestic winter wheat operations, together with good rains in spring crop territory had a contributing bearish effect, together with New York Stock Market downturns. Besides, export business in North American wheat appeared to be almost nil.

Wheat closed nervous at nearly the day's low, 1⅞ to 2⅛ cents under yesterday's finish; corn, 1¼ to 2 cents down; oats, ⅛ to ½ off and provisions 2 to 7 cents up.

Except during a single brief period, it was in vain wheat bulls contended that the market furnished the most attractive buying opportunity in a generation, and that smallness of domestic winter wheat yields, together with uncertainty of spring wheat developments gave a sound basis for most of material advances in price.

Helping to sustain wheat market rallies were reports that Argentine wheat shipments this week totaled only a little more than 2,000,000 bushels, against 3,600,000 the week previous and 5,489,000 at this time last year. It was explained that the Argentine surplus had fallen to 30,000,000 bushels less than a year ago.

Inasmuch as the reserve must last during the next seven months, Argentina apparently can not be an important competitor again until January, with Australia in a similar position, indicating that the last half of the current year would find importing countries more and more dependent on North American supplies.

Stocks Influence Grains.

Unsettlement of securities had a deterrent influence from the outset, and a rise in wheat quotations at Liverpool was almost ignored. A transient reappearance of buying orders attributed to an Eastern speculative leader caused the market to rally 1 cent from an early low point, but the bulge was soon more than overcome by increased selling.

It was not, however, until the last few minutes before trading ended that the wheat market gave way in earnest. At this stage, selling came with a rush, and disclosed that prices were without any adequate support. Much of the selling was generally believed to be against large purchases made in the country as a result of the northward spread of the harvest of the new winter crop; with Kansas City reporting the first arrivals of the season.

Corn and oats gave way with wheat. Kansas City July delivery of corn, which yesterday was around ½ cent over the same future in Chicago, dropped to a discount today.

Provisions were responsive to hog market upturns that reached the best price since April.

Wheat Futures Affected By New Kansas Crop

Kansas City, June 17 (A.P.).—Wheat futures prices here today reflected the arrival of the first of the 1932 wheat crop in Kansas City by slumping to new low levels. The market was down about 3 cents a bushel at the low point.

Two cars arrived from Kiowa in Barber County, Kans. One of them tested 17.8 per cent moisture, 58 pounds to the bushel and 9.25 per cent protein.

It sold at auction at 42 cents a bushel.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

What the Stock Market Did

	Friday.	Thursday.
Number of advances	83	238
Number of declines	311	149
Stocks unchanged	112	122
Total issues traded	506	509

Stocks.

Buying power gave out as the list struck firm resistance near the June highs. The late unloading carried the average down 2½ points, most of the leaders giving up 2 or 3 points, and Auburn 10. The sugar group was the only exception.

Bonds.

German issues were the star performers in a dull market. United States Governments also improved moderately, but the corporate average was down one-tenth of a point. The Lausanne conference gave the market its only important news.

Curb.

The trade took its cue from hour to hour from the big board, with only the oils offering a show of resistance.

Wheat.

As the first shipment of the 1932 crop arrived at Kansas City, futures at Chicago dropped to new lows for the season, closing at the day's bottom, 1⅞ to 2⅛ cents net lower.

Cotton.

An early advance of 1 to 4 points on good cables was lost when the weakness in stocks and wheat started heavy selling for the reaction. The close was 7 to 10 points net lower.

Wall Street Briefs

Pennsylvania Railroad Co. has not followed the example of some other large systems in making blanket reductions in salaries, but the pay roll has been pared considerably by adjustments throughout the system, it was said in railroad circles today.

Memphis Natural Gas Co. has omitted the quarterly dividend of 15 cents a share on the common stock. The company said it believed omission was advisable in order that a bank loan, incurred in connection with a Tennessee expansion program, might be liquidated.

STOCK MARKET SAGS IN LISTLESS TRADING

Recent Gains Swallowed Up in Losses; Auburns Take 10-Point Decline.

By JOHN L. COOLEY.

New York, June 17 (A.P.).—Stocks dropped in a wan market today, giving up hard-won gains of the past few sessions.

Obviously, the market's inability to go through the June 4 highs, even after the rails had done so, had something to do with the decline, which for many leaders ran from 2 to 3 points. Professional buying interests clearly waned, and lacked support from that quarter.

The list seemed to sag of its own weight. Weakness of wheat accelerated declines in shares during the last hour when trading was most active. Nevertheless, total transactions were only 780,774 shares.

Sugars Put Up Fight.

Sugar issues managed for a time to fight off the definitely lower trend of the general list, for that commodity showed early strength in both spot and futures markets, reflecting an improved statistical position and seasonal influences. Oils were dull, although there were scattering reports of higher gasoline prices.

Auburn hit the skids for a break of nearly 10 points. However, traders were disposed to pay more attention to rail stocks which, after a feeble advance in the first hour or so, joined the downward procession, Union Pacific closed 4 points lower, New York Central 1⅝ and Santa Fe 2¾.

In utilities, American Telephone and Consolidated Gas slumped about 3. U. S. Steel, American Can, Westinghouse, Case, American Tobacco "B," National Biscuit and Allied Chemical sagged 2 to 3.

Lausanne Stirs Hope.

Wall street was favorably impressed by the start made at Lausanne in the decision to effect a stopgap agreement suspending reparations from June 30 to conclusion of the conference. But there was no disposition to put this to bullish use marketwise, perhaps because such an arrangement had been regarded as inevitable. Furthermore, it seemed the British offer to drop all debts might encounter difficulties. German bonds strengthened appreciably, at both London and New York.

Brokers pointed out that the week's advance in stocks had been accomplished against a handicap of drab business news such as would hardly inspire outside support.

Weekly mercantile reviews contributed mild encouragement in that they reported some further gains in retail sales volume, largely of a seasonal nature. Dun's said retail buying power continued to give "evidence of considerable strength," but Bradstreet's noted irregularity in its returns from 55 important centers.

Russian Oil Is Left Out of Paris Parley

Roumanian Industry Invited to World Conference on Control.

New York, June 17 (A.P.).—It was said in oil circles today that representatives of the Russian oil industry have not been invited to participate in the international oil conference which opens in Paris on June 29.

The parley will include representatives of the Roumanian oil industry and spokesmen for American, British and Dutch companies, and possibly others. Previously it was believed the Russians would take part.

Charles E. Arnott, president of the Socony-Vacuum Corporation, an active leader in the move to stabilize petroleum export markets, will sail next week.

21 Banks Close in Week With 60-Million Deposits

New York, June 17 (A.P.).—The American Banker reports that 21 banks, with deposits of $60,000,000, closed this week. Illinois reported six closings, of which four were in Chicago. Newark and Spokane each reported a suspension involving $18,500,000 in deposits.

So far this month, 44 banks suspended and 8 reopened.

For the year to date, suspensions have totaled 740, with deposits of $383,000,000, while 136 banks have reopened.

Standard Oil Increases Gasoline Price 1 Cent

New York, June 17 (A.P.).—Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey today announced an increase of 1 cent a gallon in its gasoline price, effective tomorrow throughout all its territory except Delaware.

A similar increase was made this morning in the New York City district by leading distributors.

Four More Companies Join Tire Price Boost

Akron, Ohio, June 17 (A.P.).—Four more companies today joined the Goodyear and B. F. Goodrich Rubber companies in increasing tire and tube prices 11 to 15 per cent. The increase will become effective June 21, the date the excise tax bill takes effect.

Seiberling, Mohawk, Falls and India Rubber companies were those joining the increase.

Sales officials said General Tire & Rubber will follow suit.

Firestone had no statement.

Copper Demand Improves.

Demand for copper products is said to be a shade better. Some fabricators experienced a fair increase in bookings when the excise tax appeared certain of adoption, and other manufacturers are now said to be placing business on their books. So far buying of raw copper has not increased appreciably except in the export market, where sales are running at a somewhat higher level.

COTTON JOINS DROP OF OTHER MARKETS

July Price Closes at 5.15, 7 to 10 Points Off; Trade Buys in Liverpool.

New York, June 17 (A.P.).—After holding comparatively steady during most of the day, cotton sagged in the late trading, along with the grain and stock markets.

July contracts broke from 5.28 to 5.13 and closed at 5.15, with the general market closing steady at net declines of 7 to 10 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 1 to 4 points in response to steady Liverpool cables and reports of continued showery weather in the Eastern belt. December sold up to 5.66 on this initial demand, but the bulge met considerable realizing and prices sagged off later in the morning on rather a better weather outlook on the Eastern belt, which may have encouraged some selling for a reaction following recent advances.

December Sells Off.

The market stiffened up during the middle of the day with active months selling about 3 to 5 points net higher, but prices weakened in the late trading. December sold off to 5.51 with active months generally showing net losses of about 8 to 12 points. The close was slightly up from the lowest.

Some of the local map readers thought that additional showers might be reported tomorrow, but on the whole, rather a more favorable view seemed to be taken of the weather maps and while there were reiterated reports of insects they evidently failed to stimulate buying materially.

Liverpool cables said that liquidation had been absorbed by the trade, and reported a fair cloth inquiry, although the turnover was disappointing.

Reports today were 4,094 bales, making 3,228,240 so far this season.

RENT-HEARING BODY TOLD REALTY FIRMS COMBINE ON PRICES

Attorney Confronts Senate Group With "Sealed Evidence;" Demands Quiz.

JUSTICE DEPARTMENT CALLED 'WHITEWASHER'

Charge of "Fixing" Former Investigation Is Attacked; Realtors Report Cut.

Rent hearings before the Senate District committee reached a dramatic climax late yesterday when Oscar H. Brinkman, local attorney, confronted senators with "sealed evidence" of an alleged rent-fixing combine of District realty interests.

Mr. Brinkman, former clerk of the committee, displayed an envelope in which he declared was "incontrovertible evidence" of a combine here. He said he would not disclose its contents to the committee or to the Department of Justice until an "authentic" investigation is launched into the rent situation.

The witness charged that the Department of Justice, which has been called on by the Senate District committee to look into high rents here, "whitewashed" a similar investigation in 1924 and 1925.

Charge Is Criticized.

He was criticized for his arraignment of the department by Senator Warren R. Austin (Republican), Vermont, who declared it unjustified. Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), New York, proposed immediately that the committee go into executive session. Senator Auston objected.

Following adjournment, Chairman Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, announced that an executive session probably will be held next Tuesday in connection with the charges.

Earlier Senator Copeland suggested that a subcommittee be appointed to conduct the investigation. He said it had been his experience in previous rent inquiries that a full committee could get nowhere.

Notice Given to Landlords.

"We should let the landlords know that there is a God in Israel and we are going to do something about this situation," he said.

"There is no doubt in my mind that rents here are too high, and we may have to use the strong arm of Government to bring them down."

J. F. M. Bowie, representing the Washington Real Estate Board and the H. L. Rust Co., testified that rents already have come down in Washington; that the Rust Co., for example, has reduced charges in virtually all of its 65 apartment properties. He said in some instances reductions as high as 10 per cent had been made.

Mr. Bowie testified that a Washington Real Estate Board survey of 22,638 apartment units here conducted some time ago disclosed only 7.8 per cent vacancy. A hasty survey Thursday showed there was 14.76 per cent of vacancy in 11,000 apartment units checked. Senator Copeland observed this indicated vacancies had doubled, and might have been brought on by the high rent level.

Three Bills Approved.

Three District bills, including the drastic Patterson kidnaping measure, were ordered favorably reported by the committee.

The Patterson bill, supported before the committee by several witnesses, including Representative Maurice H. Thatcher (Republican), Kentucky, author of a similar bill in the House, would tighten penalties for kidnaping here, and permit a jury to bring in the death sentence.

Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, and Senator Copeland protested inclusion of the death penalty, but the bill was ordered reported over their opposition.

Other measures approved included the Sheppard bill repealing the act incorporating national trade unions and a bill authorizing the Commissioners to sell certain parcels of land. The Gibson license bill, passed by the House Monday, was ordered laid over until Tuesday. Senator King said he wanted time to study the measure.

DRAW RAISED TO STEM VETERANS' ADVANCE

The Benning, Pennsylvania Avenue and Anacostia Bridges were ordered closed by the Police Department for more than two hours yesterday evening to prevent a further influx of bonus marchers from their camps to the Capitol after 10,000 had camped on the Capitol Plaza. Photo shows the draw raised in the Anacostia Bridge with some of the balked veterans lingering by the rail.

JUDGE'S ASSAILANT SENT TO ASYLUM

Man Who Shot at Justice Stafford in 1914 Held Dangerous Lunatic.

The doors of Howard Hall, famous ward for the criminally insane of St. Elizabeths Hospital, were ordered closed on Raymond M. Stewart yesterday. Stewart is the man who in 1914, when he was only 19 years old, fired three shots at Justice Wendell P. Stafford in the District Supreme Court.

At that time Stewart was being tried on a serious charge, and when a ruling of Justice Stafford provoked him he leaped to his feet and started firing. No one was hurt, and Stewart served six years for his display of temperament.

After gaining freedom from that sentence he was arrested in Ohio and was convicted. He was one of the survivors of the holocaust that swept the Ohio penitentiary with a loss of hundreds of lives, and on the witness stand yesterday he related some of the horrors of that night.

Stewart was described by alienists as one of the most dangerous men ever tried on a lunacy charge. He is a paranoiac. His outbreaks have been frequent. His large stature makes him an exceedingly dangerous man, physicians said. He was found of unsound mind yesterday and sent to the Government institution.

Bank Clerk Killed As Auto Overturns

Fatal Accident Occurs on Eighth Day of His Honeymoon.

Frank Edward Welch, 28 years old, a clerk in the Park road branch of the Riggs National Bank, was instantly killed Thursday night near Leonardtown, Md., when his automobile overturned.

Mr. Welch married Miss Helen Boyd, of Washington, eight days ago. They were spending their honeymoon at Piney Point, where they have a summer camp. Mrs. Welch was at Piney Point when the accident occurred.

A naval officer who was with Welch received a fractured leg. He was removed to Indianhead for treatment. Mr. Welch's body was removed to an undertaking establishment in Leonardtown and will be returned to Washington for burial.

Inspector Davis Lauds Capper's Firearms Bill

The Capper firearms bill was strongly indorsed by Inspector Ogden T. Davis, head of the Crime Prevention Bureau of the local police department, in a radio interview over Station WRC yesterday afternoon. Edwin S. Potter, secretary of the National Antiweapon Association, conducted the interview.

Inspector Davis said that the bill would prove a great help in keeping firearms or other dangerous weapons out of the hands of those who have previously been convicted of a felony. Enactment of the measure would help in deterring juvenile delinquency, said the police official.

"Aida" to Be Presented Tomorrow at Stadium

"Aida," twice-postponed operatic spectacle announced for presentation at Griffith Stadium for each of the last two Sundays, will positively be given tomorrow night, rain or shine, Director Salmaggi announced yesterday.

"It will be just two weeks better," said the maestro, undaunted by the two postponements, and heartened by the loyalty of the Metropolitan Opera stars, as well as members of the orchestra, chorus and ballet, all of whom signed agreements to return to Washington this week by special train to take part in the Sunday night performance.

Swindle by Check Charged to Woman

Mrs. Dewart, of Capital, Arrested on Complaint of New York Store.

A woman who described herself as Mrs. Vera L. Dewart, 32, of Washington, was held in New York yesterday on a charge of petty larceny in connection with the obtaining of $5 in a check swindle, acecording to an Associated Press dispatch.

The woman is said by police to have purchased a quantity of clothing in a New York store for which she tendered a check for $75 and received $5 in change. The check was drawn upon the Commonwealth National Bank of Washington. There is no Commonwealth Bank here.

When the goods were delivered to her address, she could not be located. Later she was arrested in another store attempting to pass another check. Washington police said that a woman of the same name was arrested here in 1926 and turned over to authorities of Baltimore.

Two Held for Jury In Goodacre Theft

One of Suspects Pleads Guilty at Hearing in Police Court.

John McKenn Kirk, 28 years old, and Thomas F. White, 34 years old, were bound over for grand jury action under bonds of $25,000 yesterday after they had been given preliminary hearings in Police Court on charges of robbing George L. Goodacre, lunchroom operator, of $3,000.

Kirk entered a plea of not guilty, and White pleaded guilty. The latter was caught under the porch of a nearby house after several members of the Goodacre household had pursued him from their own home at 7617 Morningside drive.

Kirk was allegedly implicated in the robbery by White. Police were told by White that Kirk drove him to the Goodacre home and waited for him outside.

Estate of Stellwagen Appraised at $600,000

Edward J. Stellwagen, former chairman of the board of the Union Trust Co., left an estate of $600,000 when he died June 2, it was shown yesterday in the District Supreme Court, when the executors, his widow, Charlotte M. Stellwagen, and the Union Trust Co., filed a petition for probate of his will.

Real estate assessed at $203,413 and personal property valued at $424,717.21 comprised the estate. The widow is to receive the property at 2301 S street northwest with its household equipment and the automobiles, and, in addition, one-half of the remaining estate. The other half of the residue goes to Mrs. Elise S. Ducat, Westmoreland Apartments, a sister.

Dr. Johnson Gets School Board Seat

National University Chancellor Appointed to Succeed Daniel Roper.

The chancellor of National University Law School, Dr. Hayden Johnson, was yesterday named by the justices of the District Supreme Court to serve as a member of the Board of Education. He succeeds Daniel C. Roper, whose term on the board expires on June 30, and who resigned some time ago.

The justices, at the same time, reappointed Henry Gilligan and Mrs. Mary A. McNeill, to the board for additional terms of three years.

Dr. Johnson, a native of Washington, was educated in the public schools here. He graduated from Washington High Schools in 1874. He was graduated from Georgetown University with the degrees of bachelor and master of laws and in 1925 he was granted the degree of doctor of laws from National University.

AUDIENCE CHARMED BY MUSIC OF LATINS

Sixty-second Pan-American Concert Features Angel Soto, of Mexico.

Lowering skies failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the large audience assembled on the esplanade of the Pan-American Union to hear the sixty-second in a series of concerts of Latin-American music, played last evening by the United States Navy Band. Lieut. Charles Benter conducting, assisted by Angel Soto, well-known Mexican composer and tenor, and Musicians Birley Gardner, Louis Goucher and William Cameron.

In spite of a severe attack of laryngitis, Senor Soto was more than generous; his fine tenor voice apparently but slightly handicapped in his rendition of four of his own works—"Mexico Mia," "Por un Tormento," "Vivir Sin Tus Caricias" and "Mariquita No Te Vayas a Quebrar"—and "Jurame" (Maria Grever).

Selections from New Opera.

Outstanding on any program even less replete with rich, full harmonies, would be the United States' premiere of grand scenes from Carlos Gomes' opera "Salvador Rosa." In this latest composition Senor Gomes has stirring martial strains, tneder lilting melodies, and rhythms in a very modern tempo, all of which, blended into the Navy Band's arrangement, balances one theme against another, resulting in the creation of a desire that can not be completely appeased until the complete opera is publicly presented here.

Other premieres for this country included characteristic pampas gato, "On the Pampa" (Alberto Williams) and three Incan dances arranged by Carlos Valderrama.

Cornet Solos Played.

The "Polka Lenta" (Huberto de Blanck) and the ever-popular "Estrellita" were played as cornet solos by Musician Gardner Musician Goucher, assisted by Musician Cameron on the harp, rendered the sentimental "La Golondrina" (Jose Serradell) and "Serenata" (Sixto Duran) on the soft, bell-toned vibraphone.

On the esplanade, flanked by gaunt poplars silhouetted against the leaden sky, from the martial strains of the opening "Honduras Es Mi Patria" (Ignacio Galeano) to the closing bars of the rumba-rhythmed "Nortena" (Vigil y Robles), little thought was paid anything except to this one of the finest concerts of Latin-American music played by the Navy Band.

District Committee Seeks Trade Cure

Bankers and Business Men Study Speedy Recovery at First Meeting.

The way to a speedy recovery in industrial enterprise was considered at the first meeting of the Washington committee of bankers and business men at the Riggs National Bank.

The meeting was the result of the President's request that the twelve Federal Reserve districts organize such committees and seek ways of making greater use of the credit expansion offered by the Federal Reserve Banks.

After a thorough discussion of the present situation in the Capital, it was decided to expand the committee in order to include more lines of business. The local committee will act in conjunction with the other five committees in the Fifth Federal Reserve District.

Dr. Hall's Portrait Is Given to School

Picture Is Gift of Alumni of Columbia Institution for Deaf.

A portrait of Dr. Percival Hall, done in oils by Richard Merryman, well-known portrait painter, was presented to the Columbia Institution for the Deaf last night by the Alumni Association as its members gathered on Kendall Green for their fifteenth annual meeting. Dr. Hall, now president, has been associated with the school for 40 years.

The presentation address was made by Dr. Thomas F. Fox, graduate of the class of 1893. It was unveiled by Miss Geneva Florence, of the faculty. Frederic A. Delano, member of the board of trustees, delivered a speech of acceptance.

Today the alumni activities will include a breakfast at 7:30 o'clock, a business meeting with election of officers in the afternoon and an informal dinner tonight at the Bannockburn Club.

PLANS FOR GREETING OF AMELIA EARHART IN CAPITAL FINISHED

Medal of Geographic Society to Be Presented Aviatrix by Hoover Tuesday.

OCEAN-FLIER SCHEDULED TO VISIT CAPITOL CHIEFS

Woman Will Join Peary and Byrd in List of Those Receiving Award.

Announcement was made yesterday by the National Geographic Society of plans for the reception here of Amelia Earhart next Tuesday when she comes to Washington to receive the society's special gold medal to be presented by President Hoover.

Miss Earhart will arrive at Washington-Hoover Airport at 11 a. m. Tuesday, and will be met there by Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the National Geographic Society; Dr. John Oliver La Gorce, vice president, and other officers of the society.

She will be escorted by the society's officers to the White House to call on President Hoover at 12:30 o'clock, following which she will be entertained at luncheon by trustees of the society at the National Geographic Society Administration Building, on Sixteenth street.

Will Visit Capitol.

At 2:30 o'clock Miss Earhart will go to the Capitol to call upon the Vice President and the Speaker of the House; after which she will call upon the Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Navy, and the Secretary of Commerce, because of the interest of their departments in aviation.

Presentation of the special gold medal will be made at a meeting of the National Geographic Society at Constitution Hall, at 8 p. m.

The medal will bear the inscription "Awarded by the National Geographic Society to Amelia Earhart, First Woman to Achieve a Solo Transatlantic Flight, May 20-21, 1932."

Miss Earhart will be the thirteenth person to receive a National Geographic Society medal, highest American award for geographic achievement. Only sixteen medals have been awarded by the society since its first award, in 1906, of a medal to Peary for his Arctic explorations, that presentation having been made by President Roosevelt.

Two to Peary and Byrd.

Admiral Peary subsequently received another medal for his discovery of the North Pole, while Admiral Byrd also received two medals from the society, one for his flight to the North Pole and the other for his exploration of the Antarctic and his flight to the South Pole. Capt. Roald Amundsen also received two medals, one for his navigation of the Northwest passage and another for his attainment of the South Pole.

The exercises at Constitution Hall will be presided over by Dr. Grosvenor. Following presentation of the medal by President Hoover, Miss Earhart will respond, telling of her transatlantic flight. The United States Marine Band will play. The exercises will be broadcast over the red network of the National Broadcasting Co.

Tickets Are Limited.

Requests of Washington members of the society for seats for the exercises far exceeded the capacity of Constitution Hall. Tickets have been issued, not more than two to each member, up to the capacity of Constitution Hall, in the order of receipt of applicaltons. The society's officers have announced that no further seats are available.

The first medal ever awarded by the Society of Woman Geographers, of New York, will be presented to Miss Earhart as she enters the port of New York Monday. The blimp Resolute, carrying three of America's women explorers, will meet the Ile De France at sea and will drop the citation as it circles the liner. It will then escort Miss Earhart up the bay. The three explorers selected as passengers on the Resolute are Mrs. Delia Akeley, Blair Niles and Marjorie Trumbull.

Hearing in Henry Killing Postponed for 2 Weeks

United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage yesterday postponed for two weeks a hearing scheduled for yesterday afternoon of the murder charges alleged in a Federal warrant against Harry Davis, 34, of Philadelphia, in connection with the slaying of Milton (Milsey) White Henry.

Davis was remanded to the District Jail to await the hearing. Mr. Turnage allowed the delay after the Government had asked a greater margin of time in which to prepare evidence against Davis. Frankie Blum, 35, also of Philadelphia, is being held for questioning in that city and police here expect to extradite him to Washington on a warrant similar to that against Davis.

Benjamin Franklin Gives 134 Diplomas

Graduates of University Hear Accountants' Head Speak at Willard.

Charles B. Couchman, president of the American Institute of Accountants, last night told graduates of Benjamin Franklin University that they were entering business under conditions which experience showed favored their success.

The commencement exercises, which were held in the Willard Hotel, marked the close of the silver anniversary year of the Washington Pace School. The graduating class of 134, of which 14 were women, was the largest in the history of the institution.

As part of the anniversary ceremony, the honorary degree of doctor of commercial science was conferred upon Homer St. Clair Pace, one of the founders of the school, and upon Mr. Couchman. John T. Kennedy, president of the university, presented diplomas and awards.

Crane, Parris & Co. Is Ordered to Show Stand in Appointment.

Justice Jesse C. Adkins, in the District Supreme Court yesterday issued a rule on the banking firm of Crane, Parris & Co., 821 Fifteenth street northwest to show cause as to why a receiver should not be appointed for the firm.

The rule was issued on Eugene E. Thompson, and B. Ogle Harper, said to be the present members of the firm, and on Thomas W. Brahany, a former member of the firm who retired March 13, 1931.

The suit asking for a receivership was filed by Charles A. Carry, 1311 G street northwest, who said he had $108,000 on deposit with the firm; M. Virginia Devine, of the Wardman Park Hotel, who asserted stocks worth approximately $50,000 had been hypothecated by the firm, and the George Washington Masonic National Memorial Association, which alleges it had $107,000 on deposit with the bankers.

The petition showed that the three creditors had contracted with the firm last October whereby they agreed not to sue the firm to allow liquidating trustees to settle the affairs of the banking house. The creditors asked a dissolution of this contract on the ground that it was signed under a misapprehension concerning the assets and liabilities of the firm.

It was charged also that a recent audit had disclosed that the firm was not in a solvent condition. The creditors, through Attorneys Alexander H. Bell, Fred McKee and O'Brien & O'Brien alleged that a large part of the Crane Co. is in the possession of Brahany as manager of the firm bf E. A. Pierce & Co., where the stock allegedly owned by Mrs. Devine has been placed as collateral for a loan to the Crane Co.

CHASTLETON HOTEL ROBBED OF $422 AT PISTOL POINT

Auditor Is Forced Into Closet by Well-Dressed Holdup Man.

NEARBY THRONGS FAIL TO HAMPER HIS ESCAPE

Three Apartments Also Are Looted, Possibly by Same Outlaw.

While midafternoon traffic flowed by the front door of the Chastleton Hotel, Sixteenth and R streets northwest, yesterday, a hatless and well-dressed robber held up the auditor of the establishment at gun point and quietly escaped with $422 in currency.

William H. Dunn, 34, auditor of the hotel, who lives at 134 East Bradley lane, Chevy Chase, Md., was forced into a closet by the armed intruder. Other employes were unaware of what was taking place. Dunn was warned sternly not to emerge from the closet for an hour. He cut this down to fifteen minutes and gave the alarm.

$400 Missed by Robber.

William Hallstock, colored, a presser, employed in the basement of the hotel, saw the man leave the establishment by a rear entrance. He and Dunn described the man as about 35 years old, dressed in a reddish wool suit, as being clean-shaven and about medium size. Dunn said the man spoke exceptionally good English.

In rifling the cash drawer of the hotel, Dunn said, the holdup overlooked about $400.

Three Apartments Looted.

A half dozen blocks away, three apartments at 1207 New Hampshire avenue northwest were ransacked and robbed by a sneak thief. Whether it was the same man responsible for the Chastleton robbery police would venture no surmise last night.

In the New Hampshire avenue apartment house, Miss Louise Jones was the heaviest loser. A $1,000 bracelet and $46 in cash were taken from her quarters. A Government check for $69.19 was taken from the apartment of Mrs. Addie Sterne, and a diamond ring valued at $35 from that of Louise Barton.

Gun for His Protection Wounds Man in Arm

The pistol he borrowed from his policeman room-mate for "protection" on a stroll through Rock Creek Park last night proved anything else but, Gordon Crowce, 25 years old, of 1324 Monroe street northwest, told police. The weapon went off and wounded him in the left arm below the elbow.

Crowce, an employe of the Senate Restaurant, hailed Harry Marpin, 5003 Eighth street northwest, who was passing by in an automobile. Marpin took the man to Garfield Hospital. He had a wound from a .32 caliber automatic revolver in his arm. Crowce told police he had taken the pistol of his room-mate, Glenn Boyce, of the Capitol Police, and that the safety came off. The pistol discharged while in his pocket and the bullet struck him in the arm, he said.

Highway Workers To Get Longer Day

570 Who Went on Six-Hour Basis to Avoid Lay-Off Affected.

The maintenance force of the District highway department, which has been operating on a six-hour day since last December, on Monday will return to an eight-hour day, Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways, announced yesterday.

About 570 men had been placed on the short day basis to avoid laying off 250 workmen, as is customary during winter months. By rearranging the hours all employes were retained at no extra cost to the District government.

The highway department is preparing to launch its summer street improvement program in anticipation of the enactment of the 1933 appropriations bill. Bids are being received on projects although the signing of the contracts is held up pending the measure's passage.

Owners Prove to Jurors Dog's Name and Get Him

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mitchell, 2633 Sixteenth street northwest, yesterday regained "Bruin."

"Bruin," according to testimony in Police Court, was the name they applied to a German police puppy stolen from them some time ago. They saw the dog on the street last week and swore out a warrant for two colored men and yesterday a jury in Police Court was called upon to determine the name of the dog.

The colored men claimed it was their dog and that its name was "Stevie." They said they had had him from the day it was born. However, the jury found that the dog's name was "Bruin" and the animal was awarded to the Mitchells. Julius Green, colored, 38 years old, was convicted of taking the puppy. Milton Douglas was acquitted.
